Farm Bureau: advocating for farmers Dairy Discovery Day June 18

By Duane Martin

Delaware County Farm Bureau, along with its parent organizations American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) and New York Farm Bureau (NYFB) have been lobbying on behalf of dairy and non-dairy farmer members alike. Members have lobbied in person and virtually, depending on circumstances.

Dairy

As part of the effort to promote and educate the public about dairy farming, Delaware County Farm Bureau is working with the Mattson family, owners of Harmonie Farm in Downsville, Cooperative Extension of Delaware County and Watershed Agricultural Council for the Delaware County Dairy Discovery Day on Saturday, June 18 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The event includes four education stations: cow and calf health care, cow and calf feeding and nutrition, field crops, manure labeling of milk and dairy products and will prohibit labeling of nut and plantbased manufactured food products as milk or dairy products.

Farm Bureau is working on a series of bills to reintroduce both unflavored and flavored (chocolate and strawberry) milk back to schools. Whole and flavored milk were barred from public schools breakfast and lunch programs to combat child obesity. Schools are permitted to offer 1% fat or fat-free milk as part of the meal program. In New York, Assemblyman Chris Tague has introduced a series of bills to reintroduce whole and 2% milk back in schools.

Two congressional bills are also pending to address milk in schools: "Whole Milk for Health Kids Act" and the "School Milk Nutrition Act."

Regulations

Farm Bureaus are also in negotiation with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and Army products and meat) claiming to be organic have not always been raised with organic practices, placing American organic farmers at a disadvantage and misrepresenting the label to consumers. Farm Bureau is working to have import rules to protect American farmers and ranchers and consumers.

Other regulations:

• Ensure cell and plant based "meats" and "eggs" are labeled with all ingredients.

• Reform conservation rules, decision making process and appeals process.

• Secure the southern border to protect farms and ranches from damage and disease threat to crops and livestock, as well as criminal acts and threats from illegal immigration, drug and human traffic.

Climate Change

Farmers are often on the front line using climate smart technology and science-proven solutions, technologies and practices to protect the environment. American agriculture accounts for 10.2% of American greenhouse gas emissions and dairy and beef account for less 1.5% and American animal agriculture 3%, according to Farm Bureau. Farming practices such as pasture, no-till planting and cover crops, along with the large amount of forest and woods owned by farmers and ranchers, help offset emissions.

This past August, United States Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack announced a $1 billion investment plan called Climate Smart Commodities provides financial and technical assistance for farmers who voluntary implement climate smart practices.

Farm Bureau is also supporting the Grow Climate Solutions Act which encourages voluntary climate friendly farming practices through financial and technical assistance, research for production methods, farm produced renewable energy sources, a farmer certification program for marketing food and farm products, and a grant program to buy equipment such as no-till planters and seeders.

Supply Chain and Trade

Farm Bureau is working to:

 Expand meat processing for small and medium meat processors with grants and low interest loans.

 Add more meat inspectors.

• Pass the Ocean Shipping Reform Act, which prohibits maritime shippers from denying cargo containers for American exporters. The Act requires that late fees charged to importers for delayed unloading are warranted and assess fines to shippers who unreasonably charge for containers.

• Ensure China complies with the agreement to buy $80 billion in American farm products and reduce its tariffs and regulations on American imports.

• Enforcement of the settlement with Canada over Canada's tariff restrictions of American dairy imports.

• Expand American cheese and dairy exports to Mexico.

Taxes

Farm Bureau is working to:

• Keep estate tax level at $11.7 million.

• Repeal estate taxes.

• Oppose any changes to capital gains taxes.

Farm Bureau is working to lav the ground work for the 2023 Farm Bill. Part of the work is to keep current funding levels and also reform the milk marketing system so it is fairer to dairy farmers in New York.

and the environment, and farm machinery. Between 10 - 11 a.m., visitors can see cows being milked. The event is free. For more information call Delaware County Farm Bureau President Barb Hanselman at 607-538-9633.

Dairy Legislation

Farm Bureau is working to pass the Dairy Pride Act, which, if passed, will set food standards for the Corps of Engineers to resolve disputes abut the federal Waters of the U.S. rule which is seen by farmers as prohibitive and excessively restrictive to farming.

Farm Bureau is also pursuing the finalizing and enforcement of the Organic Origin of Livestock and Pasture Rule. Imported livestock and livestock products (milk, dairy

The benefits of including dairy in your diet

A well-balanced diet has long been touted as a necessary component to a healthy lifestyle. When combined with routine exercise, a well-balanced diet can improve quality of life and reduce a person's risk for various diseases.

No well-balanced diet is complete without dairy. While many people may immediately associate milk with dairy, dairy products are much more diverse than that. In fact, including various dairy products in vour diet can provide a host of diverse health benefits

Dairy products are nutrient-rich

The United States Department of Agriculture notes that dairy products provide a host of nutrients that are vital to overall health.

• Calcium: The nutrient most often linked to dairy, calcium is vital for building strong bones and healthy teeth. Dairy also helps to maintain bone mass, helping men and women combat age-related bone loss.

• Potassium: Dairy products such as yogurt, fluid milk and soy milk are good sources of potassium. That's beneficial because diets rich in potassium help men and women maintain healthy blood pressures.

• Vitamin D: Like calcium, vitamin D is widely associated with dairy, particularly milk. Vitamin D helps bodies build and maintain strong bones, and products such as fluid milk and soy milk are great sources of vitamin D. Yogurts and cereals fortified with vitamin D also can be great sources of this valuable vitamin.

Health benefits

Osteoporosis is a condition in which a person's bones become fragile and brittle due to loss of tissue. Age is a risk factor for osteoporosis, but a poor diet that does not include sufficient amounts of dairy also can increase a person's risk for osteoporosis.

The Department of Agriculture notes that dairy can help men and women lower their risk for ailments other than osteoporosis. Adequate dairy intake has been associated with a reduced risk for cardiovascular disease and type 2 diabetes.

Athletes may be especially motivated to consume dairy, as its effect on bone strength and maintenance can help them reduce their risk for injury while practicing and competing.

Adolescents and children can benefit greatly from diets that contain adequate amounts of dairy. Bone mass is built during childhood and adolescence, so foods such as dairy that promote bone health can help children and teenagers develop strong, healthy bones.

In regard to which dairy products to include in one's diet, the Department of Agriculture notes the importance of avoiding foods that are high in saturated fat. Dairy products high in saturated fats can contribute to high amounts of "bad" cholesterol in the blood, increasing a person's risk for coronary heart disease. Low-fat dairy products make for a healthy alternative to dairy that is high in saturated fats, and men and women can discuss such products with their physicians.

No balanced diet is complete without dairy, which benefits the body in myriad ways.

There is no moo-staking the facts about dairy:

• The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and Department of Health and Human Services (HSS) released the 2020-2025 Dietary Guidelines for Americans (DGA), which reinforces the importance of consuming three daily servings of dairy foods like milk, yogurt and cheese.

• The new DGA guidelines propose three different healthy eating patterns and dairy foods are a part of all three. Dairy is also highlighted for providing three of the four nutrients that are typically lacking in American diets: calcium, potassium and vitamin D.

• Dairy's unique combination of nutrients plays key roles in preventing heart disease, obesity, high blood pressure, diabetes and osteoporosis. Dairy is important for building strong bones and teeth.

• Adding milk with meals is an easy and delicious way to get the 13 essential nutrients your body needs, including calcium, vitamin D and potassium.

• Cow's milk offers a superior nutrient package over most alternative beverages including almond, rice, oat and coconut.

• Most milk alternative drinks have only half the nutrients of real milk and cost nearly twice as much.

• Both organic and regular dairy foods contain the same essential nutrients key to a healthy and balanced diet.

• People who are sensitive to lactose can consume dairy foods that are lactosereduced or lactose-free.

7 ways to enjoy more dairy

For some, butter is a mealtime staple. It melts over hot mashed potatoes, flavors dinner rolls and dresses up veggies.

And did you know you can make it from scratch? It's a lot of fun to make at home, especially if you're with kids who like to jump, shake and wiggle. Make their energy productive!

An electric hand or a stand mixer does the trick too.

Either way, here's what you'll need to make your own butter:

Ingredients

Refrigerated, cold heavy whipping cream

Optional: Sea salt or other flavorful additions like lemon zest, chopped herbs

or honey Homemade Butter Recipe Tips

Here's a tip: If you start with one quart of cream (32 ounces), you'll make about one pound of butter (16 ounces, or four sticks) and two cups of buttermilk. "Shake It Up" Method milk pools into the bottom of the bowl.

6. Pour that liquid, or "buttermilk," from the bowl. Put it aside for cooking, baking and even drinking.

7. Use a rubber spatula to press the butter against the bowl, squeezing out as much of the remaining liquid as possible.

8. Add about one-half cup of ice water to the butter, then press the butter and water against the side of the bowl. This part of the process, called washing, helps keep the butter from spoiling. Pour off the cloudy liquid and repeat the process two or three more times until the water becomes less cloudy.

9. Continue to knead the butter against the side of the bowl until all liquid is pressed out.

10. Optional: flavor the butter with a little sea salt, or add lemon zest, chopped herbs, or honey. You could also cut the butter into fun shapes with holiday-themed cookie cutters. it will gain stiff peaks.

4. After that, the cream separates into soft clumps of butterfat and liquid. Soon the butter clumps together, and the watery milk pools to the bottom of the bowl. It takes about 10 minutes.

5. Pour that liquid, or "buttermilk," from the bowl. Put it aside for cooking, baking and even drinking.

6. Turn your mixer back on and blend for a few more minutes to extract more liquid. Pour it out as before.

7. Use a rubber spatula to press the butter against the bowl to squeeze out as much remaining liquid as possible.

8. Add about one-half cup of ice water to the butter, then press the butter and water against the side of the bowl. This part of the process, called washing, helps keep the butter from spoiling. Pour off the cloudy liquid and repeat the process two or three more times until the water becomes less cloudy.

9. Continue to knead the butter against the side of the bowl until all liquid is pressed out.

10. Optional: flavor the butter with a little sea salt, or add lemon zest, chopped herbs, or honey. You could also cut the butter into fun shapes with holiday-themed cookie cutters.

11. Now it's time to package it. If you'd like, you can wrap it in parchment paper because the butter won't stick to the parchment. Then place the parchment in an airtight container to keep it fresh.

12. Refrigerate the butter up to one week or freeze it up to six months.

Dairy benefits the body in various ways. Those who may be wondering how to incorporate more dairy into their diets and/or individuals who have been advised to do so by a doctor or nutritionist can consider these handy tips.

1. Sprinkle on some cheese. Cheese has less lactose than other dairy products, making it easier on the stomach for those who may have issues consuming dairy. Consider sprinkling some parmesan cheese on an apple or popcorn for an afternoon snack, or have an ounce of cheddar with a small portion of nuts for calcium and protein.

2. Top off meals. Fruit salads, oatmeal or even a baked potato can be enhanced with low-fat yogurt instead of other fat-heavy or sugary toppings like whipped or sour creams.

3. Add milk to coffee. While some people simply like the taste of coffee served black, adding milk to one's morning or afternoon brew is an easy way to get a serving of dairy each day.

4. Finish your morning milk. Add a full serving of milk to that bowl of cereal. When the cereal is gone, sip the rest of the milk for a sweet treat.

5. Try evaporated milk. Heavy cream can add five grams of fat and 50 calories in just one tablespoon. In lieu of heavy cream, opt for fat-free evaporated milk in soups and other recipes that call for cream. Evaporated milk provides the creaminess of dairy without the excessive calories.

6. Try a kefir smoothie. Fermented kefir has roughly 15 to 20 times as many probiotics as yogurt. Probiotics benefit gut health, so substitute kefir in place of yogurt when making smoothies and other dairy drinks for a healthy boost.

7. Swap your spread. Switch out mayonnaise or mustard on sandwiches for yogurt or ricotta cheese. Add herbs or lemon juice to dairy to amp up flavor. 1. Pour your cream into a 40-oz. jar. Leave about a quarter of the jar empty so there's enough space for the cream to move around.

2. Begin to shake, shake, shake it!

3. After five minutes, you'll notice the cream thickens. After another 5 to 10 minutes, it will feel as if there's no more room in the jar. But keep shaking! After 15 to 30 minutes of non-stop shaking, you'll see the butterfat separate from the liquid.

4. Once this happens, pour everything from the jar into a bowl.

5. The butter will clump together, and the watery

11. Now it's time to package it. If you'd like, you can wrap it in parchment paper because the butter won't stick to the parchment. Then place the parchment in an airtight container to keep it fresh.

12. Refrigerate the butter up to one week or freeze it up to six months.

Electric Hand Mixer Method

1. Pour cream into a bowl.

 2. Turn hand mixer to medium speed and blend.
 3. As you blend, you'll start to see the cream transform. First it will become fluffy whipped cream, then

Did you know?

If the 1927 song "I Scream, You Scream, We All Scream for Ice Cream" by Howard Johnson, Billy Moll and Robert A. King is correct, then the world has been a noisy place for quite some time. Though the exact origins of ice cream are unknown, historians agree this popular treat has been around for a very, very long time. The International Dairy Foods Association says the origins of ice cream may reach as far back as the second century B.C. Though he wasn't around back then, the fifth Roman Emperor Nero, who ruled from 54 to 68 A.D., might have been so fond of iced treats that he routinely sent runners into the Apennine Mountains to retrieve snow that he would then flavor with fruits and juices. That tale might be apocryphal, but there's no denying ice treats have been enjoyed for a long time. And based on a 2018 report from Grand View Research, Inc. that projected the global ice cream market would reach roughly $79 billion by 2025, it's fair to say ice cream will remain popular for a long time to come as well.

Conserve fuel with vehicle maintenance and other tips

Motorists know that 2022 has been a record-breaking year for fuel prices. Data from AAA indicates gas prices jumped 55 percent between June 2021 and June 2022. All 50 states now have an average fuel price that exceeds $4 per gallon, with many even surpassing the $5 mark. The fuel cost comparison resource Global Petrol Prices reports that, as of May 2022, gas in Canada was on average $2.17 CAD per liter, which comes to roughly $8.22 CAD a gallon, or $6.52 USD per gallon.

The pinch at the pump is being felt by commuters, casual drivers and weekend warriors alike. People across North America are taking whatever steps necessary to conserve fuel. One of the considerations they may have overlooked is vehicle maintenance. Poor vehicle performance adversely affects fuel economy, so here's how to maintain a vehicle with an eye toward conserving fuel.

combustion and impact performance. A fuel treatment product can clean out debris and dry up moisture to restore function and improve miles per gallon.

Use the air conditioning sparingly

The air conditioning unit in a vehicle uses power directly from the motor of the car. This means the vehicle consumes extra gas to keep the AC unit running, thereby reducing fuel efficiency.

Remove excess cargo Clear the trunk or cargo area of extra items that can weigh down the vehicle, requiring more power to move it. Any heavy load will negatively affect mileage.

Keeping a vehicle in top form can improve fuel economy, which can be especially beneficial in a time marked by soaring fuel costs.
