U.S. District Judge Harry S. Mattice Jr. has granted a motion made jointly by U.S. District Attorneys and counsel for Life Care Centers of America, for a 90day stay in the case against Life

The order suggests an end to the case may occur within the next 90 days.

Filed June 24, the order states the parties in the case "have reached a settlement in principle, subject to all required approvals."

"Specifically, Life Care has made a settlement offer that the attorneys for the United States recommend to the Department of Justice of fficial who has the authority to accept or reject the offer," the motion

The government brought suit against Life Care with allegations the company had overbilled the government for the costs of treating patients.

"Additionally, Life Care and the Department of Health and Human Services, Office of the Inspector General will be negotiating a corporate integrity agreement, to be executed simultaneously with the settlement in this action," the motion continued.

According to the Office of Inspector General for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, a corporate integrity agreement is negotiated with health care providers and other entities as part of the settlement of federal health care program investigations arising under a variety of civil false claims "Providers or entities agree to the obligations, and in exchange, OIG agrees not to seek their exclusion from participation in Medicare, Medicaid, or other federal health care programs," the department stated.

The OIG says these agreements have many common elements,

Two of Bradley County's state representatives have helped create a coalition to introduce legislation designed to protect members of Tennessee law enforcement.

State Sens. Mike Bell (R-Riceville) and Todd Gardenhire (R-Chattanooga) joined state Rep. Mark White (R-Memphis), House Majority Leader Gerald McCormick (R-Chattanooga), state Sen. High court will hear dispute over service dog at school

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is taking up an appeal from an 11-year-old Michigan girl with cerebral palsy who wasn't allowed to bring her service dog to school.

The justices said Tuesday they will consider whether Ehlena Fry's family can sue the school district for violations of federal disability

Fry's family obtained a goldendoodle to help her open doors and retrieve items. Her school district initially refused to allow Wonder at school. Officials relented a bit in 2010, but they placed many restrictions on Wonder. Ehlena and her dog later transferred to another school.

Her family sued the school district for violations of federal disability laws. The case was dismissed after a judge said the Frys first had to seek an administrative hearing. An appeals court last year upheld that decision 2-1.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which is representing the family, says the case is important because school districts around the country have repeatedly denied children with disabilities their right to bring service dogs to

Retired pope thanks reigning pope for his focus on mercy

E-Edition Only

The ceremony served in part to show continuity from Benedict to Francis amid continued nostalgia from some conservatives for Benedict's tradition-minded

Francis had invited the entire Vatican Curia, or bureaucracy, to celebrate Benedict's anniversary, and prelates turned out in force for the rare occasion of being able to greet each man in white. The audience took place in the Clementine Hall of the Apostolic Palace, the same marble and fresco-filled room where Benedict bid a final farewell to his cardinals on Feb. 28, 2013, becoming the first pope in 600 years to

While Francis presided over the ceremony, it was Benedict who stole the show with an offthe-cuff, mini-theology lesson sprinkled with Greek and Latin that showed that the mind of the German theologian is still going strong at 89. Benedict thanked Francis for may help quell conservative criticism of the current pope's loose theology, lack of attention to liturgy and emphasis on mercy over morals.

Francis has recently dismissed new questions about the implications of Benedict's resignation by insisting that there is only one pope - himself - and that Benedict had pledged his obedience on the day he resigned.

He told reporters this weekend he felt that Benedict "had my back" and was continuing to help the church through his prayers. He added he had heard that Benedict had even sent away some nostalgic faithful who had come to him complaining about the "new pope."

During Tuesday's ceremony, Francis entered the Clementine Hall to applause from the gathered cardinals and went straight to embrace Benedict, who stood up and removed his white skullcap in a sign of deference. They embraced several more times during the ceremony.

Benedict listened intently as Francis addressed him — as "Your Holiness" — lauding his 65 years of service to the church and saying his decision to retire to a life of quiet prayer to a small

Supreme Court abortion ruling could affect Tennessee laws

NASHVILLE (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court's Monday ruling on abortion restrictions in Texas could affect the outcome of a federal court challenge to two Tennessee laws.

"It seems like this will be a slam-dunk in Tennessee," said llene Jaroslaw, an attorney with the Center for Reproductive Rights, which represents plaintiffs in both states.

The Tennessee laws under challenge "are indistinguishable in practice from the two that were judged unconstitutional in Texas," she said.

In the Texas case, the Supreme Court struck down laws requiring abortion clinics to meet hospitallike standards and requiring abortion providers to have admitting privileges at nearby hospi-

Tennessee's admitting privileges requirement became law in 2012 and resulted in the closure of two of Tennessee's eight clinics that provided surgical abortions, according to court records. Of the six remaining clinics, two face possible closure because of the strict new clinic standards adopted by the legislature in 2015.

Tennessee Attorney General spokesman Harlow Sumerford said in a written statement that the office is reviewing the Supreme Court ruling and evaluating what is applicable to the Tennessee case.

The Tennessee suit also challenges a third law that was not considered by the Supreme Court in the Texas case. It requires women seeking abortions to receive mandatory counseling and then wait 48 hours before they can get the abortion.

Jaroslaw said she expects the mandatory waiting period to be struck down on the basis of the reasoning in the Texas case.

"The decision sets forth a clear standard for judging these laws," she said. "You can't just say it promotes women's health with no evidence. You can't just limit abortion under a pretext or sham law."

In August, U.S. District Judge Kevin Sharp temporarily ordered the district attorneys general in Bristol and Nashville not to enforce the clinic standards law against the Bristol Regional Women's Center and The Women's Center, in Nashville.

That's because the two clinics have said they are trying to comply with the standards but have been stymied by state agencies that were unprepared to implement the new requirements.

Those two clinics along with the Memphis Center for Reproductive Health brought the Tennessee lawsuit.

Jaroslaw said her office will reach out to the court this week to set a new hearing in the case.

State Rep. Susan Lynn, R-Mt. Juliet, who sponsored the law requiring hospital-like standards for clinics, expressed her disappointment with the Supreme Court's decision in a written statement.

"I am firmly committed to making sure that life is protected and that women are not put into risky medical situations," she said. "That's what we will continue working toward in the General Assembly."

U.S. complains to Russia over harassment of diplomats

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and other western diplomats in Russia have reported a surge in harassment from Russian intelligence services, prompting Secretary of State John Kerry to complain to Moscow, the State Department says.

Spokeswoman Elizabeth Trudeau said the harassment is of such concern that Kerry has personally raised the matter with Russian President Vladimir Putin in March and has also raised it with Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov. Trudeau said the uptick in harassment began in 2014, which roughly corresponds to the imposition of western sanctions on Russia over the Ukraine crisis.

"Over the past two years, harassment and surveillance of our diplomatic personnel in Moscow by security personnel and traffic police have increased significantly," she told reporters Monday. "Other western embassies have reported the same thing. The safety and wellbeing of our diplomatic and consular personnel abroad and their accompanying family members are things we take very seriously.

ENGLEWOOD (AP)

Authorities have charged the son of an Englewood couple in a knife attack that killed his father and seriously injured his mother.

Englewood Police Chief Gary

Miller tells local media that 29-year-old Michael Elrod attacked his father, 62-year-old Phillip Elrod, and his mother, Teresa Elrod, on Sunday morning at a home in East Englewood. Phillip Elrod died while being rushed to a hospital. Teresa Elrod is still being treated.

Witnesses at the scene, including an 8-year-old child, identified Michael Elrod as the suspect. Elrod was arrested and is charged with second-degree murder and attempted second-degree murder.

Miller says Phillip Elrod sustained stab wounds to the chest, back and lower abdomen. He says Teresa Elrod is expected to recover from her injuries.

It wasn't immediately clear if Michael Elrod has an attorney.

Teenager charged with murder after house party shooting

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — An 18-year-old man has been charged with first-degree murder, attempted first-degree murder and felony reckless endangerment in connection with a shooting at a Haywood County house party that left a teenage girl dead and two others with gunshot wounds.

Citing court records, news outlets report that Quin Love is being held without bond after having been arraigned Monday in connection with the early Sunday shooting. It's unclear whether he has an attorney.

Authorities say Love fired 10 rounds from a handgun into a crowd at the party, hitting three people, including 17-year-old Elia Hernandez.

Haywood County Sheriff Melvin Bond says Hernandez was inside the house, hiding from a fight outside, when she was fatally shot in the abdomen.

Investigators say Love also shot 22-year-old Jonathan Davis and 19-year-old Carlos Savage. Both have been released from the hospital.

See What 1¢ Gets!

King has two appearances set for the National Alliance for Public Charter Schools event on Tuesday afternoon.

He is scheduled to first participate in a "fireside chat" with Andy Rotherham, co-founder of Bellwether Education Partners, and will then deliver the keynote address to a general session of the conference.

Republican Gov. Bill Haslam made opening remarks to the conference on Monday.

Armored car robbed in Memphis, police looking for suspect

MEMPHIS (AP) — Police say they are looking for a man accused of robbing an armored car and fleeing in a black Dodge Avenger.

Memphis police said a security guard occupying a Loomis armored car was approached by a man with a gun at a shopping center parking lot on Monday.

Police said the man took an undisclosed amount of money. Officers said the guard fired a shot at the man, but it is not known if the suspect was hit.

No injuries were reported, and no arrests had been made as of late Monday afternoon.

Knoxville planning to build park in honor of Zaevion Dobson

KNOXVILLE (AP) — Officials are planning a memorial park in Knoxville that will honor a 15-year-old who died shielding two girls from gunfire.

The site of the proposed park in the Lonsdale neighborhood is just feet away from where Zaevion Dobson was killed in December during what police have called a gang-related shooting, according to media outlets. No one has been charged in Dobson's death.

Zenobia Dobson, Zaevion Dobson's mother, suggested the park as a safe space for children to play, said city spokesman Eric Vreeland.

"I feel for the kid whose parent doesn't want to take them anywhere (to play), or can't," Zenobia Dobson said at the time.

Zaevion Dobson Memorial Playground and Park will cost about $60,000. Knoxville's Community Development Corp. and steel company Gerdau have agreed to donate land for the park. Knoxville's Community Development Corp. will own and operate the playground.

The playground will be for children 12 and younger, said KCDC Executive Director Art Cate. In addition to the playground, preliminary plans include a wide lawn, climbing logs or boulders, seating for parents and a small amphitheater. At the entrance, a memorial will bear Dobson's name and likeness.

A public campaign is underway to raise another $40,000 for the park.

Board of Regents hires longtime Statehouse reporter Locker

NASHVILLE (AP) — The Tennessee Board of Regents has hired longtime Statehouse reporter Richard Locker as the higher education system's spokesman.

Locker succeeds Monica Greppin-Watts, who is joining the communications team at the University of Alabama.

Locker began covering the state Capitol for The Commercial Appeal of Memphis 33 years ago and has since contributed state government and politics coverage for the Knoxville News Sentinel and The Tennessean of Nashville. He previously worked for the Nashville Banner and the Knoxville Journal.

Locker joins the Board of Regents staff as the education system faces major changes. Haslam, a Republican, has taken steps toward giving independent boards to its six four-year universities. Once the four-year schools are spun off, the Board of Regents system will concentrate on the administration of two-year colleges where free tuition is available to any high school graduate.

In rain-soaked West Virginia, flood victim planning funerals other business operators along Main Street in the West Virginia town of Rainelle, Pamela Wallace Arnold is slowly cleaning up from state's worst flooding in decades. As a funeral planner, she's also helping to bury the dead.

She runs Wallace and Wallace, one of two funeral chapels in this West Virginia town of 1,500 residents. Wallace is doing double duty drying out her rain-soaked business — launched by her great-great-grandfather in 1926 — while planning the funerals of some of the flood victims.

Rainelle is in Greenbrier County, where 15 of the state's 23 deaths from last week's devastating floods occurred. Where the visitations will be held, not even Wallace knows. She's also not sure whether she can ever reopen at the same location.

She just understands that the community needs her.

"Obviously, our very first concern is taking care of the families," she said Monday. "We have to get somewhere quickly so we can take care of things.

Wallace is looking for another place where she can relocate temporarily. If not, her business has locations in other towns.

Thousands of homes and businesses across this mountainous state were damaged or destroyed when up to 9 inches of rain fell in a short span, causing perhaps the worst flooding West Virginia has seen in three decades. More than 400 people were living in shelters statewide.

Because of the widespread devastation, the Democratic nominee

RAINELLE, W.Va. (AP) — Like for governor, Jim Justice, announced Tuesday that he will pause his campaign for at least two weeks so he can concentrate on helping flood victims.

Justice says he has started a relief fund called Neighbors Loving Neighbors to help those who lost their homes or other possessions. He said "politicking is the last thing that's on my mind," and though his headquarters will remain open, he won't personally campaign.

Some of the worst destruction occurred in Rainelle, which is surrounded by hills, the Meadow River and several tributaries. Once home to the largest hardwood lumber mill in the world, the town's motto displayed on its website reads: "A town built to carry on ... building great things since 1906."

Now rebuilding will have to be Further up Main Street, Smathers Funeral Chapel has not received inquiries about handling flood-related funerals for local residents. But owner Monica Smathers Venable said her phone system has not been working properly since the floods.

Storm damage prohibited Venable from holding a funeral Saturday unrelated to the floods. She hoped to conduct it Tuesday but isn't sure yet due to uncertainty about ongoing storms and road conditions.

Venable, too, is worried about damage at her site.

"If the building is not structurally sound, that changes everything," she said. "If it's just cosmetic, I think we'll have a go

At the Park Center shopping plaza, state troopers assisted with traffic flow and helped carry items to a supply drop-off and distribution center while helicopters buzzed overhead.

The Rainelle United Methodist Church, made entirely of American Chestnut lumber, was turned into a donation center. The church basement flooded but the main level, which sits higher off the ground, was spared.

Cindy Chamberlain, who oversees the shopping center distribution center, said she worked with the American Red Cross during the massive response to Hurricane Katrina in New Orleans more than a decade ear-

"It parallels Katrina. It is that bad," she said.

Downpours on Monday brought back fears of the flood to some residents.

"That was the first thing that went through my head," Valerie Oney said. "I was like, 'Oh my, is this going to happen again? Are we sacrificing everything for nothing?"

Gov. Earl Ray Tomblin defended the state's preparation and response, but conceded they were caught off guard by an uncertain forecast and by how much rain fell so quickly.

"We didn't anticipate, I don't think, being as bad as it was with as heavy amounts as we had," Tomblin said. "I think that it just came up so fast."

 A majority of blacks — 65 percent — expressed support for the Black Lives Matter movement, with 41 percent saying they strongly support it and 24 percent saying they support it somewhat. About 1 in 10 blacks — 12 percent — say they oppose the Black Lives Matter movement.

Volkswagen reaches $14.7B emissions settlement

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Volkswagen would repair or buy back polluting diesel vehicles and pay each owner as much as $10,000 under a $14.7 billion deal the car maker has reached to settle lawsuits stemming from its emissions cheating scandal, a person briefed on the settlement talks said Monday.

The figure would be the largest auto scandal settlement in U.S. history and a huge step in Volkswagen's efforts to address the legal fallout from its admission that its vehicles were designed to fool emissions tests.

The deal sets aside $10 billion to repair or buy back roughly 475,000 polluting Volkswagen vehicles with 2-liter diesel engines, and to compensate each owner with an additional payment of between $5,100 and $10,000, the person said. The person asked not to be identified because the deal will not be filed in court until Tuesday, and a judge has ordered attorneys not to talk about it before then.

House Republicans fault U.S. military response to Benghazi

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report by the House Benghazi panel is faulting the military for its slow response sending resources to Benghazi, Libya, during deadly 2012 attacks on a U.S. outpost, despite clear orders from President Barack Obama and Defense Secretary Leon Panetta.

Republicans on the Benghazi committee released an 800-page report on Tuesday on the attacks that killed four Americans, including U.S. Ambassador Chris Stevens.

The panel's chairman, Rep. Trey Gowdy of South Carolina said "nothing was en route to Libya at the time the last two Americans were killed almost eight hours after the attacks began."

Gowdy said the Libyan forces that evacuated Americans from the CIA annex in Benghazi were not affiliated with any of the militias the CIA or State Department had developed a relationship with during the previous 18 months.

THIS IS A BREAKING NEWS UPDATE. Check back soon for further information. AP's earlier story is below.

Republicans on the House Benghazi Committee faulted the Obama administration Tuesday for what they said was a slowed response to help Americans under attack in Benghazi, Libya, in 2012.

Four Americans, including U.S. Ambassador Chris Stevens, died in two assaults at the diplomatic facility and CIA annex.

The panel's chairman, Rep. Trey Gowdy of South Carolina, said the panel's report, being released Tuesday, was not aimed at Hillary Clinton, secretary of state at the time. Democrats have said the goal of the report is to undermine Clinton's presidential bid.

Gowdy said Tuesday that the report documents that the U.S. was slow to send help to the Americans in Benghazi "because of an obsession with hurting the Libyans' feelings."

He said the report was not aimed at Clinton, but portrays "series of heroic acts" by Americans under attack "and what we can do to prevent" other assaults.

IN THIS OCT. 22, 2015 file photo, Democratic presidential candidate former Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton testifies on Capitol Hill in Washington before the House Select Committee on Benghazi. Clinton never personally denied any requests from diplomats for additional security at the U.S. outpost in Benghazi, Libya, according to Democrats on a select House panel who absolved the former secretary of state and the U.S. military of wrongdoing in the deadly Sept. 11, 2012 attacks.

The Libya attacks became immediate political fodder, given their timing in the weeks before President Barack Obama's reelection, and that has not abated despite seven previous congressional investigations. There has been finger-pointing on both sides over security at the U.S. diplomatic outpost in Benghazi and whether the White House initially tried to portray the assault as a protest over an offensive, anti-Muslim video, instead of a calculated terrorist attack.

Democrats released a report Monday saying that while the State Department's security measures in Benghazi the night of Sept. 11, 2012, were "woefully inadequate," Clinton never personally turned down a request for additional security. Democrats said the military could not have done anything differently that night to save the lives of the Americans.

On Tuesday, the panel's Democrats denounced the Republicans' report as "a conspiracy theory on steroids bringing back long-debunked allegations with no credible evidence whatsoever." The statement added: "Republicans promised a process and report that was fair and bipartisan, but this is exactly the opposite."

The State Department also issued a statement Tuesday, saying that the "essential facts" of the attacks "have been known for some time," and have been the subject of numerous reviews, including one by an independent review board.

Spokesman Mark Toner said the department had implemented most of the recommendations of the independent review board and wais continuing to expand security at its facilities and improve its threat assess-

"We have made great progress toward making our posts safer since 2012," Toner said in a statement. "Our priority continues to be carrying out our national security mission while mitigating the risks to our employees."

Toner said the department cooperated extensively with the House panel, providing more than 50 current and former employees for interviews and over 100,000 pages of docu-

Rep. Jim Jordan, R-Ohio, who helped write the Republican report, told CNN that "too little effort was made to protect" Stevens and the others. "We didn't move Heaven and Earth to get help to the people who were fighting for their lives," he said.

Lew is warning of widespread consequences, from layoffs of police officers to a hospital closure, if the Senate fails to act on a rescue package for debt-stricken Puerto Rico.

Days before deadline, Senate to consider Puerto Rico measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary Jacob Lew is warning of layoffs of police officers to a hospital closure, if the Senate fails to act before Friday on a rescue package for debt-stricken Puerto Rico.

The U.S. territory is in a decadelong recession, and the island owes a $2 billion debt payment to creditors on July 1. The House already passed legislation to create a new control board and restructure some of the U.S. territory's $70 billion debt.

In a letter to Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell on Monday, Lew said the crisis in Puerto Rico "will ratchet up to an even higher level" if the Senate doesn't pass the House bill in the next four days. He said that if the island defaults on the July 1 payment, the government may be forced to shut down public transit. close a hospital or send police officers home.

"We know for certain that it is the 3.5 million American citizens who live in Puerto Rico who will be further harmed," Lew said.

McConnell, R-Ky., has said the Senate will consider the House bill this week, but he will need support from both parties to surmount a certain 60-vote threshold to advance legislation. Votes could come as soon as Wednesday.

A look at the legislation and the

WHAT THE BILL WOULD DO

The House bill would create a seven-member control board to oversee the island's financial recovery, similar to a board that oversaw the District of Columbia two decades ago. The board could negotiate with creditors and the courts over reducing some debt, but the bill does not provide any taxpayer funds to reduce that debt.

legislation is needed The because Puerto Rico, like all U.S. states and territories, cannot declare bankruptcy under federal law. Mainland municipalities and their utilities can, while municipalities and utilities in Puerto Rico

The House is out of session until July 5, so the Senate will have to pass the House bill unchanged for it to head to the president's desk for his signature before the Friday

WHO SUPPORTS IT

The legislation enjoys rare widespread consequences, from bipartisan support from the White House and Republican leaders in Congress. House Speaker Paul Ryan, R-Wis., helped negotiate the House bill.

"The Puerto Rican people are our fellow Americans. They pay our taxes, they fight in our wars. We cannot allow this to happen," Ryan said on the House floor just before the chamber overwhelmingly passed the bill 297-127 on June House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., also supports the bill, despite a provision opposed by Democrats that would allow the Puerto Rican government to temporarily lower the minimum wage for some younger workers.

The governor of Puerto Rico is backing the bill, even though he says the control board would have too much power over the territorial government.

"What's the alternative right now?" Gov. Alejandro Garcia Padilla said in Washington last week. "We need the bill yesterday."

WHO DOESN'T

Senate Democratic Leader Harry Reid of Nevada is so far withholding his support from the bill, partially over the minimum wage provision.

"At the very minimum we need some amendments," Reid said last week.

Democratic Sen. Bob Menendez of New Jersey and Sen. Bernie Sanders, I-Vt., are both strongly opposed to the bill, saying the control board would be too favorable to creditors and ignore ordinary Puerto Ricans.

Some creditors have lobbied conservatives to oppose the measure, arguing that the bill is unfair to banks and tantamount to a bailout for the territory.

While scheduling a procedural vote on the bill, McConnell indicated on the Senate floor late Monday that no amendments will be allowed.

THE DEADLINE

McConnell has said for weeks that the Senate would take up the bill, but has pushed consideration until the 11th hour. The Senate is expected to start voting on the bill toward the middle or end of the

More Clinton emails released, including some deleted

WASHINGTON (AP) — An additional 165 pages of emails from Hillary Clinton's time at the State Department surfaced Monday, including nearly three dozen that the presumptive Democratic presidential nominee failed to hand over last year that were sent through her private server.

The latest emails were released under court order by the State Department to the conservative legal advocacy group Judicial Watch. The batch includes 34 new emails Clinton exchanged through her private account with her deputy chief of staff, Huma Abedin. The aide, who also had a private email account on Clinton's home server, later gave her copies to the government.

The emails were not among the 55,000 pages of work-related messages that Clinton turned over to the agency in response to public records lawsuits seeking copies of her official correspondence. They include a March 2009 message where the thensecretary of state discusses how her official records would be

"I have just realized I have no idea how my papers are treated at State," Clinton wrote to Abedin and a second aide. "Who manages both my personal and official files? ... I think we need to get on this asap to be sure we know and design the system we

In a blistering audit released month, the Department's inspector general concluded Clinton and her team ignored clear internal guidance that her email setup violated federal records-keeping standards and could have left sensitive material vulnerable to hackers.

The audit also cited a thenunreleased copy of a November 2010 email Clinton sent Abedin in which the secretary discussed using a government email account, expressing concern that she didn't want "any risk of the personal being accessible."

Clinton never used a government account that was set up for her, instead continuing to rely on her private server until leaving office in 2013. Though Clinton's work-related emails were government records, she didn't turn over copies until more than 30 lawsuits were filed, including one by The Associated Press.

Before providing her correspondence, Clinton and her lawyers withheld and subsequently deleted tens of thousands of messages that she claimed were personal, such as emails about her daughter's wedding plans, family vacations, yoga routines and condolence

With the new release Monday, more than 50 work-related emails sent or received by Clinton have since surfaced that were not among those she pro-

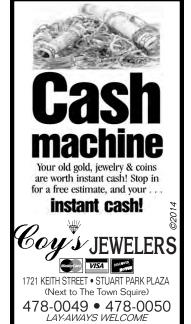

Clinton campaign spokesman Brian Fallon on Monday repeated past statements that Clinton had provided "all potentially workrelated emails" that were still in her possession when she received the 2014 request from the State Department.

Fallon has declined to say whether Clinton deleted any work-related emails before they were reviewed by her legal team.

& 336-1501

Dozens of the emails sent or received by Clinton through her private server were later determined to contain classified material. The FBI has been investigating for months whether Clinton's use of the private email server imperiled government secrets. Agents recently interviewed several of Clinton's top aides, including Abedin.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

There are times when declarer must do something extra-special to accomplish his mission. Usually the required play is well off the beaten path, and the difficult part lies not so much in executing it, which might be easy, but in recognizing it in the first

For example, take the present case where South was in five diamonds and West led the king of hearts. Declarer won with the ace and played the ace and another trump to the jack. He then led a low club from East followed low. But East put up the jack, and South had to take it with the ace. Declarer next tried the king and dummy, planning to play the nine if another club, hoping West would have to win the third club. But East won with the queen and returned the queen of spades, and South went down one. Declarer was very much on the beam in trying to establish dummy's clubs without allowing East to gain the lead for the killing spade shift, but his thinking did not go far enough. There was a way to establish the clubs without losing the lead to East, but it was not easy to see. The winning play is to refuse to take West's king of hearts at trick one!

Let's say West continues with a heart to the ace (he has no more effective play). In that case, South discards a club, cashes the A-K of trumps, then plays the A-K of clubs and ruffs a club. A diamond to the ten allows South to discard two spades on dummy's 8-7 of clubs, leaving him with only one spade trick to lose.

By willingly surrendering the first trick to West, declarer ultimately gets two tricks in return. Instead of losing a club and two spades, he loses a heart and only one spade, and that is a profitable transaction no matter how you look at it.

8 p.m. on (WFLI) The Flash

The title of the episode "The Darkness and the Light" is rather literal, since the story involves a nemesis known as Dr. Light. Jay (guest star Teddy Sears) maintains she's (guest star I eddy Sears) maintains she's relatively harmless, but that's not how Barry (Grant Gustin) finds her when she uses her powers to blind him during a violent encounter. Still, he has enough vision to take Patty Spivot (Shantel VanSanten) on a date. Danielle Panabaker and Carlos Valdes also star. 9 p.m. on (WFLI) Containment

Containment

When you're pregnant, being under quarantine is not a good thing, and Teresa (Hanna Mangan Lawrence) gets a big dose of that sentiment when it's delivery time for her in the new episode "A Time to Be Born..." Suzy and Sam (guest stars Nadine Lewington and Shawn Parsons) do what they can to assist in the birth. Lex (David Gyasi) develops worries about Dr. Lommers (Claudia Black). Jake (Chris Wood) makes a big discovery about the roots of the virus outbreak.

9 p.m. on (WTVC) Uncle Buck

Uncle Buck

Miles (Sayeed Shahidi) takes a chance in staging a stunt for online viewing, making Alexis (Nia Long) concerned about Buck's (Mike Epps) influence on him, in the new episode "Going to Jail Party." What's meant to be a punishment for Miles turns into a celebration instead, drawing the unwanted attention of a neighbor ... and, eventually, of the police. Another new episode —"I Got This," about Buck's devotion to basketball's Chicago Bulls — follows.

9 p.m. on (WDEF) Zoo

Just when you thought this show's world-wide assaults on humans by animals were over ... well, if they were, there wouldn't be a second round of the series based on the novel by James Patterson and Michael Ledwidge. In a season premiere combining the episodes "The Day of the Beast" and "Caraquet," James Wolk ("Mad Men") is back as Jackson Oz, who leads the charge to save reporter Jamie (fellow returnee Kristen Connolly) and a leopard with special DNA.

9 p.m. on (FREE)
Dead of Summer

Set in the late 1980s, this new thriller stars "Lost" alumna Elizabeth Mitchell as Deb Carpenter, the new owner of Camp Stillwater, a summer retreat she adored as a child. Six former campers are returning as counselors, but as they prepare to welcome new kids in the series premiere "Patience," counselor Amy (Elizabeth Lail), a newcomer, can't shake the feeling that something is not quite right in this idyllic setting. Ronen Rubinstein, Amber Coney, Paulina Singer, Mark Indelicato and Eli Goree co-star.

Fiat Chrysler gearshift probe finds 266 crashes, 68 injuries

DETROIT (AP) — A government investigation into confusing gear shifters like the one in the SUV that crushed and killed Star Trek actor Anton Yelchin found 266 crashes that injured 68 people.

The numbers are in documents posted Tuesday by the U.S. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. The investigation was closed after Fiat Chrysler agreed to recall 1.1 million vehicles.

Investigators also found 686 consumer complaints about the shifters.

Yelchin died June 19 after his 2015 Jeep Grand Cherokee pinned him against a mailbox pillar and fence at his home in Los Angeles. Police are investi-

His Jeep was among vehicles recalled in April due to complaints from drivers who had trouble telling if they put the transmission in "park" after stopping. Many reported the vehicles rolled off after the driver exited.

Police: Trooper shoots, kills man waving gun during stop

FREDERICA, Del. (AP) Delaware State Police say a trooper fatally shot a man who waved a gun toward troopers during a traffic stop.

The shooting occurred Monday night after police say Caroline County, Maryland, sheriff's deputies pursued a stolen pickup truck into Delaware driven by a man wanted in burglaries in both Police say the 25-year-old Greensboro, Maryland, man displayed a gun as he drove into oncoming traffic, then stopped on the shoulder of Route 1 near Frederica. Police say after he ignored commands to drop the gun and waved it toward troopers, one trooper fired, fatally shooting him.

The trooper, who has been with state police for four years, was placed on routine administrative leave.

Police didn't release the man's name or the races of the trooper or the man.

Massachusetts highway worker killed, driver charged

MEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — A highway worker is dead after police say he was hit by an impaired driver on Interstate-93 in Massachusetts early Tuesday.

It happened shortly before 3 a.m. in the northbound lanes of the highway near exit 33 in Medford when State Police say a Fiat 500 slammed into a truck and then hit the worker, killing him. Police say the worker was picking up traffic cones as part of a lane marking contract crew. A second worker has suffered minor injuries.

State Police say 31-year-old James Scoville, of Chelmsford, is charged with vehicular homicide and operating under the influence. He's set to be arraigned later Tuesday.

Another highway worker was seriously hurt after being hit in Boston Monday. A man has been charged with OUI in that inci-

North Dakota drug informant's family sues for wrongful death

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — The family of a North Dakota college student who was a confidential informant for a drug task force filed a wrongful death lawsuit Monday accusing a sheriff's department, a deputy and the county of failing to ensure the 20-year-old's safety.

The body of Andrew Sadek was found exactly two years ago in the Red River, which separates North Dakota from Minnesota, not far from where he attended college in Wahpeton. An autopsy concluded Sadek died of a gunshot wound to the head but the manner of death was "undetermined," according to the complaint brought by John and Tammy Sadek.

Their suit names as defendants Richland County Sheriff's deputy Jason Weber, who was part of the task force, as well as the county. It says the defendants failed to train Andrew Sadek to perform undercover operations and failed to "reasonably supervise" him.

"We filed the lawsuit today, two vears from the day Andrew's body was discovered, hoping to achieve accountability for those who put Andrew in harm's way," said Tim O'Keeffe, one of two Fargo attorneys for the Sadek family.

A spokeswoman for the North Dakota attorney general's office did not return email messages Monday seeking comment.

Settlement ends trial in deadly 2012 oil platform fire

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A settlement Monday brought an abrupt end to a complex trial combining 10 lawsuits arising from a deadly explosion and fire on an offshore oil platform in November 2012.

The accident off the Louisiana coast killed three workers and injured several others on a platform owned by Texas-based Black Elk Energy.

Those involved in the cases included relatives of the workers killed, injured workers and companies that were working for Black Elk. Settlements on some of the claims and counterclaims were reached before and during the trial. The final settlement was announced Monday morning and a jury seated a week earlier was dismissed.

Charles Talley, attorney for Elk, and Frank Black Spagnoletti, representing some of the injured workers, said terms were confidential.

"Significant compensation was paid to those who went through an absolutely horrific and tragic accident," Spagnoletti said.

We're happy to have it resolved." The platform was about 17 miles from Grand Isle, Louisiana, in about 50 feet of water. It was shut down for maintenance and was not producing oil at the time of the explosion on Nov. 16, 2012.

Veteran: Therapy wrongly denied because she is HIV-positive

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — An Iraq War veteran claims in a federal lawsuit that she was unlawfully denied aquatic therapy at orthopedic hospital in Pennsylvania because she has the virus that causes AIDS.

The lawsuit against OSS Health in York Township seeks a declaratory judgment stating that the alleged denial constitutes discrimination under the Americans with Disabilities Act.

The plaintiff is a 40-year-old York County resident identified only by a pseudonym.

She says that a physical therapist recommended during a June 2015 visit that she receive aquatic therapy. She says when her medical records showed she was HIV-positive, she was turned away.

Attorneys for OSS and two codefendants, Drayer Physical Therapy Institute and the therapist, deny any wrongdoing.

Pennsylvania officer shot 7 times is released from hospital

FOLCROFT, Pa. (AP) — A police officer who was shot seven times during a drug investigation exchanged salutes with cheering colleagues as he left a Philadelphia hospital Monday, a.m., Sanchez hit a man on a just three days after the confrontation.

Folcroft Officer Christopher Dorman has endured at least two surgeries since being shot Friday in the face, leg and groin. He was nonetheless able to walk from a wheelchair to a waiting car in a U.S. flag-themed shirt and hat.

The 25-year-old officer had been fired upon as he approached people suspected of smoking marijuana behind an apartment building in the borough of Folcroft, just southwest of Philadelphia.

More than 80 members of law enforcement were on hand to cheer Dorman as he left the hospital. Dozens of police cruisers with flashing lights then escorted him to the Folcroft fire station, where he was welcomed by a crowd of community members.

"I'd like to say thank you to everybody for being there for me and my family and my fellow brothers in blue through this," Dorman said. "Everybody's support means a lot. I appreciate it."

After an hourslong manhunt after the shooting, authorities charged Donte Island with attempted murder and aggravated assault.

Federal authorities had sought Island for nearly a year on parole violations. They say he regularly tested positive for marijuana use. A judge signed a warrant for his arrest in September, but parole officials said they could not find Island at either address he had given, including the Folcroft apartment where he was arrested Friday.

Chief Deputy U.S. Marshal John Patrignani declined to say Monday what efforts had been made to find and arrest Island, citing the ongoing probe of the Dorman shooting. Island had served about nine years in prison following a 2003 gun case.

Girl, 4, is sole survivor of van-train crash in Colorado

TRINIDAD, Colo. (AP) — A 4year-old girl was the only member of her family to survive after their minivan was hit by an Amtrak train at a crossing with a history of problems in southern Colorado.

The girl was hospitalized with serious injuries after the Southwest Chief train headed from Chicago to Los Angeles slammed into the van as it drove across the tracks Sunday morning near Trinidad, about 15 miles from the New Mexico border. Hospital officials would not release information on her condition on Monday.

Trooper Art Gumke of the Colorado State Patrol said the girl's father, 32-year-old Stephen Miller, who was driving the 2005 Chrysler Town & Country, and his wife, Christine Miller, 33, of Trinidad were killed along with their three other daughters, aged 6, 2 and 8 months. He said the minivan was moving at the time of the crash and was not stuck.

The Millers were on their way to church at the time, a fundraising webpage said.

Call for review of whitewater center after amoeba death

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) -North Carolina Gov. Pat McCrory says there needs to be a review of oversight for the U.S. National Whitewater Center following the death of an Ohio teenager who contracted an infection after she visited the park.

McCrory told The Charlotte Observer on Monday that there should be a total re-examination of how facilities like the whitewater center are handled in comparison with swimming pools.

Mecklenburg County Health Director Marcus Plescia said at a news conference that his agency doesn't have the capacity to analyze the water for the type of amoeba responsible for the death of 18-year-old Lauren Seitz.

While the center has temporarily suspended rafting and kayaking, all other activities are open for operation, and it says its Fourth of July celebration will proceed as scheduled.

Judge blocks part of Mississippi LGBT marriage law

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A federal judge ruled Monday that Mississippi clerks cannot cite their own religious beliefs to recuse themselves from issuing marriage licenses to same-sex couples.

U.S. District Judge Carlton Reeves' ruling blocks the state from enforcing part of a religious objections bill that was supposed to become law Friday.

Reeves is extending his previous order that overturned Mississippi's ban on same-sex marriage. He says circuit clerks are required to provide equal treatment for all couples, gay or straight.

Mississippi's religious objections measure, House Bill 1523, was filed in response to last summer's U.S. Supreme Court ruling that legalized gay marriage nationwide. That ruling is called the Obergefell case, after the man who filed it.

"Mississippi's elected officials may disagree with Obergefell, of course, and may express that disagreement as they see fit — by advocating for a constitutional amendment to overturn the decision, for example," Reeves wrote Monday. "But the marriage license issue will not be adjudicated anew after every legislative

Attorneys were still waiting on rulings from Reeves in two other lawsuits seeking to block all of the religious objections law, including provisions that could affect schools' bathroom policies for transgender students.

8-year-old bitten by boa constrictor he was trying to pet

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Police say an 8-year-old boy vacationing with his family in South Carolina was bitten by a boa constrictor he was trying to

A report filed by Greenville police says the family from Trenton, North Carolina, was walking through downtown Greenville on Sunday when they came upon a man letting people to 42-year-old Christy Sheats. pet a nonvenomous Colombian red-tailed boa.

Police spokesman Officer Gilberto Franco says the boy and his father approached and asked to pet the snake, which was about 5 feet long. When the boy tried, the snake bit him on the right forearm.

The snake was pulled off the boy, who was taken into a nearby restaurant for a towel and water. Emergency personnel arrived and treated the boy's wound.

No charges have been filed and the snake was not seized.

Police had previous run-ins with mom who killed daughters

FULSHEAR, Texas (AP) -Officers had been called out 14 times since 2012 to the home of a mother who killed her two daughters and was fatally shot by police, a Texas sheriff's office said Monday.

Some of the calls were related to alarm issues, the Fort Bend County Sheriff's Office said in a news release. But officials said that due to legal constraints by the county attorney, they couldn't describe the other calls for service.

Sheriff's office spokeswoman Caitilin Espinosa had told People magazine that prior calls had involved a "mental crisis" related Sheriff Troy Nehls said a family argument led to the shooting Friday evening at a home just outside the Houston suburb of Fulshear. Prior to the shooting, Sheats convened a family meeting in the living room that was attended by her husband, Jason Sheats, and her daughters, Taylor Sheats, 22, and Madison Sheats, 17, according to the sheriff's office.

"During that meeting, Christy Sheats held up a gun and shot both girls," the sheriff's office

Jason Sheats and the daughters ran outside, where Madison Sheats collapsed and died. Jason Sheats ran to the end of a cul-de-Taylor Sheats was shot again by her mother on the street. A witness told investigators Christy Sheats then went back in the home, reloaded her gun and shot Taylor once more.

When officers arrived, they saw Christy Sheats shooting one of her daughters in the street, the sheriff's office said.

An officer fatally shot Christy Sheats after she refused to obey commands to drop her handgun. Taylor Sheats was taken to a Houston hospital, where she

Streaking Indians beat Braves for 10th straight

ATLANTA (AP) — Trevor Bauer complained that he wasn't as sharp as in recent outings.

The way Cleveland has been hitting, Bauer didn't have to be sharp to help extend the longest winning streak in the majors this season.

Lonnie Chisenhall hit a threerun homer, Bauer gave up two runs in six innings and the Indians beat the Atlanta Braves 8-3 on Monday night for their 10th straight win.

Jason Kipnis added a homer in the ninth.

"It's contagious," Chisenhall said after hitting a homer for the second straight game.

"It's fun going in the batter's box when the guy in front of you and the guy behind you is hitting." The Indians have outscored opponents 68-21 and have hit 21 homers, including 10 in their last three games, during the streak. The Indians had 14 hits as they scored at least six runs for the seventh straight game. Mike Napoli drove in a run with three "We know we can hit," Bauer said. "Getting everyone going at the same time is big for us. It makes our job as pitchers a lot The AL Central-leading Indians extended their longest streak since closing the 2013 regular season with 10 straight wins. Chisenhall's homer in the fourth inning off Tyrell Jenkins (0-1) broke a 1-1 tie. Jenkins relieved rookie right-hander John Gant, who left the game in the third inning with a left oblique strain.

The Braves said Gant's status will be evaluated Tuesday, but Snitker was bracing for an extended absence.

"Those things just don't ever heal real quick," Snitker said.

Tyler Flowers led off the fourth with a homer, one of five hits allowed by Bauer (6-2). He walked three batters and threw 100 pitches in six innings.

"It was a struggle," Bauer said. "As sharp as I've been in the last couple, I wasn't sharp today. ... I wish I would have made it a little easier on myself."

Home plate umpire Jerry Layne left the game in the bottom of the eighth after he was hit by a foul tip from Nick Markakis. There was a delay while Hunter Wendelstedt, who had been the second base umpire, put on the gear to complete the game behind the plate.

Layne was staggered by the foul tip, which appeared to hit the right side of his head beyond the area covered by his mask. He stepped back and grabbed Cleveland catcher Chris Gimenez's arm to keep from falling.

Lovell escorted Layne from the PAT SUMMITT, former Tennessee Lady Volunteers basketball coach, revered ambassador for her university and state, trailblazer for women and a role model for people all over the world, died Tuesday in Knoxville at the age of 64.

From UT SPORTS INFORMATION

KNOXVILLE — Pat Summitt, legendary Lady Volunteers basketball coach, mentor and motherfigure to her players; a revered ambassador for her university and state; a trailblazer for women; and a role model for people all over the world passed away Tuesday, in Knoxville at the age of 64.

Born Patricia Sue Head on June 14, 1952 in Clarksville, Summitt arrived at the University of Tennessee for her first job as a 22-year-old physical education teacher and coach in 1974. As it turned out, the move to Knoxville would be the only one she'd make in her career. She leaves a legacy of greatness and grace that will never be forgotten.

Famous for her intensity, Summitt's competitive fire was reflected in her steely blue eyes and an icy stare that often connected with, and strengthened the resolve of, her student-athletes. Conversely, she possessed warmth and humor that demonstrated, in a motherly way, that her critiques were from the heart of someone who truly cared. They were simply methods of coaxing the very best she could get out of young women for whom she was responsible and preparing them for the rigors of the game and life.

More than once, she reflected, "they don't care how much you know until they know how much

Summitt served as head coach of the Lady Volunteers for 38 seasons and recorded an astounding overall record of 1,098-208 (.840). She made the UT program known and respected worldwide for its standard of excellence.

Her incredible body of work in that regard earned her the title "Naismith Women's Collegiate Coach of the Century" for the 1900s. It was a hallmark achievement for a leader who received a plethora of national (seven times) and SEC coach of the year (eight times) accolades during her career.

"We are deeply saddened by today's news of Pat Summitt's passing. We send our deepest condolences to her son, Tyler, and to her family and friends," said Tennessee athletics director Dave Hart. "Pat Summitt is synonymous with Tennessee, but she truly is a global icon who transcended sports and spent her entire life making a difference in other peoples' lives. She was a genuine, humble leader who focused on helping people achieve more than they thought they were capable of accomplishing. Pat was so much more than a Hall of Fame coach; she was a mother, mentor, leader, friend, humanitarian and inspiration to so many. Her legacy will

Smith signs 1st class of new Flames

From LEE SPORTS INFORMATION

Lee men's basketball coach Bubba Smith has released his first signing class as his Flames get ready to prepare for the upcoming 2016-17 season. The list consists of two transfers and seven freshmen.

The Flames open the 2016-17 season with the annual Homecoming exhibition game against Piedmont College on Nov. 5 at 2:30 p.m. The regular-season schedule begins on Nov. 11 when the Lee men will be in Carrollton, Ga., for the Peach Belt/Gulf South Challenge hosted by the University of West Georgia.

Mike Kobani, Senior (Bodo City, Nigeria — Appalachian State)

Mike joins the Lee program for his final season of eligibility after spending the first three years of his career at Appalachian State in North Carolina. He will provide immediate size, rebounding, and a post presence for the Flames both offensively and defensively. Kobani transfers after appearing in 47 games for the Mountaineers over the past 3 seasons. He holds a career-high of 18 points, coming against The Citadel in 2014. Before App State, Mike helped High Point Christian to a 25-7 record as a high-school senior averaging 12 points and 8 rebounds per contest. Mike will graduate from Lee in 2017 with a degree in Sociology.

Cody Jones, Sophomore, Holly Pond, Ala. (Sewanee — University of the South)

Cody comes to Lee after a standout freshman season playing for Coach Bubba Smith at Sewanee. Jones will be an immediate asset for the Flames in terms of his shooting, scoring, and ball-handling ability. He transfers to Lee after a freshman campaign that saw him earn SAA Newcomer of the Year honors. Cody scored in double figures 17 times for the Tigers, with high marks of 26 against Millsaps and 27 against Berry. For the season. Jones cleared 39% shooting from behind the 3-point line.

Vintage 'Smoke' recaptures glory days with Sonoma victory

SONOMA, Calif. (AP) — Tony Stewart sat slumped on the stairs inside his team transporter a year ago reflecting on the worst slump of his NASCAR career.

He had a migraine that day at Sonoma Raceway and spoke softly about his plight. Stewart didn't know what to do to return to his glory days. He had no idea how to adapt to NASCAR's rules package and seemed thoroughly defeated.

Asked that day about his confidence, he meekly admitted he was suffering.

"What's that? I should Google that and see if I can find the meaning of that word,' Stewart said. "I don't have any confidence."

That shell of Stewart was nowhere to be found at Sonoma over the weekend, where Smoke was in vintage form. He was cranky, candid and comical. All the ingredients that make him competitive.

So when Denny Hamlin slipped by him in the seventh turn of the final lap in Sunday's race on the road course where Stewart has been such a force for so many years, no one doubted that this throwback version of the three-time champ would bullishly try to seize the lead and the win.

He made his move in tricky turn 11, where Hamlin overshot the corner and left enough room for Stewart to squeeze inside. Stewart then ran him up the track and into the wall as he charged toward the finish line and his first checkered flag in three years.

Stewart's peers pumped their fists out their windows to applaud him. Some ran to his car, or met him in victory lane. Crew members lined the wall to high-five him as he celebrated. It was a show of support not often seen in NASCAR, maybe not since the late Dale Earnhardt's win in the 1998 Daytona Even Hamlin, who had just given the race away, went to congratulate his former teammate and one-time mentor. "Tony has been ultra-fair to me. He's treated me really well my entire career," Hamlin Cloney shuts down Chanticleers in CWS Game 1 win said. "It's not like I gave him one by any means. He gave us an opportunity to move him, we did, and then we got it back."

It was an important win for Stewart, who is retiring at the end of the year, and for NASCAR, which needs its biggest stars in the spotlight. The win will earn Stewart a spot in the championship field should he crack the top-30 in points, and he's currently 32nd in the standings but only nine points back.

More important than making the Chase, though, is that it showed Stewart is still the same guy he was before three years of injuries, on-track mediocrity and personal perils. He struggled mightily after breaking his leg in a 2013 crash, then was emotionally devastated after accidentally striking and killing driver Kevin Ward during a New York sprint car race in 2014. He's facing a civil suit filed by the driver's family.

He announced last year that 2016 would

ARIZONA pitcher JC Cloney celebrates the final out against Coastal Carolina, after the Wildcats' won Game 1 of the College World Series in Omaha, Neb., Monday.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — JC Cloney just keeps rolling along at the College World Series, pushing Arizona to the doorstep of its second national championship in five Cloney pitched a four-hitter, Ryan Aguilar drove in two runs and the Wildcats beat Coastal Carolina 3-0 in Game 1 of the College World Series finals on Monday night.

Cloney extended his scoreless innings streak at the CWS to 16. The junior left-hander pitched seven innings in the Wildcats' 3-0 win over UC Santa Barbara last Wednesday.

"I'm not really tired right now. The adrenaline is still going," said Cloney, who threw 122 pitches. "I'm still trying to figure out what just happened."

He wasn't the only one. The Chanticleers, playing in the finals in their first CWS appearance, went down in order four times and never had a runner advance to second base until the ninth inning.

Cloney (8-4) allowed four singles, walked three and struck out six in the second complete game of his career. He was spot on with his location of a fastball in the 80s, a cutter, breaking ball and changeup. He induced 13 groundouts.

"You want to sit on a fastball, and he throws you a cutter. And you sit on the off-speed, and he throws a fastball," said the Chanticleers' Michael Paez.

The Wildcats (49-22) can wrap up their fifth national title and first since 2012 with a win Tuesday. "They all know where we're at and what we're doing," first-year coach Jay Johnson said. "We need to prepare well tonight, the coaching staff and players alike, and get ready to attack the opportunity."

The Wildcats scored in the first when Aguilar singled in Cody Ramer, who led off with a double. Aguilar added another RBI single in the seventh to make it 3-0.

Coastal Carolina (53-18) threatened in the ninth. Anthony Marks singled leading off and Zach Remillard bunted down the thirdbase line for a base hit on a close play. Connor Owings hit into a double play, and Cloney caught G.K. Young looking at strike three to end the game.

Arizona's defense, which has committed only one error at the CWS, continued to come up big. Second baseman Ramer, playing in short right field as part of a shift in the fourth, sprinted to barehand G.K. Young's grounder. His throw to first barely beat Young's headfirst slide. Right fielder Zach Gibbons went with his back to the wall to catch Paez's deep fly to end the eighth inning.

"I thought I got enough of it," Paez said, "but knowing this field, you can't predict what's going to Coastal Carolina starter Zack Hopeck (3-4) lasted 6 1/3 innings and threw 103 pitches, both career highs. He tipped his cap to the Coastal fans and got a hug from reliever Bobby Morrison as he neared the dugout. Hopeck was solid, but Cloney was great. Coastal Carolina was shut out for just the second time this season, and first since an 11-0 loss to Wake Forest. The Chanticleers had scored in 58 straight games.

"The kids never quit," Chanticleers coach Gary Gilmore said. "I think they were more frustrated than anything, just trying to figure out how to solve this guy and get some runners on base.'

Arizona pitching has yielded 12 earned runs in 11 CWS games at TD Ameritrade Park, for a 1.06 ERA. The Wildcats have allowed six earned runs in six games this year with 54 strikeouts in 54 innings.

UP NEXT

Arizona can clinch its fifth national championship with a win in Game 2 on Tuesday night. Coastal Carolina will try to even the series and force a Game 3 on Wednesday.

Local golfer Cade Puryear's high school affiliation has recently been misidentified in Banner stories.

Although the 16-year-old's residence on the Sneds Tour is listed as Athens, Puryear is a key member of the Walker Valley golf team and is a member of the Cleveland Country Club.

The 6-foot left-hander won the Boys 16-18 division at the Sends Tour stop on his home CCC course last week, plus finished second at Springbrook in Niota earlier this month.

Puryear was also the runnerup in the same age bracket at the Southern States Junior Classic over the weekend.

He will be a junior at Walker Valley this fall and hopes to lead the Mustangs back to the TSSAA state tournament for a secondstraight year.

Durant, Anthony lead 12-player U.S. men's Olympic basketball

NEW YORK (AP) — Kyrie Irving took one last shot on the flight home from the NBA Finals, hoping LeBron James would play in the Olympics.

James isn't going to Rio, and neither are many more of basketball's best players.

The Americans think they'll be just fine with who they have.

"We should be heavily favored," Golden State's Klay Thompson said. "I mean, 12 NBA stars, very unselfish guys, very versatile team, we definitely should be favored. It's a disappointment if we don't win

The U.S. selected the roster Monday, led by Kevin Durant and Carmelo Anthony, it hopes can do that for the third straight time.

Durant and Anthony are the only players with Olympic experience after a number of stars, including James, decided to skip Rio.

Also chosen were: Golden State's Draymond Green and Harrison Barnes; Toronto's Kyle Lowry and DeMar DeRozan; Indiana's Paul Chicago's Jimmy George; Sacramento's DeMarcus Cousins and the Clippers' DeAndre Jordan.

Irving was the MVP of 2014 Basketball World Cup on a U.S. team that included Thompson, Cousins and DeRozan and easily won gold.

The Americans should roll into Rio as the favorites. Yet they won't look as imposing as expected after the withdrawals of NBA MVP Stephen Curry and All-Stars such as Russell Westbrook, Chris Paul and James Harden.

"As far as the talent goes and the level of play, I'm pretty sure that that's still going to be the same," Anthony said. "We don't have as many of the big-name guys that we've had before, but I think so far this is a great group of guys and they're hungry. They want to play."

USA Basketball chairman Jerry Colangelo said having a national team pool, which he began in 2005, always has the Americans ready for player losses. There were 31 players in this year's and he had to go deep into it — and eventually even beyond it — to find 12 as the usual factors that can knock players out were joined by the Zika virus and other concerns in Brazil.

Anthony said he talked to doctors and people who have been to Brazil about the risks of the mosquito-borne virus.

"Prior to this year, in the past we dealt with things like free agency, injuries, personal issues that might prevent someone from moving forward. This year it was exacerbated by circumstances beyond anyone's control, and that was the reality, the speculation and the circumstance in Colangelo said. "So somewhat more challenging, but at the end of the day, and this is important: This is not about who isn't here, this is about who is here."

Anthony becomes the first U.S. men's basketball player to appear in four Olympics. Durant set a U.S. record by averaging 19.5 points in London and also was the MVP when the U.S. won the 2010 world championship. "Shoot, when you're playing with the best players in the world, it makes it easy," Durant said. "I'm just going out there and playing my game. They take all the pressure off of me." Duke's Mike Krzyzewski will coach the Americans for the third and final time, tying Henry Iba's team record. He will lead a team with strong NBA credentials - nine were All-Stars this season — but a little short on international experience after the withdrawals. James would have joined tion. He pulled out last week after leading the Cleveland Cavaliers to the NBA championship. Irving said winning a gold medal would be even sweeter, and he attempted to convince James to chase it with him. "Hey, I tried," Irving said. "I tried to get him to come and after we won the championship told him - I was kind of nudging him on the plane, I was like, 'So are going to play USA?' He just didn't know at thThe heaviest losses came at the point guard spot, where Curry passed on making his Olympic debut after knee and ankle injuries in the playoffs. Former Olympians Paul and Westbrook also pulled out and what was a position of strength became so depleted that Lowry was added last week even though he wasn't even a member of the

Anthony with a fourth selec-

But Colangelo focused on the strength of the team that was selected, adding he and Krzyzewski are excited about the challenge of working with new faces.

"Their credentials speak for themselves and now it's just a matter of coach having some time with the group, because there's so many new people, just getting everyone to blend in," Colangelo said.

from Chattanooga to provide strength, athleticism, and rebounding to the Flames. The versatile Forward will be able to play multiple spots on the floor. Ryan chose Lee over interest from other schools including Tusculum, King, and The Citadel. The local product led the Purple Pounders with double-double averages of 18 points and 10 rebounds as a senior and helped Central to two consecutive state tournament appearances.

Leander Ridgeway, Freshman (Lexington, Ky. -Henry Clay High School)

A smooth-playing lefty from Kentucky, Ridgeway knows how to be a part of a winning program. The long-armed Wing player won three consecutive district championships at Henry Clay High School and will bring that mentality to the Flames. With his combination of length and athleticism, Ridgeway has the tools to become a great perimeter defender and attack in multiple ways offensively

Kevin Wharton-Price, Freshman (Huntersville, N.C. — South Lake Christian)

An athletic forward, Kevin comes to Lee after starring as a two-sport athlete at South Lake Christian. The 6-foot-6, 225pound athlete was imposing on both the basketball court and football field as a senior. During his senior season, KP averaged over 13 points and almost 9 rebounds per game. He will provide toughness to the Flames post position with a knack for offensive rebounding and hustle plays. Price chose Lee over interest from other schools including Catawba, UNC-Pembroke, and Anderson.

Jacob Hoffman, Freshman (Denmark; Greater Atlanta Christian School)

Known for his outside shooting ability, Jacob Hoffman appears to be a great fit for new head coach Bubba Smith's offensive attack. Hoffman comes to Lee from traditional Atlanta prep power GACS. A native of Denmark, Jacob's parents still reside in Europe. He came to the United States to pursue a basketball career and college education after 9th grade. His father, Pete, enjoyed a decade-long professional career in Denmark as well as a professional coaching career overseas. Hoffman experienced an undefeated season and AA State Championship in Georgia as a sophomore.

Parker Suedekum, Freshman (Brentwood -Brentwood Academy)

Parker is another addition to the Lee basketball program that comes from a program with a winning tradition.

Playing for legendary coach Hubie Smith at Brentwood Academy, Suedekum was part of back-to-back Division II State Champion teams his junior and senior seasons. Known as a smart player and true point guard, Parker was named to the State All-Tournament

Some fans want Messi to reconsider; others just sad

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - Some fans and players want him to reconsider. Other supporters on Monday were simply sad that Lionel Messi says he's quitting the Argentine national team.

Messi shocked his native country with his abrupt resignation from international soccer after Chile defeated Argentina 4-2 on penalties after a 0-0 draw on "The national team is over for me," Messi Told the Argentine network TyC Sports. "It's been four finals, it's not meant for me. I tried. It was the thing I wanted the most, but I couldn't get it, so I think it's over."

Messi lifted Argentina's first penalty kick over the crossbar, setting the stage for another loss in a final. Messi and Argentina lost to Brazil in the 2007 Copa final and to Germany in extra time in the 2014 World Cup final. They lost last year's Copa final to host Chile on penalty kicks after a 0-0 draw.

Messi moved to Barcelona in 2001 when he was 13, producing lots of hardware for the Catalan club. But many fans at home have criticized him for not leading the nation to a World Cup title, as Diego Maradona did in 1986.

"On top of everything, I missed the penalty kick," Messi told TyC. "I think this is best for everyone. First of all for me, and then for everyone. I think there are a lot of people who want this, who obviously are not satisfied, as we are not satisfied reaching a final and not winning it."

Fans gathered outside the downtown office of the Argentine Football Association, many torn by Messi's promised departure.

"I feel an enormous sadness, it tears my heart in two," said 29year-old Juan Pablo Pinasco. "It was the cup that he (Messi) had to win, more than anything it is something that he deserves and I just don't want him to leave the national team."

Another Argentine was more critical of Messi.

"He is the best, he is the best outside (of Argentina) but he just has no luck here," Guido Stanchi said. "That's it, he's got to go. The team doesn't help him. Now there has to be a change. Let some new players come, ones that have a bit more will."

Sergio Romero, Argentina's goalkeeper, said Messi spoke in the heat of the moment and he wants him to reconsider.

"It's sad because once again a beautiful chance slipped away," Romero said.

Without mentioning Messi's decision, Argentina President Mauricio Macri said on Twitter "that despite the sadness, we are very proud of the national team. They are great players."

Nicolas Russo, the president of the Argentine club Lanus, said the Argentine Football Association will try to change his mind.

"He has to stay," Russo said. Messi was speaking in the aftermath of the emotional defeat and could change his mind. The team was to arrive later Monday in Buenos Aires, where Messi is sure to be mobbed by reporters.

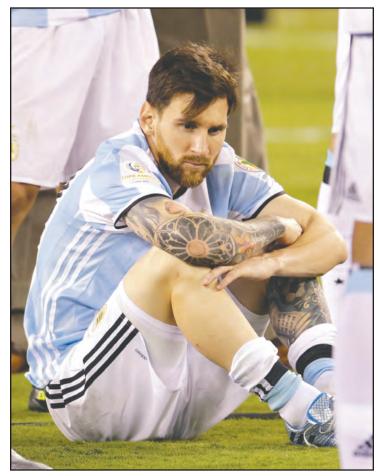

Argentina's next competitive match is a World Cup qualifier against Uruguay in September, and the top-ranked Albiceleste are considered among the early favorites to win the 2018 World Cup in Russia.

Argentina won the World Cup in 1978 and 1986, but took its last major title in 1993 with the Copa America championship.

Messi, who turned 29 on Friday, won under-20 and Olympic (under-23) titles with Argentina. He has led Barcelona to four Champions League and eight Spanish league titles, scoring 453 competitive goals in 531 games, including a La Liga-record

He is the national team's career leading scorer with 55 goals in 113 international appearances.

"That's it, I've already tried enough," he told TyC. "It pains me more than anyone not being able to be a champion with Argentina, but that's the way it is. It wasn't meant to be, and unfortunately I leave without having achieved it."

ARGENTINA'S Lionel Messi waits for trophy presentations after the Copa America Centenario championship soccer match. Sunday at MetLife Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J. Chile defeated Argentina 4-2 on penalty kicks to win the championship.

Zika fears keep Day out of Rio Olympics

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jason Day pulled out of the Olympics on Tuesday because of the Zika virus, costing golf its No. 1 player as it returns from a century-long absence at the games.

The sport has lost two of its biggest stars in the last week, adding to the perception that the Olympics are not a high priority. Rory McIlroy, a fourtime major champion, also said Zika will keep from competing in Rio de Janeiro.

"The sole reason for my decision is my concerns about the possible transmission of the Zika virus and the potential risks that it may present to my wife's future pregnancies and to future members of our family," Day said in a statement. "I have always placed my family in front of everything else in my

Day and his wife, Ellie, had second child in November, and he has said they want more children.

The 28-year-old Australian is the fifth golfer and one of the most prominent athletes to specifically cite Zika for not going to Rio. The others are McIlroy, Charl Schwartzel, Branden Grace and Marc Leishman, whose wife's immune system has not fully recovered after she nearly died last year of toxic shock syndrome.

American cyclist Tejay van Garderen is among a handful of athletes outside of golf who also cited Zika as the reason behind not going to Rio. Basketball star Stephen Curry didn't specifically cite Zika but noted that "other factors" played a role in his decision to skip the games.

Brazil has been the hardest hit of the approximately 60 countries that have reported an outbreak of Zika, the mosquito-borne virus linked to severe birth defects and possible neurological problems in adults.

Day first expressed concern a month ago at the Memorial and said he had been consulting doctors so he could make a smart choice.

"Medical experts have confirmed that while perhaps slight, a decision to compete in Rio absolutely comes with health risks to me and to my family," Day said. "While it has always been a major goal to compete in the Olympics on behalf of my country, playing golf cannot take precedent over the safety of our family. I will not place them at risk. ... I hope all golf and Olympics fans respect and understand my position."

Australia has three players in the top 50 in the world, and all of them have withdrawn — Day, Adam Scott (No. 8) and Leishman (No. 39). Next in line would be Scott Hend (No. 75) and Marcus Fraser (No. 81).

Day had been among the strongest proponents of competing in the Olympics, as had McIlroy and other young stars. But as the July 11 deadline nears for qualifying for Rio, some top golfers have been wavering.

Among the stars who plan to play or have not decided are Jordan Spieth, U.S. Open champion Dustin Johnson, Bubba Watson, Henrik Stenson of Sweden and Masters champion Danny Willett of England.

Golf already has lost three of the top 10 players in the world. Scott was the first to withdraw. He said Olympics were never his priority in a year in which the schedule is crammed with major championships with far more historical significant than an Olympic medal.

The sport has not been part of the Games since 1904 in St. Louis.

live on through the countless people she touched throughout her

So respected as a women's college coach was Summitt, she was viewed as being equally capable of coaching men and was occasionally mentioned as a candidate to do so. UT and NFL great Peyton Manning told Summitt he always wished he could have played for her. He alluded, if she had pursued that path, that she had the traits necessary to be a successful football coach as well.

"I've always been honored to call Pat Summitt my friend. She was always very supportive of my career and I enjoyed seeing her back at a Tennessee football game or when she would come to Indianapolis to see Tamika Catchings play. We would always get together and I made it a point when I came to Knoxville to visit with her," Manning said.

"She was one of the people I consulted with following my junior year when I was deciding whether to turn pro early or stay in college. She gave me some very valuable advice during that time. My teammates and I went to a lot of Lady Vols games when we were in school, and I really enjoyed watching her teams play.

"I just always appreciated Pat's friendship and support," he continued. "I was always impressed with how all of her former players spoke about her. You speak to people like Tamika Catchings or Chamique Holdsclaw, and they just talk about the role that Pat played in all their lives on and off the court. You can just tell the impact that she had on those players.

"It would have been a great experience to play for her. She could have coached any team, any sport, men's or women's. It wouldn't have mattered because Pat could flat out coach. I will miss her dearly, and I am honored to call her my friend. My thoughts and prayers are with Tyler and their entire family."

Summitt's passion, though, was developing young women into champions, graduates and successful citizens, and she did it better than anyone ever had. Her example served as motivation that girls could do anything they put their minds to if they were willing to put in the work. The growth in the game of basketball is just one area where her influence is evident.

The first NCAA basketball coach to reach the 1,000-win plateau, her victory total still stands as the most in NCAA Division I women's or men's hoops history. She accomplished that feat despite early retirement from the game on April 18, 2012, after revealing she was suffering from early-onset dementia, Alzheimer's type, less than a year earlier on Aug. 23, 2011.

Summitt served as head coach emeritus since 2012 and also devoted her time to raising awareness worldwide about Alzheimer's disease through the Pat Summitt Foundation and its highly-successful "We Back Pat" campaign. Her willingness to bravely share her fight against the illness allowed Summitt a platform where her courage impacted fundraising efforts and gave hope to millions who are affected directly demonstrated while facing her toughest foe earned her even greater admiration than she had attained as a hall of fame coach. President Barack Obama honored her with the Presidential Medal of Freedom. She received the Arthur Ashe Courage Award. The tributes continue to this day and will for some time to come.

During her illustrious career, Summitt's teams made a recordsetting 31-consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances, winning eight NCAA National Championships and finishing second five times while playing in 22 NCAA or AIAW Final Fours. UT recorded the very first three-peat in NCAA Division I women's basketball, seizing national titles in 1996, 1997 and 1998, with the third of those squads cruising to a school-best 39-0 record.

She also guided the Big Orange to 16 SEC regular-season titles and 16 SEC Tournaments, including victories in the first-ever SEC tourney in 1980 and her final one as head coach in 2012. Tennessee was a dominant 458-69 (.869) vs. SEC opponents during her tenure, including 69-17 (.795) during tourney play.

Summitt, who won silver as a player at the 1976 Olympics and coached the 1984 U.S. team to gold, directed 14 players at UT who made Olympic Teams. She developed 21 WBCA All-Americans and 39 All-SEC players. She sent 39 Lady Vols to the WNBA, including 15 drafted in the first round and three picked No. 1

Using the attributes of discipline, hard work and sacrifice she learned while doing chores as a child on her family's farm, Summitt taught her players to embrace and embody those traits and, along the way, established a code of conduct she called her "Definite Dozen."

They are: Respect yourself and others. Take full responsibility. Develop and demonstrate loyalty. Learn to be a great communicator. Discipline yourself so no one else has to. Make hard work your passion. Don't just work hard, work smart. Put the team before yourself. Make winning an attitude. Be a competitor. Change is a must. Handle success like you handle

Those tenets weren't tailored solely for the basketball court. Summitt knew they were applicable to the classroom and for the rest of the players' lives, ensuring that she was developing educated, self-sufficient young women to send into the world.

Furthermore, she empowered her players by providing a strong parental presence and creating a family atmosphere where studentathletes from all backgrounds felt

As a result, not only was Tennessee highly successful on the hardwood, the program was perfect in graduating players. All 122 Lady Vols under her watch who completed their eligibility at UT earned degrees.

At the time of her retirement, 78 individuals who were mentored in the UT program by Summitt occupied basketball coaching or administrative positions. Among them is Tennessee's current head coach, Holly Warlick, who played for Summitt from 1976-80 and coached beside her from 1985 to Summitt's accomplishments as one of the game's greatest teachers resulted in basketball courts being named in her honor (at Tennessee and her alma maters UT Martin and Cheatham County H.S.). She was named to no fewer than eight halls of fame, including the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame and the Women's Basketball Hall of Fame. Streets bear her name in Knoxville and Martin. A statue and plaza were constructed near Tennessee's Thompson-Boling Arena in 2013.

Just up the street on the UT campus from Pat Summitt Plaza resides another statue, the Torchbearer, whose outstretched arm grasps a torch perpetually aflame. The iconic monument in Circle Park symbolizes the university's Volunteer Creed, which states "One that beareth a torch shadoweth oneself to give light to

Let's make sure Pat doesn't hear us crying

The news broke about 15 minutes ago that Pat Summitt had died. For the past three days, we were told it was imminent, but I still didn't believe it would happen so soon.

I am desperately trying not to cry, but I'm not doing the best job right now.

Many of you are probably trying to contain your emotions as well, and I think I know why:

If she hears us crying, she may come back down here and kill us all.

"What are you trying to accomplish by doing that?" she might say. "Are you kid-

Or, she might glare at us like we were a referee who just called a 3-second violation against her center during a crucial point of a big game.

I had already decided I wasn't going to write this column. I figured I couldn't say anything original. And anyone else could say it way better than I could.

STORIES OF A WORLD GONE MAD

But I changed my mind. Let me share three observations.

As we all know, Pat won more games than any Division I coach in the history of the game — men or women. That's impressive. It's stunning, in fact. What makes it remarkable, however — and one of the real reasons we're all so sad this morning — is that she went about it the right way.

The words "Summitt," "NCAA," and "Investigation" never appeared in she same headline during her 38 years as a coach. Right off hand, I cannot think of any coach in any big-time college sport one who has been doing it very long with much success.

Beyond that, every single player who completed her eligibility under Pat at the University of Tennessee graduated.

Pat Summitt possessed an integrity that few people have. She played by the rules. She cared about her players as people off the court. She won with class and dignity. She lost with ... well, she didn't lose much, and she hated it.

And that leads to my second observation. I think somewhere in the back of my mind, I thought she might be the first person in the world to beat Alzheimer's. We have all been touched in some way by this most cruel of all the diseases. I have seen it firsthand, and it is mean, ugly and reprehensible.

But Pat's persona lent us to believe that maybe, just maybe, she could come out on top. In the end, she couldn't, but we all know she went down swinging. And somewhere in a metaphorical locker room, that case of Alzheimer's that had the gumption to attack Pat Summitt knows it picked the wrong fight.

Maybe a high-profile case such as this will lead to increased funding for medical research to put a stop to it. I don't want to sound insensitive, but putting on a purple ribbon isn't going to cut it. We need action. Pat would tell you that.

And finally, she could teach us all a thing or two about having a vision and refusing to stop until we see it through.

She became the Tennessee women's basketball coach immediately after graduation. Back then, the games were played in an old gym. The team had precious little funding (if any). Pat held a doughnut sale to pay for uniforms, then took them home to wash them.

By the time she retired, she had been

She did it because of a pure, unbridled passion for the game and for her players.

Are you even close to being that passionate about anything? I'm not. Not many of us are, I wouldn't suspect.

In the coming weeks, the accolades will ring far and wide as people step forward to praise Pat Summitt, but today, we're crying.

Just keep it down. We don't want her to hear us doing that.

As we blame 'The Other' for the Orlando tragedy woke up, like everyone human beings and we want to else, to tragedy on that I fateful Sunday morning.

Five minutes into my blearyeyed view of the CNN reports, I already saw how this would go. First, there would be a wringing of hands about guns. Then there would be attempts to identify a motive. If a Muslim was somehow involved, a search for motives would cease. There would be moving disavowals of violence from Muslim-American leaders, and Facebook or Twitter would fill up with comments about how "they" never do enough to disavow violence.

Even while they were doing

There would be gun-control advocates wondering why a civilian would get his hands on a military-style automatic weapon, and others who'd respond that the carnage could have been avoided if there were other civilians with military-style weapons allowed in that presumably gun-free

There would be the obligatory attack on President Obama if he didn't use the "right" words to describe the carnage, meaning that he didn't call it an attack of Islamic terror.

When it came out that the target was a gay club, people who have a thing against Christianity would be bummed because, darn it, they couldn't blame evangelical or Catholic haters for the violence. They'd like to blame Islam, but they wouldn't want to offend the wrong people.

And, this being an election year, the candidates would try to figure out a way to pick up electoral support, all the while pretending not to care about the polls.

My parents should have named me Cassandra, not Christine. All of this came to pass. Not that it makes me happy to have the playbook for these tragedies imprinted on my mind.

When something like this happens, there is always the hope that something new or better will emerge. One prays (in the secular sense) that cooler heads and voices will prevail. One prays (in the real sense) that this will be the last time anything similar happens (except for the news media, who exist for just such moments).

But there is always disappointment because we are

That "other" could be a responsible gun owner, if you think gun access is too easy and gun-control laws are too lax. That "other" could be a native-born U.S. citizen whose parents immigrated from Pakistan, and you think all refugees fleeing ISIS are actually jihadists in sheep's clothing. That "other" could be someone who opposes samesex marriage if you think any criticism of gays amounts to bigotry.

I've been to this dance too many times to believe we're capable of change. We are so

People who think a wall should be built blame jihad (or Mexicans) for mass murder, even when presented with the fact that many killers are native-born-and-bred. People who think any discussion of the intersection between violence and ethnicity or nationality is racist feel superior to those knuckle-dragging bigots, and discount their con-

And people who, like Hillary Clinton recently noted, think we should be able to "love who we love" think that anyone who defends their religious freedom to dissent is at best spouting hate speech and at worst, apologists for mass murder.

I'm sick of them all. What happened to the days when deaths were mourned, and fingers pointed afterwards when the heat of anger and despair had cooled to the equally painful but more manageable state of sad clarity? I think social media, including Facebook, Twitter iPhones, erased that possibility, forever.

We are pathetic, my friends, because we are predictable in the roles we play. It's not a Greek tragedy, but a reality Cassandra would recognize.

Striving to do a better job of looking for the positive

I am a "baby boomer." There have been many generation classifications before, since and even up to the present day "millennials."

Those fortunate to be born as Gun-control a "boomer" enjoyed the times of unrestrained optimism and completion of numerous projects just because we had an idea and chose to act upon our dreams. The "millennials" are, again in my opinion, inquisitive and extremely industrious, but have grown up in a vastly different America. This change in environment has accentuated the good and not so good.

The quest for knowledge is a great goal, but without an absolute, wisdom will always be iust beyond reach. The constant communication by phone, text and any number of the latest apps is admirable, but true relationships require conversation, not emotions. Respect for other people, laws and the environment is difficult to attain (much less understand) when respect for your family, parents and even yourself are missing. These are some observations of mine over the past few days and weeks from reading, real life and also some YouTube videos.

One of our professional vendors in Bradley County is a company known as Local Government Corporation. Its president had observed a similar situation, and spoke about people relearning the concept that a customer is the reason you have a job, and that you may be on the other side of the desk someday. And hopefully a great customer service attitude will be there for you.

I would like to add a few concepts that may also prove beneficial for us all to remember. Be polite. Say "thank you." Smile and show genuine interest when you ask how someone is doing and upon greeting them. A firm handshake while looking them in the eye and a suffix of "Sir" or "Ma'am" wouldn't hurt, either.

I know that social media is an important tool. But, it is just that, a tool to be used and not an all-consuming passion.

Many have found both fame and fortune in their exploits that would seem funny to a few observers, but if viewed in real life they would hopefully cause multiple reasons for concern.

Besides the language, a couple which caused me to cringe more than once were a pair of travelers who went around the world looking for ideas and instances to be "funny." Their first stop was in Britain, and they were attempting to get the "Queen's Guards" to break their stoic expression and level of decorum. Some 99 percent were unsuccessful, but they did result in making one guard break ranks and smile during their duties. This may have been fun for them, but not so much for the guard who is charged with a solemn duty to perform.

This sense of achievement was also chosen to be tried at a place of reverence, and vast patriotic meaning to the vast majority of our nation. The Tomb of the Unknown Soldier was not the place, the time nor the venue for the filming of what, to them, was supposed to be funny. They learned a valuable lesson of respect, honor and silence while at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier — not only from the soldier on guard, but also from visitors present at that

Am I picking on millennials? No. We all can learn, improve and strive to do a better job of looking for the positive.

I want to thank Bradley County residents of all ages who work each day to help others succeed, and who tell others of their appreciation for a "job well done."

I appreciate you for providing the example for others to emulate, for continuing to keep Bradley County Tennessee at its

Dear Resigned: We are so sorry your son married such an unkind, immature person. Also, that he is too cowardly to take a stand, fearful that she might leave. But that is highly unlikely. She sounds mercenary enough to think about it. It's good that you have other children to lean on. Our condolences.

Dear Annie: I just returned from a bridal shower and learned that a few of us were not invited to the wedding. I am a good friend of the bride and of her mother. The other women at my table said, "See you at the wedding." I stayed silent.

Dear Old-Fashioned: It is not OK to invite friends and family to a shower and not the wedding. (Work showers fall into a different category.) It is especially rude to ask these same people to bake for the event, unless you are charging them a fee. However, there is a possibility that the bride assumes you will be in attendance anyway since you are preparing the desserts. You might talk to the bride's mother and clear it up. We'd hate for there to be a misunderstanding.

TODAY IN HISTORY

(AP) — Today is Tuesday, June 28, the 180th day of 2016. There are 186 days left in the year. Highlights Today's History:

On June 28, 1778, the Revolutionary War Battle of Monmouth took place in New Jersey; from this battle arose the legend of "Molly Pitcher," a woman who was said to have carried water to colonial soldiers, then taken over firing her husband's cannon when he became injured.

On this date:

In 1836, the fourth president of the United States, James Madison, died in Montpelier, Virginia.

In 1838, Britain's Queen Victoria was crowned in Westminster Abbey.

In 1914, Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria and his wife, Sophie, were shot to death in Sarajevo by Serb nationalist Gavrilo Princip — an act which sparked World War I.

In 1919, the Treaty of Versailles was signed in France, ending the First World War. In Independence, Missouri, future president Harry S Truman married Elizabeth Virginia Wallace.

In 1939, Pan American Airways began regular trans-Atlantic air service with a flight that departed New York for Marseilles, France. In 1940, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Alien Registration Act, also known as the Smith Act, which required adult foreigners residing in the U.S. to be registered and fingerprinted. Corporate lawyer Wendell Willkie received the Republican presidential nomination at the party's convention in Philadelphia (U.S. Senate Minority Leader Charles McNary of Oregon was nominated for vice president).

Cleveland Summit eyed for potential redevelopment

By JORDAN HENSLEY Banner Intern

The Cleveland Summit apartments might be next on the list to undergo redevelopment downtown.

The complex at 44 Inman St. was formerly the historic Cherokee Hotel and currently serves as public housing.

During a voting session Monday, the Cleveland City Council approved reimbursing the Industrial Development Board $15,000 for a structural condition analysis to determine if the building is a good candidate for redevelop-

The idea was proposed to the City Council through a memo from Senior City Planner Corey Divel.

"Conversion of this site from a current subsidized housing complex to a redeveloped use based on market rates would be a critical step in raising surrounding property values, and act as a catalyst for further redevelopment along Church Street and the immediate area," Divel wrote.

Mayor Tom Rowland commented that he and Doug Berry, the Chamber of Commerce's vice president of economic development, are meeting with a prospective buyer for the property next week. Rowland said he will inform the Council on how the meeting goes at the next City Council meeting.

The Summit is owned by Emerald Housing, which is owned by Chris and headquartered in "The city has had an ongoing conversation with MainStreet [Cleveland] and there has been desire on a part of the businesses downtown to hopefully improve that affordable housing and to possibly take that Cherokee Hotel back to a boutique hotel or permanent housing like apartments or condominiums," Berry said.

To do that, knowing the condition of the building and its value is essential.

"We have to make sure there are no major structural flaws," said Berry. "We don't suspect any, but you can't take that for granted."

Barry also explained the $15,000 would not be spent all at once. The money is going to fund "third-party inspections by qualified engineers."

If it is found the building is feasible for redevelopment, a new public housing facility will be built in a different location for those families. Rowland and Berry confirmed it is in the works for an area on South Lee Highway to become the new home for residents of The Summit through the Section 8 public housing vouchers program.

"It would be a great improvement in quality of life for the residents to move to a more grounded, more traditional and modern facility," Berry said.

Once everything is approved, it is expected it would not take more than 24 months to build a new facility for Summit residents.

Redevelopment of The Summit back to a hotel has been a potential discussed by the Council for the past year. A market feasibility study was conducted by Hotel & Leisure Advisors on the potential success of a downtown hotel and conference based on the current and future market. The former Cherokee Hotel was listed as a potential location. However, the study listed the Old Woolen Mill as a better locame." Fivas said.

He also had an idea on the areas he wanted to focus on, if he became city manager.

"We need to invest in our infrastructure, for our industries and our possible retail growth," Fivas said.

Fivas served as the town manager for Indian Trail, N.C., from 2010 to 2015.

Prior to that, he was the city manager for Owosso, Mich. He has also worked as the executive director of downtown development for Owosso and assistant director of state affairs for Michigan Municipal League. He has also served as policy adviser to the Michigan State House of Representatives.

Fivas and his wife Julie have two children, Ellie and Gabbi. Both daughters will be in middle school. Some of Fivas' in-laws live in Loudon County.

The Council plans to hold annual reviews of the city manager with the first being scheduled to be complete by the end of February 2017. Annual reviews are held for every other city employee.

The City Council also created an assistant city manager/CFO position to replace the city clerk/finance director position by a unanimous vote Monday. The position will essentially oversee the same functions as the previous title. An update to the city staff organizational chart will be presented to the Council at a future meeting to reflect which assistant city manager is over which departments.

The Cleveland City Council also passed the final reading of an ordinance requiring two businesses operating as recycling centers in the wrong property zoning to close within two years, despite the pleas of two business owners and a petition of 600 customers.

"They think it is truly unfair," Larry D'Agata of Can It Recycling said.

The resolution was approved 5 to 2 with Councilmen Charlie McKenzie and Avery Johnson voting against it. The ordinance change had passed on first reading last month and then was delayed at the request of the D'Agatas of Can It Recycling, who own one of the recycling centers in question. The D'Agatas have hired attorney Allen Murphy to work with them on this matter. However, an option that had not previously been discussed did get some attention. The possibility of creating a zoning overlay, which could define specific zoning requirements for that section and legally allow recycling centers and salvage yards, was discussed. The two businesses in question would be defined as salvage yards, according to state law.

Councilman Bill Estes asked if the two businesses could seek a change to the commercial zoning to allow recycling centers or salvage yards "but maybe not across the whole board." The planning staff had previously mentioned that allowing such businesses in all commercial zones would not be recommend-

Jonathan Jobe, Development and Engineering director, said a zoning overlay would be the only option.

"We could overlay that South Lee Highway corridor," Jobe said.

Similar overlays exist for the Historic District, East Inman Street and the Interstate corridors. These overlays allow for requirements to be written for a specific area without changing what the zoning regulations of an already established zone.

Estes said this was an option the owners could pursue, if they chose, within the next two years. However, the Council did not give an indication of whether such an overlay would be approved.

business in different locations on South Lee Highway for more than two decades.

Murphy said the issue needed further discussion and asked for 60 days to talk with both business owners.

"I do not agree that the option presented by the Council is a reasonable one. I am a little surprised that with so many businessmen sitting on the Council that it was suggested. This is not a realistic option for anyone," said Ian Nelson of M&N Recycling, the other business that would be impacted.

Nelson said he started his business three years ago and entered a 10-year lease on the property. He asked the Council to give him the remaining seven years to operate, so that he could honor his lease. He said he needed this time to relocate and notify his customers.

Attorney Andy Brown, who represents a competing recycling company which is in the proper zoning, said his client first filed a complaint with the city that the two recycling centers on South Lee Highway were not in the correct zoning nearly a year ago.

"The first complaint was filed September 2015," Brown said. "We would like to push this matter to its conclusion."

State law does not give cities the right to refuse approval of a license for a legitimate business. In prior meetings, it had been stated that it is the responsibility of the business owners to ensure they are in the correct zoning.

"His (Brown's) client has a vested interest in putting my client out of business, and I think that is the thing that is most unseemly about this is you have a private citizen coming to the [Council] and putting them out of business," Murphy said. "You are being used by a private citizen to put two tax payers out of business."

The D'Agatas have recently purchased the property they operate from now. They have repeatedly said that simply starting over at another location is not an option.

Banks said he did not want The company has been in to set a precedent for other businesses to operate in the incorrect zoning by allowing these two to continue.

"I don't think this was done with any malice or ill intent on anyone's part," Murphy said.

The Council also unanimous-

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Federal prosecutors in South Carolina want to know what mitigating factors the defense plans to present during the sentencing phase of the death penalty trial of accused Charleston church shooter Dylann Roof.

Prosecutors note in court documents filed Monday such disclosure before the trial was ordered in the Boston Marathon bombing case. The documents said that providing the information beforehand will allow the government to investigate defense claims and also help seat an impartial Mitigating circumstances such as drug abuse or mental illness that the defense will rely on in sentencing are generally not required to be revealed until after a defendant is found guilty. If the defendant is found guilty, there is a second part of the trial to determine the sentence.

The government wants the judge to order the defense to reveal such factors by Oct. 1. The 22year-old Roof is scheduled to stand trial Nov. 7 in the slayings of nine black parishioners at Emanuel AME Church a year ago.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jay Richardson noted in the filings that U.S. District Judge George O'Toole Jr. ordered the defense to provide such mitigating factors before the trial in case of Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, who was sentenced to death for his role in the marathon bombings. Explosions at the race in Boston on April 15, 2013, killed three people and injured more than 260.

Richardson wrote that by providing adequate notice of the mitigating factors, the government will have time to investigate and rebut them in in court.

EU leaders plot a future without Britain

BRUSSELS (AP) — European Union leaders began plotting a future without Britain on Tuesday, urging the island nation and economic powerhouse to disentangle itself as fast as possible from the other 27 nations in the bloc to avoid extending the turmoil that has been roiling European and global markets.

EU Council President Donald Tusk said he was planning a special meeting of the EU leaders minus Cameron in Bratislava in September to chart a way ahead, after last week's referendum made abundantly clear that a business-as-usual approach to Britain leaving could possibly threaten the unity of the entire

On Tuesday, Prime Minister David Cameron held talks with European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker hours ahead of an EU summit in Brussels where the outgoing British leader is expected to say that exit talks might not be launched before October. There has been talk that Britain wants informal negotiations on what the U.K.'s future relations with Europe might look like before that happens — a notion many in the bloc have rejected.

Juncker and other European leaders insist they won't begin any talks until Britain invokes the Article 50 of the EU's Treaty of Lisbon, which sets in motion a two-year process to split away from the group designed to unify Europe after the horrors of World prolonged period of uncertainty." Juncker said he had banned his policy commissioners from holding any secret talks with Britain on its future until London triggers the exit clause.

In an unprecedented emergency session of the EU parliament, called after Britain voted Thursday to leave the union, Juncker demanded that Britain clarify its future.

"No notification. No negotiation," he said to resounding applause.

Tusk was already looking further ahead. He said the 27 EU heads and state and government — minus Cameron — would hold a special meeting in September to discuss "the new process of deeper reflection, a new impulse for Europe, a new future for Europe.

"We need a few weeks to prepare this process," Tusk said. The immediate reaction to the British departure — also called the Brexit — in the EU parliament was emotional Tuesday. Nigel Farage, a British member of the European Parliament and a leader in Britain's "leave" movement, was booed and jeered when he urged Europe to give Britain a good trade deal when it leaves, saying jobs in Germany's auto sector might be at stake if it does-

"Why don't we just be pragmatic, sensible, grown-up, reasonable ... and cut a sensible tarifffree deal?" he asked.

In a speech interrupted several times, Farage warned: "The UK will not be the last member state to leave the European Union."

Bearing out his words, French far-right leader Marine Le Pen called the British vote "an extraordinary victory for democracy — a slap for a European system based more and more on fear, blackmail and lies."

German Chancellor Angela Merkel, meanwhile, said Tuesday she will use "all her strength" to prevent the EU from drifting apart. At the EU summit, she and other leaders hoped to hear Cameron's position and chart the way forward. Cameron, head of the failed "remain" side, has said he will not be the leader to invoke Article 50, leaving that for his predecessor, who is to be chosen by October.

Britain's "leave" leaders hope the nation can still enjoy many perks of the EU internal market for business, while being able to deny EU citizens entry to the U.K. to address concerns about unlimited EU immigration. Merkel, head of the EU's biggest economy, made clear that isn't an

In an address to the German Parliament before heading to Brussels, Merkel said she expects that Britain will want to maintain "close relations" with the EU once it leaves, but warned it cannot expect a business-as-usual approach.

"Whoever wants to leave this family cannot expect to have no more obligations but to keep privileges," she said. "We will ensure that the negotiations are not carried out with the principle of cherry-picking."

She and other leaders joined Juncker in saying there can be no talks with Britain until it starts the formal procedure to

Michelle Obama and daughters in Africa to push girls' education

KAKATA, Liberia (AP) — First lady Michelle Obama visited a leadership camp for girls in Liberia to launch her latest Africa visit Monday, urging the teens in one of the world's poorest countries to keep fighting to stay in school.

With her own teenage daughters joining her, Obama told the girls she was "just so thrilled to be here with you.

"I'm here to shine a big bright light on you," she said.

Education for girls is the central neme of the first lady's tr also includes stops in Morocco and Spain. She was welcomed on her arrival in Liberia with a red carpet and traditional dancers.

In connection with the first lady's visit, USAID announced up to $27 million in funding in Liberia programming for Let Girls Learn, an initiative launched by Mrs. Obama and President Barack Obama last year.

The first lady is traveling with her mother and daughters Malia, 17, who recently graduated from high school, and Sasha, 15.

Liberia was battered by civil wars between 1989 and 2003. Ebola swept the country in 2014, killing more than 4,800. Schools were closed for months.

The country was founded as part of an effort to resettle freed American slaves and has deep ties to the United States. The country's oldest vocational high school, located in Kakata, is named for African-American civil rights activist Booker Washington.

The school suspended mid-term exams scheduled to start Monday "to allow the students to give Mrs. Obama a rousing welcome to appreciate what the United States has done for us," principal Harris Tarnue said.

Lebanese army detains 103 Syrians in wake of bombings

BEIRUT (AP) — Lebanese troops detained 103 Syrians for illegal entry into the country in a security sweep Tuesday, a day after a series of deadly bombings struck a village near the Syrian border, the military said.

The government warned of a mounting challenge in tiny Lebanon, which abuts the wartorn Syria, underlining the magnitude of Monday's attack that saw nine bombings, eight of them from suicide attackers, strike in the small Christian village of Qaa, killing five people.

The attack on the Lebanese national security and the unfamiliar manner in which it was executed usher in a new kind of phase in the state's confrontation with the dark forces of terrorism," a Cabinet statement

The bombings triggered fear and panic among Qaa's residents and a deepening sense of foreboding in Lebanon, which has grappled for over five years with spillovers from Syria's civil war.

Tuesday was declared a national day of mourning and authorities postponed funerals for the five killed in Monday's bombings, citing security reasons. A major religious event scheduled in the capital, Beirut, by the militant Hezbollah group was also postponed.

Also citing security concerns, the ministry of culture postponed the opening of the Bacchus Temple, part of the famed ruins of Baalbek. A troupe of Syrian actors roaming the Bekaa Valley with a performance about refugee woes postponed its tour. A limited curfew was imposed in Qaa and the surrounding area.

The army said it carried out security raids in six areas in the Baalbek region, which has many informal Syrian refugee settlements. It said nine motorcycles and two vehicles were confiscated and two Lebanese were arrested with illegal weapons.

Monday's explosions, four in the early morning and five at night, also wounded nearly 30 in Qaa. Later in the day, two bombers blew themselves up outside the village church as people gathered for funerals of those killed earlier Monday.

Israel bans access for non-Muslims to Jerusalem holy site

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli police on Tuesday banned non-Muslims from a contentious Jerusalem holy site until the end of the Muslim holy month of Ramadan following two days of clashes with Palestinian rioters at the site.

Police spokesman Micky Rosenfeld said rocks and other objects were hurled toward police forces and Jewish worshippers in a nearby plaza. A 73-year-old woman was lightly wounded and police arrested 16 suspects in the disturbances that have been going on for three days, Rosenfeld said.

As a result, police decided to close access to Jewish worshippers and other visitors for the remainder of the week to prevent tensions with Muslim worshippers until Ramadan is over.

Since Sunday, Palestinians had holed up in the Al-Agsa Mosque atop the mount and attacked officers with fireworks and other objects they had stockpiled inside.

The mosque is part of a compound sacred to both Muslims and Jews. Muslims refer to it as the Noble Sanctuary, where they believe the Prophet Muhammad embarked on a night journey to heaven, while Jews refer to it s the Temple Mount, where the two Jewish temples stood in biblical Violence had erupted at the site in mid-September before spreading elsewhere. Since then Palestinians have carried out dozens of attacks, including stabbings, shootings and car ramming assaults, killing 32 Israelis and two visiting Americans. About 200

Palestinians have been killed during that time, most identified by Israel as attackers.

The unrest has led to renewed calls for peace talks, which last broke down more than two years

Also Tuesday, visiting U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon told Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu that while he understood Israel's security concerns, any measures it took would not "solve the underlying causes of the cycles of violence' that have plagued the region.

"I encourage you to take the courageous steps necessary to prevent a one-state reality of perpetual conflict that is incompatible with realizing the national aspirations of Israeli and Palestinian people," Ban said, speaking in Jerusalem alongside Netanyahu.

Netanyahu asked Ban to use his final six months in office to rectify what he called the United Nations' unfair treatment of Israel. He singled out the U.N. Human Rights Council, which he said always condemns Israel, the "country that does more to promote and protect human rights and liberal values than any other in the blood-soaked Middle

"Our progressive democracy has faced more country specific resolutions more country specific condemnation at the UN Human Rights Council than all the other countries combined," Netanyahu said. "And I believe that this is a profound betrayal of the United Nation's noble mandate."

CONGRESSIONAL candidate Rick Tyler talked Monday afternoon about "an assault" on the First Amendment, which he said occurred when his billboards were removed without his approval. Tyler stands in front of where the "Make America Great Again" billboard in Polk County was located.

Candidate claims billboard removal violated his First Amendment rights

Banner Staff Writer

The removal of two billboards without permission is a violation of the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, according to congressional candidate Rick Tyler.

He said he plans to replace the billboards, though not in the same place, and has other plans, including a bus with the billboard messaging on the sides. He said he also will be placing a cross at the site of the "Make America White Again" billboard on U.S. Highway 411 in Polk County that says "Rest In Peace, First Amendment."

Tyler mentioned these issues at a news conference held Monday afternoon at the billboard site between Ocoee and Benton. He said he is very distraught that the two billboards — the second one on U.S. Highway 64 which had Martin Luther King's "I Have a Dream" quote on it, with the White House surrounded by Confederate flags — were taken down. Tyler said the billboard in Bradley County was removed after the owner received threats he described as "terrorist"-

"Just imagine if this had happened to a black candidate. I would be right there fighting for his or her First Amendment," he said.

Even though the enemies of the First Amendment have been more shrill and more bellicose by far, I can assure you that here, especially in Polk County but in fact all throughout the 3rd District here in East Tennessee, that there are more people who resonate with the 'Make America White Again' message than not," Tyler said.

"I hope that any who hears my message understands whether you like Rick Tyler or not, whether you agree with what I say or not, that this is a irontal assault on the First Amendment," he said.

"I didn't say that I don't like people of color, but that very first reporter I spoke with ... my actual words were that I bore no animosity toward non-whites," he stated.

Tyler said that many have accused him of being a racist. That, he said, could not be further from the truth.

"What do they mean? It seems that nobody can define racism in a coherent, systematical manner," he said.

He said that someone who promotes "Black Lives Matter" is classified as a person "who is merely expressing healthy racial pride." He said this a double standard that has gone unchallenged.

"And that time is over, because I am challenging that double standard," Tyler said. "I have been judged as a hater, and the only thing that I truly hate is the wickedness, the corruption, the filth and the perversion that have come to typify this modern culture that are living in today.

That challenge, as promoted in his billboards, website and personal appearances, has not gone unnoticed.

"Many of these hyper-enraged individuals would like to push a button that would obliterate my existence," Tyler said. Tyler said that he plans to place on his website how he plans to defeat incumbent Chuck Fleischmann with as little as 34 percent of the vote. He also plans a fundraiser where a prize of an AR-style assault weapon will be given away. Tyler displayed that unloaded weapon at Monday's news conference.

Commission hears updates on budget prior to final vote

Banner Staff Writer

With the work of preparing a budget in the rearview mirror and the Fourth of July holiday ahead, the Bradley County Commission had little to do during its Monday night work ses-

The 10-minute meeting included County Mayor D. Gary Davis presenting the final copy of the budget which will get a vote during the Commission's meeting the evening of July 5.

Commissioner Johnny Mull said he has talked to members of Cleveland Board of Education concerning a countyissued bond for energy-efficiency equipment upgrades for Bradley County Schools.

The county school system

"I think we may be able to find something that will work. — Johnny Mull plans to borrow $18 million and pay it back over 20 years with the energy savings from the more efficient equipment.

Under normal circumstances, the city school system would receive approximately a third of the amount borrowed.

The County Commission sent a letter to the city asking for a waiver for this particular issue.

The county's argument is in this instance the county school system will be paying the bond with funds it has already received through the normal process which is already split with the city.

A school system, by statute, is not allowed to issue bonds. It must be done by its financing agent, which in this case is the Commission. The Cleveland City Council passed on the issue last week, wanting more information. Mull said he was planning to meet with County Attorney Crystal Freiberg and Scott Bennett, counsel for the county school system.

"I think we may be able to find something that will work," Mull

Commissioner Milan Blake voiced a reminder that the open window for residents to register to vote is July 5.

State primaries as well as city of Cleveland elections will be held Aug. 4. The only county office on the ballot will be for assessor of property.

High court overturns former Virginia governor's conviction

WASHINGTON (AP) — A unanimous Supreme Court on Monday threw out the bribery conviction of former Virginia Gov. Bob McDonnell in a ruling that could make it tougher to prosecute elected officials accused of cor-

Chief Justice John Roberts said McDonnell's conduct in accepting more than $165,000 in gifts and loans from a wealthy businessman in exchange for promoting a dietary supplement may have been "distasteful" or even "tawdry," but didn't necessarily violate federal bribery laws.

McDonnell, once a rising star in the Republican Party, was found guilty in 2014 and sentenced to two years in prison, but was allowed to remain free while the justices weighed his appeal. The case now returns to lower courts to decide whether prosecutors have enough evidence to try McDonnell again.

At issue was a law that bars public officials from taking gifts in exchange for "official action." McDonnell said he never took any official action to benefit Star Scientific Inc. CEO Jonnie Williams or pressured other state officials to do so. McDonnell claims he did nothing except set up meetings and make some calls for constituent who asked for Prosecutors insisted that McDonnell accepted personal benefits with the understanding that he would use the power of the governor's office to help Williams.

But Roberts agreed with McDonnell that the instructions to his trial jury about what constitutes "official acts" was so broad that it could include virtually any action a public official might take while in office. That could leave politicians across the country subject to the whims of prosecutors, he said.

"Setting up a meeting, talking to another official, or organizing an event (or agreeing to do so) without more —does not fit that definition of official act," Roberts

"There is no doubt that this Campaign Legal Center, said the case is distasteful; it may be worse than that," he wrote. "But our concern is not with tawdry tales of Ferraris, Rolexes and ball gowns," a reference to some of the expensive gifts McDonnell received. "It is instead with the broader legal implications of the government's boundless interpretation of the federal bribery

In a statement, McDonnell thanked the justices and said he has not and would not "betray the sacred trust" of the Virginia people. He said he hoped the matter will soon be over so that he and his family can begin to rebuild their lives. McDonnell's attorney Noel Francisco called the decision a "home run" and said it was unlikely a new trial would go forward.

The Justice Department declined to comment.

McDonnell's wife, Maureen, also was convicted of corruption and was sentenced to a year in prison. Her appeal has been on hold while the Supreme Court considered her husband's case. Her attorney, William Burck, said Monday's ruling "requires that her conviction immediately be tossed out as well."

In his opinion, Roberts noted that McDonnell had won the support of several influential former Democrats and Republicans — as well as dozens of state attorneys general. Those officials told the court that upholding McDonnell's conviction would cripple the ability of elected officials to do their

The ruling could affect the cases of governors, senators and other elected officials who either are under indictment or have been convicted. In New York, for example, a federal judge said last month that former Assembly Speaker Sheldon Silver, convicted of illegally pocketing $5 million, could wait until after the Supreme Court ruling to report to

The U.S. Attorney's office in the Southern District of New York issued a statement Monday saying Silver's case satisfies the high court's standards.

Tara Malloy, deputy executive director of the watchdog group ruling "makes it even more difficult to protect our democracy from attempts by officeholders to peddle political access and influence to the highest bidder."

There is no dispute that McDonnell received multiple payments and gifts from Williams, which was not illegal at the time under Virginia ethics laws.

The gifts included nearly $20,000 in designer clothing and accessories for McDonnell's wife, a $6,500 engraved Rolex watch, $15,000 in catering for their daughter's wedding, and free family vacations and golf trips for their boys. Williams also provided three loans totaling $120,000.

As the gifts came in, McDonnell helped set up meetings with state health officials, appeared at promotional events and even hosted a launch luncheon for the dietary supplement at the governor's mansion. Williams was seeking state money and the credibility of Virginia's universities to perform clinical research that would support his company's drug.

A federal appeals court unanimously had upheld the former governor's convictions last year.

McDonnell insists that he never put any pressure on state officials and that Williams ultimately never got the official action he wanted — state funding for medical studies on the dietary White House attorneys — both pills. The former governor argued the Justice Department was unfairly criminalizing "everyday acts" that are a typical part of the Roberts agreed that the government's position "could cast a pall of potential prosecution" over public officials interacting with the people they serve.

"The basic compact underlying representative government assumes that public officials will hear from their constituents and act appropriately on their concerns," Roberts said.

Some experts said the ruling may not be a major obstacle to future corruption prosecutions.

Charles James, a former federal prosecutor now in private practice, said the McDonnell case was a "rather aggressive and expansive view" of bribery laws and predicted more routine cases "will still be fodder for federal prosecu-

With a 75-54 victory against Purdue on March 22, 2005, she earned her 880th victory, moving her past North Carolina's Dean Smith as the all-time winningest coach in NCAA history. She earned her 1,000th career win with a 73-43 victory against Georgia on Feb. 5, 2009.

Summitt won 16 Southeastern Conference regular season titles, as well as 16 conference tournament titles. She was an eight-time SEC coach of the year and seventime NCAA coach of the year. She also coached the U.S. women's Olympic team to the 1984 gold medal.

Summitt's greatest adversary on the court was Auriemma. The two teams played 22 times from 1995-2007. Summitt ended the series after the 2007

"Pat's vision for the game of women's basketball and her relentless drive pushed the game to a new level and made it possible for the rest of us to accomplish what we did,"

Auriemma said at the time of her retirement.

In 1999, Summitt was inducted as part of the inaugural class of the Women's Basketball Hall of Fame. She made the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame a year later. In 2013, she also was given the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor.

Summitt was such a competitor that she refused to let a pilot land in Virginia when she went into labor while on a recruiting trip in 1990. Virginia had beaten her Lady Vols a few months earlier, preventing them from playing for a national title on their home floor.

But it was only in 2012 when being honored with the Arthur Ashe Courage Award that Summitt shared she had six miscarriages before giving birth to her son, Tyler.

She was born June 14, 1952. in Henrietta, Tennessee, and graduated from Cheatham County Central High School just west of Nashville. She played college basketball at the University of Tennessee at Martin where she received her bachelor's degree in physical education. She was the co-captain of the 1976 U.S. Olympic

After playing at UT Martin, she was hired as a graduate assistant at Tennessee and took over when the previous head coach left. She wrote a motivational book

"It's hard to pinpoint the exact day that I first noticed something wrong," Summitt wrote. "Over the course of a year, from 2010 to 2011, I began to experience a troubling series of lapses. I had to ask people to remind me of the same things, over and over. I'd ask three times in the space of an hour, What time is my meeting again?' - and then be late." Summitt started a foundation

Earlier this year, Summitt moved out of her home into an upscale retirement resort when her regular home underwent renovations.

Summitt is the only person to have two courts used by NCAA Division I basketball teams named in her honor: "Pat Head Summitt Court" at the University of Tennessee-Martin, and "The Summitt" at the University of Tennessee-Knoxville. She also has two streets named after her: "Pat Summitt Street" on the University of Tennessee-Knoxville campus and "Pat Head Summitt Avenue" on the University of Tennessee-Martin campus.

She is survived by son Tyler Summitt. He said a private funeral and burial will be held in Middle Tennessee and asked that the family's privacy be respected. A public memorial service is being planned for Thompson-Boling Arena.

enforcement officers.

If passed, a misdemeanor crime will be charged carrying a fine of $500 for accidental publication of the home address of a member of law enforcement, and $2,000 if intentional without the permission of the law enforcement officer.

Green and White are spear- a heading a bill addressing the designation of "hate crime" assigned to the killing or attempted killing of an individual due to the actual or perceived employment as a law enforcement officer.

The crime would be classified as a Class A felony with the presumptive sentence awarded at the maximum of the range permitted. Gardenhire and McCormick have authored legislation which if passed would elevate the assault of a law enforcement officer from a Class A or B misdemeanor to a Class E felony.

It was also increase the fine of up to $5,000 for an assault. and up to $15,000 for an aggravated assault.

"To honor those who protect and serve the public daily through their willing sacrifice is a duty we must fulfill," Gardenhire said. "Their safety in fighting crime is critical to our own."

The lawmakers have created website tnbluelivesmatter.com - with more details on the legislation, as well as a space where citizens can "submit a hero" by recognizing a fallen law enforcement officer.
