How to Speak So Men Will Listen

Katherine McGraw Patterson, better known as KP, has been an entrepreneur, consultant, and business coach for women for almost 20 years.

My life isn't perfect, but I've created a business based on my definition of success that lets me spend my days doing what I love – helping women entrepreneurs and small business owners do what they love, too.

So, what's your definition of success?
Let me help you get there!

"As a woman, I know that we face unique challenges and limiting beliefs that can hold us back from embracing our own power."

In this program, KP will help us understand the communication differences between men and women so that women aren't left feeling unheard and undervalued in business settings.

You'll learn:

- The physiological differences in the sexes that affect communications
- How socialization has taught women to downplay their strengths
- How small changes to your speech and body language can give you the authority you deserve
