Cold Case in Court

Nearly 28 Years After an Elderly Ethel Couple Was Shot and Killed, the Accused Killer Faces Six-Week Trial

$1

By Stephanie Schendel

sschendel@chronline.com

Jury selection in the long-awaited criminal trial for Rick Riffe, the former Alaska man accused of killing an elderly Ethel couple in 1985, will begin Monday morning in Lewis County Superior Court.

Since Riffe's 2012 arrest, the trial has been delayed four times. Earlier this week, days before the trial was set to start, it appeared the case was again in limbo after Riffe's lead defense attorney failed to appear in court for a pretrial hearing on Tuesday.

However, after a court hearing Friday morning, it appears that after more than two decades of investigation, as well as 15 months of trial preparation, both the prosecution and defense are prepared to start the four- to six-week trial on Monday.

A 'Rock Solid' Case

The 1985 double-homicide is one of Lewis County's most notorious unsolved murders. The investigation has gone on for more than two decades, and has passed through multiple administrations of elected sheriffs and prosecu-

It's an investigation that has continued for so long that one of the suspects, as well as several of the witnesses, have died.

Authorities allege that Rick and his brother, John, both originally from Mossyrock, abducted an Ethel couple from their home, forced them to withdraw money from the bank, then later shot and killed them in their car.

The brothers then allegedly dragged the bodies of Wilhelmina "Minnie" Maurin, 83, and Edward "Ed" Maurin, 81, off a rural logging road, and dumped them. The elderly couple's bodies were found on Christmas Eve 1985, a few days after their family reported them missing.

Court documents allege that some of the money from the Maurin robbery was used to buy large quantities of cocaine.

Her songs today are a blend of indie, soul and folk flavors.

Fans will hear the lilting, longing melodies of songs like "Lucky Bird" and "What I Know" right next to the foot-stomping, world rhythms of "Spiders" and Sequoia," followed by a straight jazz-funk piece such as "Grey's Not Easy" and a classic hip-hop cover of The Fugees "Ready or

When she's not performing, Kelso is writing and recording. She released her debut album, "Mud Blossom," in 2009 and "Departures" in 2011.

Highway 12 Near White Pass Reopens After Washout

$800,000 FIX: Gov. Jay Inslee Signs Proclamation Allowing for Possible Use of Federal Funds

By Kyle Spurr

kspurr@chronline.com

State transportation officials reopened one lane of U.S. Highway 12 near the White Pass summit Friday afternoon following a closure initiated Tuesday after a washout along a steep embankment adjacent to the roadway.

An automated signal is directing alternating traffic through a quarter-mile area near the washout, just east of White Pass, according to WS-DOT. Commercial vehicles are not allowed through the single-

For nearly four days, the roadway closed in both directions for about 45 miles from milepost 183 near the Oak Creek feeding station to milepost 138 at the intersection of U.S. Highway 12 and state Route 123.

The closures were lifted once the single-lane opened.

WSDOT contractor DBM Inc., Federal Way, paved the ditch and shoulder along the hillside to make room for one lane of traffic. DBM Inc. is still determining how to fix the washout, either by repairing the existing wall or building a new retaining wall.

"The repair work will be going on while the traffic is alternating," WSDOT spokeswoman Meagan McFadden said. "They are looking at some options to do a retaining wall or secure the wall that is currently there.'

Gov. Jay Inslee signed an emergency proclamation on Thursday that allows state and local agencies to pursue federal emergency relief funds to restore the highway, WSDOT

The estimated cost to repair the washout is about $800,000 with a timeline of 30 days.

'It's not going to be a permanent fix," McFadden said. "It's an emergency repair to get through the winter. Next spring, we will design and open up to bid on a permanent fix."

weekend combined with erosion and a slope failure caused the washout, officials said.

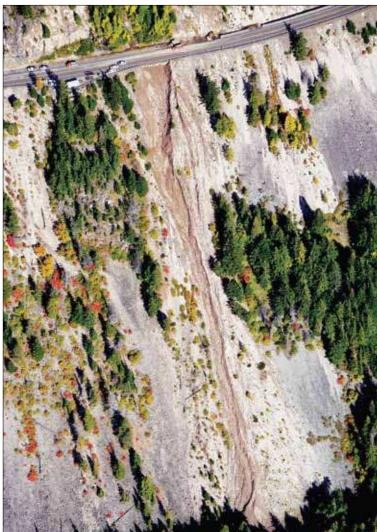

Crews closed the roadway Tuesday morning after learning about the washout, which is about 120 feet wide and growing south of the roadway.

State Route 410 and state Route 123 had been used as alternate routes during the closure. However, WSDOT said commercial traffic is prohibited on both alternate routes. Commercial traffic will have to use Interstate 90 and Interstate 5, McFadden said, since the oversized vehicles are not allowed through the one-lane opening or the alternate routes.

About 1,800 cars per day drive through White Pass on U.S. Highway 12.

The washout of U.S. Highway 12 is similar to an incident in Several days of heavy rain last 1995, according to WSDOT.

An aerial image provided by the Washington State Department of Transportation shows a washout that caused the closure of U.S. Highway 12 near the White Pass summit this week. The road reopened for one lane of traffic Friday.

Minor Local Impacts From Federal Government Shutdown

SAFE: Most Funding Cuts Would Not Be Seen for Weeks, Months; Chehalis Reservation Moves Ahead as Usual

lbroadt@chronline.com

Though they have braced for the worst, federally-funded groups in Lewis and south Thurston counties so far have felt few negative effects from the partial federal government shutdown.

For local government employees and service-utilizers, the continuation of business as usual comes as a relief, amid grim uncertainty nationwide.

Hours after the federal government ceased operations on Tuesday morning, Women, Infants and Children, or WIC, programs throughout the country began to close their doors.

Lewis County's division which provides services to 67 percent of the county's infants - seemed to have little time left, WIC Manager Michelle Ross said.

"We'd been getting calls ever since this started about whether or not we'll continue to operate," Ross said. "We were just telling people what we knew at the moment."

On Thursday, WIC was given a reprieve: The state will have enough money to fund the program through Oct. 31, not Oct. 9 as originally predicted.

"It's encouraging to hear they will continue funding because we know how important funding this program is to the health of our nation's women infants and children," Ross said.

By Amy Nile

anile@chronline.com

Pending home sales in Lewis County increased by more than 42 percent and closed sales grew 4.4 percent in September compared to the same time a year ago, according to figures released Friday by the Northwest Multiple Listing Service.

Total real estate activity also rose 4 percent in September.

The median home price in Lewis County decreased $12,500 in September to $142,500. That's down 8 percent from $155,000 the same month one year ago.

IN GRAYS HARBOR COUNTY, the median home price grew by $3,000, up to $133,000 in September. That's up 2.3 percent from $130,000 last year.

Pending sales grew by nearly 11 percent in September 2013 from 2012.

Total real estate activity dropped 4.4 percent, but closed sales increased 30.5 percent in September from the previous

IN THURSTON COUNTY, the median home price increased just over 8 percent to $228,497 in September, compared to $211,000 a year ago.

Pending sales rose almost 12 percent but closed sales fell by 2.4 percent over the year. Total real estate activity increased 2.8 percent in September.

ACROSS THE REGION, September tested the Western Washington housing market's resilience fluctuating mortgage rates, record-setting rains, and persistent inventory shortages in some areas, according to brokers reporting to Northwest MLS. Still, by the month's end, both pending and closed sales outgained the same period a year

Across the 21 counties served by Northwest MLS, pending sales in September increased nearly 5 percent from 12 months ago. Regionwide, closed sales rose 21 percent and total real estate activity grew by 2 percent.

Median home prices rose nearly 9 percent from $255,745 last year to $278,000 in September. That's up $22,255 from last year.

With uncertainty about the duration of the government shutdown, brokers reported the market's positive momentum could stall.

In some instances, lenders will face challenges verifying information from federal agencies, which could impact their ability to approve and close home loans.

Though industry experts do not expect the government shutdown to have significant impact on the housing market, the length of the closure could affect consumer confidence and financing options.

VOTE OF THE PEOPLE:

Initiative Would Require Background Checks for Online, Gun Show Sales

OLYMPIA — Advocates seeking to expand the use of background checks on gun sales in Washington state plan to submit their first batch of initiative petition signatures next week, the secretary of state's office said

A counter campaign for a gun rights ballot measure is still collecting signatures, Ammons said in an email. Initiative 591 would prevent Washington state from adopting background check laws that are more restrictive than the federal standard. It would also prohibit any confiscation of fire-

No Appeal for Onalaska Man Who Killed Suspected Burglar

UPHELD: State Supreme Court Declined to Review Manslaughter Conviction Appeal for Ronald A. Brady

By Kyle Spurr

kspurr@chronline.com

A second-degree manslaughter conviction for an Onalaska homeowner who fatally shot a suspected burglar on his property in April 2010 will likely stand following a Washington State Supreme Court decision earlier this week.

The state Supreme Court declined a petition for review from Ronald A. Brady, who shot and killed 56-year-old Thomas McKenzie after he came to the property with his wife, Joanna McKenzie, nearly three years ago.

He was sentenced to 63 months in prison.

A state appeals court already denied an appeal from Brady in May, upholding the second-degree manslaughter conviction.

In his appeal, Brady argued that his conviction should be thrown out for several reasons, including that the evidence was omitted in trial regarding the couple's intentions for being on the property; the judge refused to grant Brady's proposed jury instruction on the right to resist a felony; the prosecutor engaged in misconduct during closing arguments; and he argued the evi- the petition for review, Beigh Brady allegedly waited in his gadence was insufficient to support

The state appeals court rejected each of the arguments.

Lewis County Deputy Prosecutor Sarah Beigh said with both the state appeals court and the state Supreme Court declining Brady's appeal, the appeals court can now issue its mandate, or final decision, on the case.

"Once the mandate comes down, the case is considered final," Beigh said.

Beigh estimates the final decision to uphold the seconddegree manslaughter conviction will be made in about a month.

How Does Levy Equalization Benefit Centralia Schools?

What role did Neal Kirby, candidate for school board, play?

In 2013, Centralia schools receive $1,063,683 as a match for the local levy. If levy equalization was not in place, the school district would have to cut over $1 million in services or raise taxes on the local levy by 51 cents per thousand assessed valuation to make up the loss. Over five years, $4.7 million in levy equalization has been received by Centralia schools and circulated in the local economy.

Neal Kirby applied his understanding of tax issues in rural Washington and worked to help Centralia schools (and all property poor schools) through levy equalization. Kirby created the Committee for Levy Equalization in 1985, and the proposal passed in 1987.

Kirby has led the effort to keep it fully funded ever since through editorials for most newspapers in the state and emails keeping superintendents, board members, and local union members informed.

The former political action lead for WEA in E. Washington wrote the following after the 2011 session. "One of the Republican senators (Senate Republican Leader Mark Schoesler) said one of the highlights of the session was having both the WEA and PSE lobbyists say that preserving levy equalization was their number one priority. Neal Kirby isn't just a prolific emailer - he's also a one-man shop who's managed to make LEA one of the top school funding issues, and I think you saw the work of 20 years really pay off these last few months."

"He's only called me about twice a day. It's a big thing for these smaller districts," said House Education Committee Chair Bill Brumsickle (R), Centralia, in 1995 (Chronicle).

Kirby knows how to run a school. He knows how to protect our interests in Olympia. Vote Kirby, Nov 5.

Local School Board, Council Hopefuls Meet Tea Party

INTRODUCTIONS: At Tea Party Meet and Greet, Candidates Address Education, Government Spending and Constitutional Rights

By Lisa Broadt

lbroadt@chronline.com

Concerns about financial responsibility, property rights, personal freedom and the education of future generations surfaced, from candidate after candidate, during the Lewis County Tea Party's "Meet the Candidates" event Thursday evening.

During the two-hour meeting at the Lewis & Clark Hotel, the Tea Party gave each of nine local candidates five minutes to introduce themselves and answer questions from the audience.

Candidates included Chehalis City Council incumbents Dennis Dawes and Chad Taylor; Centralia School Board hopefuls Neal Kirby and Ron Averill; Centralia City Council candidates Bonnie Canaday, Ron Greenwood, Pat Gallagher and John Elmore; and a soon-to-be Napavine City Councilor, Laverne Haslett, who is running unopposed.

Chehalis incumbents Taylor and Dawes on Thursday told Tea Party members that they remain committed to government efficiency and respect for taxpayers.

In 2008, sales tax revenue Chehalis' primary source of income - began to dwindle, but the Chehalis City council refused to raise property taxes, Dawes said.

"We made a decision to live within our means," he said. "We made very, very difficult decisions, including reducing people."

"Unlike the federal government, we can't just print money," Dawes said, to applause.

According to Taylor, government officials must commit themselves to examining spending and cutting wherever neces-

"I believe in small and limited government," he said. "I don't think the government needs to provide everything to everyone."

Centralia City Council candidates focused on government accountability.

Asked if the Constitution should be modified for modern times, newcomer Greenwood said it needs a few changes.

"Currently, how are government is shut down but Congress is getting paid, I believe that needs to be adjusted," Greenwood said. "But the core behind it should stay." Centralia City Council candidates Gallagher and Elmore said their daytime professions will help enhance the local govern-

Averill, a candidate for Centralia School Board Director 1 and an educator for more than 15 years, on Thursday lamented the current school board's lack of experience

"These are people being told about what education is by the superintendent," the former county commissioner said. "It would be pretty helpful to have someone who knows what's going on."

When asked about his stance on the Common Core curriculum, Averill praised the concept of the Common Core but denounced the way it has been schools.

Majority Coalition's Transportation Ideas Worth Considering

Sen. John Braun, R-Centralia, doesn't have to look far when providing an example for why reform is needed within the Washington State Department of Transportation.

During a Tuesday meeting with members of The Chronicle's staff, he quickly pointed to the dilapidated state Route 508 bridge near Onalaska as local Exhibit A.

The Washington State Department of Transportation put a 7-ton weight limit on the bridge last year after a routine inspection found rust weakening the structure.

Design work for a replacement bridge won't begin until 2015, with construction beginning in 2017 at the earliest based on available funding, according

Our Views

If the Republican-led Majority Coalition Caucus has its way, the repairs could be made much

Among a list of 10 reform ideas currently being circulated and discussed during a series of statewide meetings focused on transportation is an effort to return sales tax revenue from transportation projects back to the transportation budget.

As it stands, that money is being diverted to the state's gen-

According to the Majority Coalition Caucus, nearly $400 million could be made available for transportation projects if the sales tax money is properly invested back where it belongs. That money could entirely fund highway bridge preservation for the next 10 years and bring 97 percent of state bridges up to good or fair condition.

Currently, 21 percent of the state's spans are functionally obsolete, according to Washington Roundtable.

"It's pretty common sense," Braun said.

Many of the Coalition's other ideas also deserve closer exami-

Among the ideas are:

 Using Environmental Legacy Stewardship Account funds to meet stormwater requirements. Currently, $40 million from the transportation budget is spent on stormwater projects. Using ELSA funds could free up an estimated $480 million in fuel tax revenue over 12 years, according to the coalition.

• Open a dialogue about prevailing wage and apprenticeship requirements. Current standards increase construction costs by 10 percent to 15 percent, according to the coalition.

• Streamline environmental permitting: Adhering to federal standards, rather than onerous state standards, can save on construction costs.

These are just a few of the promising ideas that far exceed a last-minute effort to pass a taxloaded transportation package at the end of the most recent legislative session.

Braun rightly says that the plan needed to pass public scrutiny, not be shoved through the Legislature without input. He believes that any successful transportation package will likely need to go before Washington voters. Braun and his colleagues are doing their part, hosting a 10city, cross-state tour.

Though there is no meeting planned in Lewis County, residents can make their voices heard by visiting www.senatetranspofeedbackforum.org.

We applaud Braun and the Majority Coalition Caucus for approaching transportation in a responsible, meaningful way.

Too often, our legislators believe taxes are the answer for everything. The Coalition is proving that conscientious creativity can be an effective replacement to taking more from already overburdened taxpayers.

COMMENTARY: Highlighting Lewis County

Kudos to Volunteers Serving Coffee to Weary Travelers

Two drenched motorcyclists driving home to Seattle in pelting rain stopped at the Toutle River Rest Area in the wee hours last Saturday morning.

Toledo's Sandra Gould handed each a hot cup of coffee to warm their insides before they hit the road again. They told us they drove to Reno to buy a T-shirt.

These were just two of the people we met between 2 and 6 a.m. staffing the rest area to raise money for Lewis County's senior centers. We visited with three young Oregonians on their first trip to Seattle; they were surprised to find free coffee at a rest area. A truck driver sipping coffee shared how he had won $3,000 at video poker and $500 at pull tabs.

By Julie McDonald

This was my first such venture while Sandy has provided coffee and cookies to weary travelers twice a year for the past six years. She did her first stint more than 30 years ago, helping Shirley Grubb raise money for St. Francis Mission in Toledo. I saw volunteers from Salkum TOPS serving coffee at the rest area a few weeks ago.

After driving home and crawling into my warm bed, I thought how nice it is that so many volunteers help travelers while raising money for nonprofit organizations.

Thanks, Sandy, and all the rest who serve coffee at rest

Discover! Museum

It's exciting that the Discover! Children's Museum at the Twin City Town Center will remain open through Dec. 31. The six-month pilot project, initially scheduled to close July 31, was extended first through October and now through 2013.

Hickory Farms, which has operated from the location at 1461 NW Louisiana Ave. in the past, will sell holiday gift baskets this year from the former Advance America space near Radio Shack, said Allyn Roe, Centralia-Chehalis airport manager.

The children's museum, open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesdays through Saturdays and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sundays, has far exceeded projections with paid attendance of more than 12,000 since February. If we'd had a children's museum when my kids were younger, we would have celebrated birthdays there. What a fun place to play, learn and explore!

I hope it becomes a permanent fixture in Chehalis, already a museum mecca with the Veterans Memorial Museum, Lewis County Historical Museum and Vintage Motorcycle Museum.

False L&I Claims

I read with interest the story about the former operator of House of the Rising Son, a Chehalis halfway house, who faces felony charges of theft and forgery in connection with $90,000 in worker's compensation paid by the state Department of Labor and Industries.

My family ran into a similar situation after hiring a live-in caregiver to help my mother who had dementia. We ran a background check before hirmonths or so, we received a call from a Department of Labor and Industries worker.

My mother and I visited the L&I office, shocked to learn that this woman was collecting money from L&I for an on-thejob injury at a nursing home while working for us. It turned out she also gave us a false name and didn't have a valid driver's license, although she had showed us one when we hired her. Oh, my!

We asked her to pack her bags and covered her costs at an extended stay hotel for a month while she sought another job.

How often does this happen? It makes me wonder.

INVESTIGATE NEW APPROACHES TO THE UPCOMING PLASTIC BAG BAN!

THURSTON COUNTY RESIDENTS

Current Health Care System Has Defects

To the editor:

Defund Obamacare? Shut down the government rather than fund Obamacare? These are questions the Republicans and tĥe Tea Party caucus are actually posing to the American people.

The health of the people of this nation is a serious matter. It is a matter of national concern. To date, the Republican Party, goaded by the Tea Party caucus, has done nothing positive to address the nation's health. The most it has supported is its claim it wants a market-based system. That is code for "do nothing."

But our existing market-based system has a number of defects. First, the system is not truly competitive. Users typically do not have knowledge and cannot negotiate for a proper bargain when faced with an emergency. Many people do not or cannot really anticipate their health needs when they are well. Many have later had to make cruel choices between proper care and bankruptcy.

Obamacare is a mandatory insurance program. Insurance is a reasonable method for protection against catastrophic losses. It must be mandatory to keep premiums low. The courts have said the approach is lawful. It is in the public interest.

The Republican Party and the Tea Party caucus want to stop at nothing other than destruction of a reasonable system that is in the public interest. They have never proposed any choices that would provide for the public's good health. Their proposal is not in the public interest.

Letters to the Editor

The answer is clear. All per- munism, despotism, even monarsons, rich and poor, should have a reasonable opportunity to participate in Obamacare. Destruction of the government over an should not be allowed to continue. corrupts absolutely."

Left Wing Making Attacks on Freedom

To the editor:

I awoke at 4:30 a.m. one morning pondering a query. Why are freedom, liberty and individualism continually being assaulted by the left wing?

I figured out the answer (sort of anyway).

The left or liberal (say it) Democrats have a herd mentality. They are the organizers to help direct the wildebeests of the workers republic to the water hole or better

Now, in the 21st century, they have used catchwords and phrases and smear campaigns such as 'George Bush did it" or the conservatives want to throw Grandma under the bus, the worst recession since the Great Depression (to name a few) when in reality Jimmy Carter started the housing market flop that metastasized in to this mess. The incredible entitlement programs are breaking the bank of taxes. The worst recession was in Carter's era at 14 percent inflation, unemployment and 19 percent interest rates.

All these lies were used to satisfy the left agenda to return or turn us, the Republic of the United States, to socialism, com-chy or anarchy, and hence bring us into the herd mentality.

davidford-cartoons.com

But there is always a shepherd of sorts in the human herd who important and desirable program is corrupted or is corruptible. subverts the public's needs and "Power corrupts, absolute power

> An oversized bureaucracy is the shepherd of the left, teaching all to abandon liberty for the safety of the herd through welfare, food stamps and the myriad programs to benefit the poor.

> But you have to keep poor people poor for the government to suck taxes to feed them, which is self perpetuating. Tax the people, make them poor, create programs to feed them. Hey, it works great.

> Couple this with a repressive government, regulations, RCW fines and public unions demanding members to think and vote

> Conversely, the right wing or conservative ideology contains the seeds of its own destruction, i.e., freedom, liberty and individual responsibility, which promote singularity. Instead of being a wildebeest in the herd, they are prone to be more like a badger needing no government protection or help.

OK, if this is true, the liberal wing could and did very easily infiltrate our educational system with unions, socialist dogma and doctrines because a free man doesn't need the herd's protections and safeguards. He ignores them and chases his dream.

So, sadly it seems, the fruit of freedom seems to be the loss of freedom.

Washington to Adopt 'Next Gen' Science Standards

NEXT GENERATION SCIENCE STANDARDS: State Will

Become Eighth in the Country to Employ New Science Standards

By John Higgins

Seattle Times education reporter

Eighth-graders at Cascade Middle School applied Newton's laws of motion to an unusual experiment involving imaginary cats on skateboards.

They wanted to know which cat would go faster down a ramp: Bubbles, a 4-pound kitten; 15-pound Hank; or Vladimir, the 30-pound tabby.

The students in Christine Oberloh's science class rolled three different sized balls representing the cats down an incline and timed them.

"We found out that Bubbles was the one to go the fastest," said Alberto Rodriguez, who is 13. But his group's findings didn't jibe with those of the rest of the

"I want you guys to think about this because all of the other groups found that the biggest one was the fastest," said his teacher, Oberloh. "So why do you think your data is different from everybody else's?"

Alberto and his classmates are not only learning the facts of science, they're learning the practices of science - such as controlling variables consistently over multiple trials.

That's one of the reasons that Gov. Jay Inslee and state superintendent Randy Dorn arranged to visit Cascade Middle School in the Highline school district on Friday to talk about tion from kindergarten through 12th grade.

They are expected to announce that Washington will become the eighth state in the country to adopt the "Next Generation Science Standards," which outline what students should know about the big ideas of science, key practices scientists and engineers use to solve problems and fundamental concepts that apply across all scientific fields.

Delaware, California, Kan-Island and Vermont also are on board with the new voluntary

UW's Prominent Role

The University of Washington has played a prominent role both in developing the standards and in helping teachers teach

Philip Bell, director of the university's Institute for Science + Math Education, was one of 18 experts brought together by the National Research Council to identify the key ideas and practices in science that all highschool graduates should know not only for their jobs and furthe future of science instruc- ther education, but to become scientifically literate citizens.

"These are incredibly rigorous in terms or peer review and having full consensus opinions of the world's leading experts," said Bell. "It's a much more firm research foundation than we often have had in the past in educa-

Much of that research shows that even very young children have more sophisticated ideas about how the natural world works than adults once thought.

Scientists also know that sas, Kentucky, Maryland, Rhode thinking out loud, crafting explanations using evidence and defending those explanations lead to deeper understanding.

That kind of classroom talk schools in the Highline district dents' interest in finding the sodesign lessons that get students talking about science with the kind of rigor expected under the new standards.

The teachers get time outside of their normal classroom duties to work with other teachers on lesson ideas, observe their colleagues teaching in real time, and make adjustments on the fly sometimes tweaking lessons from one period to the next — to better anticipate where students will need help.

That includes boning up themselves on the science behind the lessons so they can better appreciate students' attempts to make sense of the concepts and help them fill in the missing pieces, Thompson said.

Cascade Middle School science teachers Anna Kramer and her colleague across the hall, Oberloh, were listening to their students when they designed a lesson to explore concepts of mo-

Kramer's students like BMX racing and were interested in why some bikers could race down a ramp and upside down through a loop without wiping out and others could not.

Posing Question First

Traditionally in science lesto apply what they'd learned to Bell's UW colleague, Jes- specific situations until the end sica Thompson, has been helping of a lesson. Kramer posed the teachers at Cascade and other question first to spark her stuexplanations based on what they couldn't see, such as gravity and 'It's always impressive to me

At first they simply described what they saw in videos, and how when you ask kids for their initial ideas, more often than not they offer ideas about real science concepts, they're just often in kid language. So they don't have the word 'force' or they don't have the words 'gravitational potential energy.' But they can talk about how he needs to start high up so that gravity can make him go faster."

Kramer helped them develop

Across the hall, Oberloh's students were more interested in skateboards than BMX bikes, so they thought about whether a fat cat or a tiny kitten would go 'Sometimes our data might be different and sometimes even we argue among each other trying to figure out the answer because sometimes we have different ideas," said Christian Peña-Ayala, 13.

The new standards will be phased in over several years and timelines haven't been nailed down yet. The Class of 2020 may be the first students who have to pass tests based on the standards to graduate, according to the

But the kids in Highline will have a head start.

'These teachers and these students are going to be really well prepared when we start to make this shift," Thompson said. 'They're going to be in front of the curve and it won't be a shock to the system."

State Retirement System Identifies Fourth Case of Pension Spiking

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington's retirement system has confirmed another case of pension spiking, and officials said Friday they are now seeking to collect or save more than $125,000 by recalculating benefits.

In the latest conclusion, auditors at the Department of Retirement Systems determined that former Quincy Police Chief Bill Gonzales received a late pay raise and other benefits that were improperly counted toward his pension value. The state is seeking $5,506 from Gonzales to compensate for the overpayments, and officials project that they will save some $123,826 in the coming years due to reduced ed earlier this year as part of an Associated Press series about a ment and firefighters.

Escaped Wolf Pet Back in Thurston County Home

LACEY (AP) — An aggressive wolf hybrid escaped from its owner's kennel Friday, attacked a German shepherd dog and scaled 8-foot and a 6-foot fences before it was contained and tranquilized in a neighbor's yard, the Thurston County Sheriff's Office said.

Deputies were prepared to shoot the 140-pound animal if it got out of the fenced yard, but they did everything they could to avoid killing it, said Lt. Greg Elwin.

The owner was able to lure it into a portable kennel with raw meat. The animal ripped the door off the portable kennel and was chewing its way out through plastic sides, so deputies and the owners reinforced it with plywood.

Fortunately, a state Fish and Wildlife agent arrived and shot the animal with a tranquilizer gun so it could be moved back into its permanent kennel.

The sheriff's office is recommending the county prosecutor file a charge of allowing a dangerous animal to be at large.

The German shepherd that was attacked is OK.

It's legal to own the hybrid, although it's described as 98 percent wolf, Elwin said.

It's one of three wolf hybrids kept by the owner.

"It appears all three have been working on their enclosure for some time," Elwin said.

All three escaped into the owner's yard but two were quickly corralled again.

The one that climbed fences to reach the neighbor's yard was abnormally aggressive, he said.

"It's not going to lay on the floor next to you as you watch the football game on Sunday."

Guilty Plea in Deadly Seattle Accident

By Gene Johnson

The Associated Press

SEATTLE — A repeat drunk driver who plowed his pickup into a Seattle family earlier this year, killing two grandparents and badly hurting a mother and her newborn son, pleaded guilty Thursday to charges of vehicular homicide and vehicular assault.

Mark Mullan, 51, faces a recommended term of 18 years in prison when he is sentenced in King County Superior Court next month.

Mullan, a journeyman electrician with five prior drunken driving arrests, had a blood-alcohol content about three times the legal limit when he hit the family as they crossed a street in the Wedgwood neighborhood in broad daylight March 25. He was on probation from a recent case, his license was suspended, and he was supposed to have installed an ignition interlock device in his truck.

New grandparents Judy and Dennis Schulte, retired teachers from Kokomo, Ind., who had recently moved to Seattle, were killed. Their daughter-in-law, Karina Ulriksen-Schulte and her son, Elias, were injured. Ulriksen-Schulte suffered a broken pelvis and head injury, and her injuries caused a stroke that has limited her speech. But her husband, Dan Schulte, said she is walking and talking more, is almost ready to come home from a rehabilitation center, and sees

While he would have preferred to see Mullan sentenced to life in prison, Schulte told reporters after the court hearing that the plea would allow the family to focus on recovery as well as the legacy of his parents.

"While nothing can undo the damage to our family," Schulte said, with his sister by his side, 'we're relieved he has decided to accept responsibility for his actions."

The case prompted calls for tougher DUI laws. The family has sued the city, alleging it failed to monitor Mullan. Schulte sat in the courtroom

Police Justified in Fatal Shooting

TACOMA (AP) The Pierce County prosecutor says two Lakewood police officers were justified in fatally shooting a 28-year-old man who lunged at them with what turned out to be a realistic toy replica handgun. Patrick O'Meara was hit three times in the June 18 confrontation with Officers Darrell Moore and Jeremy Vahle.

Police had a felony arrest warrant for the man. When they found him at a home, he was holding what appeared to be a handgun to his head. Prosecutor Mark Lindquist said Thursday that the man refused to comply with repeated orders to drop the gun, then suddenly lunged toward the officers while moving his gun in their direction. They fired.

The prosecutor said that during two prior arrests, the man told Lakewood police he wanted them to kill him. He was also high on meth.

Car Hits House; Woman, Grandchild Stable

SEATTLE (AP) — A Seattle Fire Department spokesman says a 71-year-old woman and her 4-yearold grandchild are reported in stable condition at Harborview Medical Center after their car crashed into a south Seattle house.

Spokesman Kyle Moore says firefighters had to cut the woman out of the silver SUV on Thursday. The child was removed earlier.

The Seattle Times reported that Moore said the woman picked up the child from a nearby school, then later lost control of the car and crashed into the building.

The cause of the crash is under investigation.

Firefighters determined the house is still structurally sound.

Prospect for Swift End to Partial Shutdown Dims as Congress Looks to Debt Limit as Next Clash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects for a swift end to the 4-davold partial government shutdown ers squabbled into the weekend and increasingly shifted their focus to a midmonth deadline for averting a threatened first-ever default.

"This isn't some damn game," as the White House and Democrats held to their position of agreeing to negotiate only after the government is reopened and the $16.7 trillion debt limit raised.

House Republicans appeared to be shifting their demands, deemphasizing their previous insistence on defunding the health care overhaul in exchange for reopening the government. Instead, they ramped up calls for cuts in federal benefit programs and future deficits, items that Boehner has said repeatedly will be part of any talks on debt limit legislation.

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., also said the two issues were linked. "We not only have a shutdown, but we have the full faith and credit of our nation before us in a week or ten days," he said.

Reid and other Democrats blocked numerous attempts by Sen. Ted Cruz to approve House-passed bills reopening portions of the government. The Texas Republican is a chief architect of the "Defund Obamacare" strategy and met earlier this week with allies in the House and an aide to Majority Leader Eric Cantor, R-Va., to confer on strategy.

Karen Likely to Be First Named Storm to Hit U.S. Toward the End of a Quiet Hurricane Season

NEW ORLEANS (AP) Tropical Storm Karen was poised to become the first named storm to hit the U.S. during what had been a relatively quiet hurricane season.

Karen was forecast to lash the northern Gulf Coast over the weekend as a weak hurricane or tropical storm. A hurricane watch was in effect from Grand Isle, La., to west of Destin, Fla. A tropical storm warning was issued for the Louisiana coast from Grand Isle to the mouth of the Pearl River, including the New Orleans area.

From a tiny, vulnerable island off the Louisiana coast to the beaches of the Florida Panhandle, Gulf Coast residents prepared Thursday for a possible hit from the storm.

The National Hurricane Center in Miami said early Friday that Karen was about 295 miles south of the mouth of the Mississippi River and was moving northwest at 10 mph.

The storm's maximum sustained winds decreased slightly to 60 mph with the U.S. National Hurricane Center saying little change in strength was expected Friday. But forecasters said some strengthening was possible Saturday, when the storm's center would be near the coast.

Potentially Dangerous Weight-Loss Goal: A Gap Between Thighs

BALLWIN, Mo. (AP) — Experts in eating disorders are concerned about an Internet-fueled trend in which teenage girls and young women pursue an elusive and possibly dangerous weightloss goal: to become so slender that their thighs don't touch even when their feet are together.

Specialists say achieving a socalled thigh gap is risky and virtu- baby?" asked Jacob's mother, Cierally impossible. But some exceptionally thin models have the gap, which is upheld as a beauty achievement on countless Tumblr pages, blogs and other social media sites.

What is new is these things have taken on a life of their own because of the Internet and social media."

Voices of Stranded Migrants Floating at Sea Drifted to Shore, Confused With Seagulls' Song

LAMPEDUSA, Italy (AP) — The friends were heading out on a fishing trip, when one heard voices from the sea.

Don't be silly, Vito Fiorino told him — it's only the seagulls' early morning song. Then, about 500 yards (meters) from shore, he saw heads bobbing in the water.

Dozens of Africans were floating, too weak to grab a life preserver and so slippery from gasoline that it was hard to pull them on board. Some grasped empty water bottles to stay afloat.

"It was a scene from a film, something you hope never to see in life," he told The Associated Press. "They were exhausted. When I threw the lifesaver, they had a hard time doing two strokes to reach it."

Fiorino says he and his friends were the first to reach the fiery wreck around 7 a.m. Thursday, sounding the alarm and saving 47 people before the Coast Guard and other vessels arrived to help, eventually rescuing a total of 155 people. The migrants told Fiorino they had been in the water for three hours.

Egyptian Forces Fire Tear Gas, Close Tahrir Square as Islamist Protests Turn Violent; Four Dead

CAIRO (AP) — Egyptian riot police fired volleys of tear gas and locked down Cairo's Tahrir Square Friday as clashes broke out in a rare push by Islamist supporters of the ousted president to take control of the iconic square, leaving at least four dead.

With lines of armored vehicles and barbed wire, troops sealed off the square and diverted traffic after the Muslim Brotherhood, the group from which ousted president Mohammed Morsi hails, called on its supporters to march there.

Thousands of Morsi's supporters followed suit from different parts in the city, chanting "El-Sissi is the enemy of God and "Down with the murderer!"

Those were references to Defense Minister Abdel-Fatah el-Sissi, who forced Morsi from power on July 3 after millions took to the streets demanding the Islamist leader step down.

In its statements, the Muslim Brotherhood called Tahrir Square "the capital of the revolution." It is the birthplace of the 2011 uprising that forced longtime president Hosni Mubarak from power and led to Morsi's short-lived tenure.

Shutdown Jeopardizes Nutrition Program for Poor

ALLENTOWN, Pa. cob Quick is a fat and happy 4-month-old with a big and expensive appetite. Like millions of other poor women, Jacob's mother relies on the federal Women, Infants and Children program to pay for infant formula — aid that is now jeopardized by the government shutdown.

Pennsylvania and other states say they can operate WIC at least through the end of October, easing fears among officials that it would run out of money within days. But advocates and others worry what will happen if the shutdown drags on beyond that.

'What's going to happen to my ra Schoeneberger, as she fed him a bottle of formula bought with her WIC voucher. "Am I going to have to feed him regular milk, or am I going to have to scrounge up the little bit of change I do have for formula or even baby food?"

The Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children known as WIC - supplies lowincome women with checks or debit cards that can be used for infant formula and cereal, fruits and vegetables, dairy items and other healthy food. ### Vietnam Military Mastermind Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, Who Defeated French and Americans, Dies, 102

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the brilliant and ruthless commander who led a ragtag army of guerrillas to victory in Vietnam over first the French and then the Americans, died Friday. The last of the country's oldguard revolutionaries was 102.

A national hero, Giap enjoyed a legacy second only to that of his mentor, founding president and independence leader Ho Chi Minh.

Giap died in a military hospital in the capital of Hanoi, where he had spent nearly four years because of illnesses, according to a government official and a person close to him. Both spoke on condition of anonymity before the death was announced in state-controlled media.

Known as the "Red Napoleon," Giap commanded guerrillas who wore sandals made of car tires and lugged artillery piece by piece over mountains to encircle and crush the French army at Dien Bien Phu in 1954. The unlikely victory — still studied at military schools - led to Vietnam's independence and hastened the collapse of colonialism across Indochina and beyond.

BOO! While most children revel in the idea of wearing costumes and soliciting free candy from neighbors, many parents regard Halloween as a potential nightmare. Child safety aside, many see sugar as the primary threat. Not only has sugar emerged as Public Enemy Number One in the fight against obesity, but it has always been regarded as a threat to tooth enamel. While it is true that sugar and carbohydrates feed the bacteria responsible for tooth decay, we can take steps to minimize the threat. It is generally a good idea to brush and floss teeth immediately after eating any food, especially candy. More than pure chocolate, sticky candies pose the biggest problem. Remove them with floss before they do harm. Halloween is around the corner, which for most children means bags of free candy. At TOWN CENTER DENTAL, we urge you to maintain good oral health for your children around the Halloween holiday and throughout the year. Call us at 1-877-378-3384 today to schedule an appointment. Good oral hygiene is important, not only for looks, but for general health as well. Regular checkups and cleanings can prevent dental problems, as well as provide good oral hygiene. You can count on us for family-oriented dental care. We're located at 1515 NW Louisiana Avenue, Chehalis, where we're currently accepting new patients. Our office is open Monday through Saturday. Walk-ins are welcome and emergencies are always seen the same day.

Many Who Sought Justice for Maurins No Longer Here to See It

Editor's Note: Chronicle Columnist Julie McDonald was the reporter who covered the discovery of the Maurins' bodies in 1985.

By Julie McDonald

For The Chronicle

It took nearly 28 years, but the family and friends may yet see justice served in the murder of Ed and Minnie Maurin as the trial begins next week for 54-year-old Rick Dale Riffe of King Salmon, Alaska.

Prosecutors allege that Rick and his brother, John, who died in June 2012, kidnapped the elderly couple in December 1985 and held them hostage in their Ethel home before forcing them to withdraw $8,500 from Sterling Savings and Loan in Chehalis. Then they shot 83-year-old Wilhelmina "Minnie" Maurin and her husband, Ed, 81, and dumped their bodies in woods near Adna. If it's true, no punishment on this earth is harsh enough. Of course, God will mete out the final judgment. Few who lived in Lewis County then will forget this heinous crime. But for some, like my friend Edna Fund, the loss brings tears to the eyes even decades later.

Julie Mcdonald columnist, former reporter

Her parents, Dutch immigrants Bill and June Gorter, moved from Wisconsin in 1965 and settled on a Gore Road farm, where they soon joined the Ethel Grange and made many friends, among them Ed and Minnie Maurin. The couples often played cards, particularly the game of 500. Minnie and June cooked food together for Grange dinners and fundraisers. Ed and William loved fishing together, and at least once were driven to the coast by Minnie's son, Dennis Hadaller of Mossyrock, a former Lewis County commissioner.

"Ed had a bit of a crooked nose, a smile that stretched from ear to ear, and a very contagious laugh," said Edna, a Lewis County Commissioner who last saw the couple at the Ethel Grange Christmas party earlier that December. "Minnie was a really good cook, and she and my mom had such good times together."

When family members arrived at the Maurin home Dec. 19 for a Christmas potluck, nobody was home. They called friends, starting with the Gorters. They had played cards with the Maurins earlier in the week, but the Gorters had no idea where their friends could be.

Nobody knew where they were. But the following day, Edna, who was working as a counselor with the state Division of Vocational Rehabilitation across from the Yard Birds Shopping Center, noticed police cars across the street.

"I was sitting in my office and I looked over to the parking lot and saw police cars around Ed and Minnie's big, green car," Edna recalled, choking back a sob. "How could I have missed seeing their car there?'

Police asked anyone who might have seen anything suspicious around Yard Birds, the couple's 1969 Chrysler, or elsewhere to report it. They released an artist's sketch of a man who was seen carrying a shotgun along Kresky Avenue not far from the Maurins' car. But the couple remained missing.

Four days later, on Christmas Eve, I sat in a nearly empty newsroom when the police scanner erupted in noise: a passerby had found two bodies west of Adna. As the only reporter in the newsroom, I grabbed my camera bag and rushed to a logging road west of Adna, sick with sorrow as I watched law enforcement officers retrieve the bodies of this innocent couple. My hands shook as I snapped photos, tears in my eyes; I had never even attended a funeral or seen a corpse.

I cried all the way to Vancouver for my family's Christmas celebration, mourning the lost lives of the Maurins, the pain of the family's loss, the horror experienced by those who retrieved the bodies.

"At Christmastime you're supposed to be happy," Edna said. "It was just so ugly, so dark and dreary and rainy. I'll never forget the heaviness, just the darkness, the evil that you felt."

Edna said her father emotionally couldn't attend the funeral, so a cousin stayed home with him while Edna and her husband accompanied her mother to St. Francis Xavier Mission in Toledo.

"It was very tough," Edna recalled. "I can still see them carrying the coffins out of the church."

Her parents, and other elderly people in the community, lived in fear of their lives.

"My parents just could not believe this had happened to their friends," Edna said. "My mom said, 'How could anybody kill those sweet old people?' Everybody in the area was so shell-shocked, and so afraid that these people might come back and try to take other old people.'

Edna and her husband, Ed Fund, lived in Centralia, while her folks farmed on Gore Road nearly a half-hour's

'They locked their doors — we told them to — and they would say, 'Who is it?' before they unlocked it. It was so frightening. I can see my mom sitting down and having Kleenexes next to her eyes, crying, missing her friends."

A few years later, the Gorters moved into Centralia, just down the street from Ed and Edna. In 1987, the Riffe brothers moved from Lewis County to Alaska.

We waited and waited, but nobody was arrested for the murders. A year passed by. A decade. Two decades.

The case remained open in the Lewis County Sheriff's Office, a thick file recounting tips and leads in a case that never closed. Former Lewis County Sheriff Bill Logan and his department logged hundreds, if not thousands, of hours into investigating the horrific double murder. So did the people who followed Logan in office.

"With the trial coming up next week, it brings it all back," Edna said. "If Mr. Riffe is found guilty, it's just too bad all these older people who went through that will never know.

"I would like to ask their murderer that question: why did you choose them? And why did you have to kill them? They would have just given up their money."

TRIAL DIGEST

Lewis County Jail since his 2012 arrest in lieu of $5 million bail for the murder charges.

If Riffe is found not guilty at the end of the homicide trial, new bail will be set.

More Than 200 Potential Witnesses to Possibly Testify

The trial is expected to be one of the longest criminal trials in the county's history, and will likely last between four and six

The state's witness list has more than 200 people on it, and more than 30 of them live in seven different states, including Arizona, Alaska, Oklahoma, Oregon, California, Texas and Ohio. Not all the witnesses are expected to testify.

If witnesses are flown in from out of state, the prosecutor's office will incur the travel and housing expenses. A total estimate of the cost of the trial is not known

The prosecution also indicated on the list that it will call a number of expert witnesses to testify about shoe prints, fingerprints, polygraph tests, blood spatter and DNA evidence.

An expert from the Washington State Gambling Commission is also expected to testify about a computer belonging to Riffe that was seized by police last year.

A Google employee, as well as employees from the Department of Labor and Industries, are on the list of potential witnesses, though prosecutors declined to comment on the nature of their potential testimony.

More than 25 of the prosecution's witnesses are former or retired law enforcement officers.

Elected Prosecutor Jonathan Meyer is personally handling the case alongside Deputy Prosecutor Will Halstead. The lead detective on the case is Bruce Kimsey. Due to the length of the trial, as well as the high-profile nature of the case, between 160 and 180 potential jurors, a substantially higher number than usual, will go through the jury selection process on Monday.

Twelve jurors will be chosen, with six alternates jurors. The jury will not be sequestered.

The trial will begin every day at 9:30 and go until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday until the testimony is complete.

Lewis County Superior Court Judge Richard Brosey will preside.

Rick Riffe's Media Savvy Lawyer

During Rick Riffe's initial court appearance in King Salmon, Alaska, prior to his extradition to Washington state, he told an Alaska judge that he did not want a public defender and that he intended to hire his own attorney.

A little more than a week after Riffe's arrest, John Crowley, a Seattle-based defense attorney, wrote a letter to the editor at The Chronicle in regards to his client's innocence.

Crowley, on his law firm's website, prides himself for having never "shied away from high profile, high stakes cases," adding that "he has successfully fought for clients, whose verdicts would have otherwise been predetermined if left to the court of public opinion."

Crowley's website describes him as "experienced, aggressive and dedicated," and as "the toughest felony defense lawyer in Washington State — not only because it's his job, but because he is passionate about the law and the pursuit of real justice."

He also wrote a blog post on his website about the importance of working with the media.

His website also states he has been on "Larry King Live", NBC's "Today Show" as well as "Inside Edition" to talk about various criminal cases.

ference, the sheriff described the case against Riffe as being "rock solid."

Hiding in Alaska

The Riffe brothers left Washington in 1987 and moved to King Salmon, Alaska, a rural community with less than 400 people. It was there that investigators traveled to arrest Riffe on July 8, 2012.

Originally, investigators intended to travel to Alaska to arrest both brothers, but two days before the probable cause affidavit was signed, detectives learned John had died of a longstanding medical condition.

Riffe, now 54, and his brother would have been in their earlyto mid-20s at the time of the slay-

Riffe is charged with two counts of first-degree murder, two counts of kidnapping and robbery in the first degree, as well as first-degree burglary. Each charge also includes special allegations of lack of remorse, deliberate cruelty and for particularly vulnerable victims.

If convicted, Riffe can face life in prison.

Immediately following Riffe's arrest, Lewis County Prosecutor Jonathan Meyer announced his office would not be pursuing the death penalty because Riffe is in poor health.

A Generation Passed

One of the Maurins' children, Dennis Hadaller, a former Lewis County commissioner, funded the investigation over the years when the sheriff's office did not have resources to work on it.

More than a decade ago, Hadaller hired private investigators to look into the cold case, and during the early 2000s, he announced he was offering a Riffe Will Testify in Own Defense $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the those responsible. The investigators were key in solving the case, Mansfield said previously. Hadaller, now 85, is now older than his mother was at the time of her death. The former county commissioner told The Chronicle last week that he and his siblings intend to sit through as At the time of the press con- much of the testimony as possible, even though it will likely be emotionally taxing on all of them.

"I am sure there are going to be pictures that are going to be graphic," he said last week, adding that it is difficult to imagine the suffering his parents went through in the last few minutes of their lives.

"I can't imagine how bad it was," Hadaller said. "Or how they could shoot them with a shotgun."

The prosecutor said last year that he met with Hadaller shortly after taking office to assure him the case was a priority to his administration.

While authorities suspect the brothers were responsible for the Maurins' deaths for nearly 20 years, it is still unclear what, if anything, developed in the case to spur prosecutors to file charges against Riffe last year.

Since the initial press conference about Riffe's arrest, law enforcement officials and the prosecutor's office have been quiet about the circumstances of the

However, Riffe's Seattlebased defense attorney, John Crowley, frequently answered questions from the local media about the case, and insists that his client is innocent.

Riffe intends to testify in his own defense, Crowley said.

Crowley has said multiple times that there is no physical evidence linking his client to the homicides, and that throughout the two-decade investigation, multiple people, who were not the Riffe brothers, have confessed to Maurins' murders.

'This is going to be a case where Mr. Riffe tells the truth," Crowley said Friday.

MWP Checks Off Napavine

NAPAVINE — It always feels good to check something off your to-do list.

For the Morton-White Pass Timberwolves, who have made the previous two State 2B championship games, that to-do list is certainly loftier then most teams — but they'll take their first victory as a combined team over perennial 2B power Napavine on the Tigers' home turf.

There are certain goals that we have and when we looked at the schedule this is the one that was circled," Morton-White Pass coach Aaron Poquette said. "It took a long time to get here as a program and we've been waiting years to win a game here."

It was worth the wait for running back Brian Reynolds, who sloshed through a rainstorm his freshman year in a loss to Napavine, but came back with vengeance as a senior, rushing 23 times for 220 yards and three touchdowns in a 41-7 Central 2B victory over the Associated Press' No. 3 ranked Tigers.

Tumwater Holds Off Bearcats Late to Avoid Upset

avantuyl@chronline.com

The Tumwater defense was exactly as immovable as the Bearcats were expecting.

Especially when it wasn't working unpaid overtime.

W.F. West managed to turn three turnovers into touchdowns in the first half, but No. 2-ranked Tumwater's offense took control in the third quarter and survived a late Bearcat rally for a 35-28 win over Friday night in Evergreen 2A Conference football action in Chehalis.

W.F. West set off on a final drive with 4 minutes, 5 seconds left in the game, and marched from its own 9-yard line to the Tumwater 16 with 42 seconds left. Quarterback Tanner Gueller and his receiving corps hit their groove during that span, hitting 7 of 11 passes for 72 yards. The final pass, though, was picked off by Gabe Gliezes in the end zone to end the threat and the game.

"I thought the last 8 minutes of the game said a lot about us as a team," said Bearcat coach Bob Wollan, whose team entered the game 4-0 and ranked No. 6 in the Associated Press poll. "It looked really bleak, but we answered and didn't cave in. I've seen it happen a lot of times when things start going really bad for you - especially after that pick-6 they had — where we could have said, 'Hey, it was a nice try,' and we didn't.'

That interception Wollan was referencing came in the third quarter. Tumwater had taken its first lead of the game, 28-21, on a 78-yard, nine-play drive that ended with a 36-yard scoring run from Easton Trakel and a 2-point conversion from powerful fullback Christian Cummings. The Bearcats' ensuing possession lasted just three plays, until Gleizes picked off a pass at midfield and packed it all the way back for a touchdown and a 35-21 advantage.

With just under 7 minutes left in the fourth quarter, though, Cummings fumbled on the Bearcat 8-yard line, and three plays later Gueller tossed a bomb to Toby Johnson, who wrenched the ball from a defender midair and had an open path to the end zone to cut the lead to 35-28. The Bearcats forced a quick Tumwater punt, setting up the final drive.

Until that final drive, the W.F. West offense had plenty of trouble against the stingy T-Bird

'It was hard to do anything consistent, that's for sure," Wollan said. "Their pressure is amazing, and that's the best set of defensive backs we've seen them have since I've been here. They committed seven guys to the core and put a lot of pressure on us, and any time we tried to go four-wide-reciever sets, we had a lot of trouble defending."

The fourth-quarter fumble was the Thunderbirds' sixth of the game, five of which were recovered by W.F. West. Three of those came in the first half, with each setting up a scoring drive. Riley Edwards recovered the first, on a Tumwater handoff on its own 3-yard line. Two plays later Gueller found Johnson at the back end of the end zone for the game's first strike.

Capital Blasts Tigers, 50-6

By The Chronicle

OLYMPIA — Capital picked up its first win here Friday night, and threw an exclamation point on for good measure.

Cougars dominated Centralia in a 50-6 victory to open both teams' Evergreen 2A Conference football schedule, running for 266 yards and leading 43-6 at halftime.

'Capital is much better than what they showed on film," Tiger coach Matt Whitmire said. "We ran into a buzz-saw tonight."

Capital got 107 rushing yards and two touchdowns from Conner Kennedy and 100 yards and a score from Ryan Rieta, bouncing out to a 43-0 lead in the second quarter. Centralia, meanwhile, was held to 137 yards of offense.

Jacob Monohon scored the lone Tiger touchdown on a 27yard reception from quarterback Joe Blaser.

"We have a league that is obviously loaded at the top," Whitmire said. "This week, we weren't there."

Jovany Almanza led Centralia with 47 rushing yards on 16

"Jovany Almanza is the workhorse offensively and defensively," Whitmire said. "Heart of a lion."

Capital, though, held the Tigers to just 99 yards on the

Shadle QB First to Throw for Over 600 Yards in 11-Man

SPOKANE (MCT) — Shadle Park junior quarterback Brett Rypien had another mind-dazzling night, becoming the first 11-man Washington football player to throw for more than 600 yards Thursday night, as the Highlanders knocked off Greater Spokane League-leading Mt. Spokane 63-42 at Joe Albi Stadium.

Rypien completed 44 of 59 passes for 613 yards and eight touchdowns. He also rushed for a touchdown, accounting for all of the Highlanders' scoring.

The 613 eclipses the single-game GSL record Rypien set last year when he threw for 577 in an overtime loss to Central Val-

Most important, though, the Highlanders secured tiebreaking criteria over Mt. Spokane should the teams finished tied. That would give Shadle the top 3A postseason seed.

fin III will finally get their first chance to match wits on the foot- afternoon: ball field.

"It's going to be a fun game. It's going to be a great opportunity, obviously," Wilson said. "He (Luck) shows so much leadership and so much poise out there. So that's the great thing about him. For me, at the end of the day, we're playing the Indianapolis Colts.'

Everyone else, of course, will be watching to see how these young stars handle the big stage. So far, they've done everything right.

Last season, Luck and Wilson were unmitigated success stories, and this season, they've debunked the myth of the sophomore slump.

Luck has a better completion percentage, fewer interceptions and has seen his quarterback rating improve from 76.5 to 91.9. Of course, he'd be content to keep the Colts (3-1) atop the AFC South.

And though Wilson is on pace to throw for a few more interceptions, a few less touchdowns and a slightly lower completion percentage this season, Seattle is off to its first 4-0 start and is now the early front-runner to represent the NFC in the Super Bowl.

Luck is impressed.

"I think he's very underrated as a dropback passer," the Colts quarterback said. "He can make all of the throws, you see it when he's as impressive just dropping back and going through his reads as he is rolling out and making plays happen."

> Who's better? That depends on the fan base — and who has the postgame celebration at Lucas Oil Stadium.

Five things to watch Sunday

RUN OR PASS

Who's the better runner? Wilson, usually considered the more mobile quarterback, ran for 489 yards last season and has already compiled 131 yards rushing in 2013. Luck, considered the pocket passer, has a higher per-carry average (7.9 to 4.9) and has run for nearly twice as many touchdowns as Wilson (7-4) in their first 20 games.

ANYTHING YOU CAN DO...

Last year, the Seahawks proved they had one of the league's top defenses, and they've done nothing to disappoint in 2013. They're allowing 11.8 points per game and now have a chance to sweep Houston and Indy on the road. The Colts' defense may be on the verge of taking the kind of step Seattle did last year. Indy is looking for a third straight strong performance after yielding 10 total points and forcing five combined turnovers in back-to-back road

KODAK MOMENT

Reggie Wayne and Robert Mathis have poster-sized photos hanging outside Lucas Oil Stadium. This weekend, the two fan favorites could give everyone a game to remember. Wayne you watch games, and I think needs 10 receptions to become the ninth player in league history with 1,000 catches. Mathis needs one more sack to join Dwight Freeney as the second player in

BALANCING ACT

Seattle began its resurgence after making a midseason trade with Buffalo for Marshawn Lynch in 2010. Since then, Lynch led Seattle to the playoffs in 2010, went to the Pro Bowl in 2011 and was a key cog in last year's playoff run. Indy is hoping for similar results after completing a trade for 2012 first-round pick Trent Richardson 21/2 weeks ago. Richardson has scored in each of his first two games with Indy and has helped the Colts top 150 yards rushing both times.

FAMILIAR FACES

were considered the favorites, being ranked No. 1 in the state in that same AP poll, they faltered against the Tigers' defense in their first drive of the game and a battle appeared to be on. Then Napavine went backwards 2 yards on their first drive and had to punt the ball back to Morton-White Pass, which drove from their own 34-yard line and scored on a Gianni Bertucci 3-yard run.

Another Tiger punt brought MWP's second score, a 2-yard run from Reynolds. The Tigers stalled again on offense and MWP broke the game open with a 74-yard scoring pass from Rylon Kolb to Kalen Dunlap that put the Timberwolves up 21-0 with 5 minutes to go in the second quarter.

Napavine did have a momentum-swinging pick-6 towards the end of the first half, but on the run back the ball popped out of defensive back Brady Woodrum's hands and Morton-White Pass recovered for a rather unconventional first down. Woodrum picked Kolb again four plays later and the score stayed 21-0 at the half. Napavine, though, couldn't get anything going.

"I was worried about them us with 1-on-1 matchups," Poquette said. "That comes down to our interior defense, and those four guys up front ate up offensive linemen and our linebackers were making all sorts of plays."

The Tigers' line helped them outscore their first four opponents 156-24, but Morton-White Pass' hogs started to roll in the second half. Reynolds scored again with 2:43 to go in the third on a 1-yard run, then Bertucci scored on a 10-yard jaunt to put the Timberwolves up 34-0.

"Everyone knows what it feels like to lose those two state titles," Reynolds said after the game. "We know we've got to step it up that much more and keep improving. Keep moving up a couple more notches."

The defense certainly did that, holding the Tigers to 93 total yards, while Morton-White Pass' rushed for 322 yards and Kolb finished with 137 passing yards and sat out the second half of the game. Brady

Woodrum Napavine on the board with 4 minutes to go in the game on a 1-yard touchdown run. The Timberwolves, however, responded with a Reynolds 60yard touchdown run on the first play of the next drive for the game's final score.

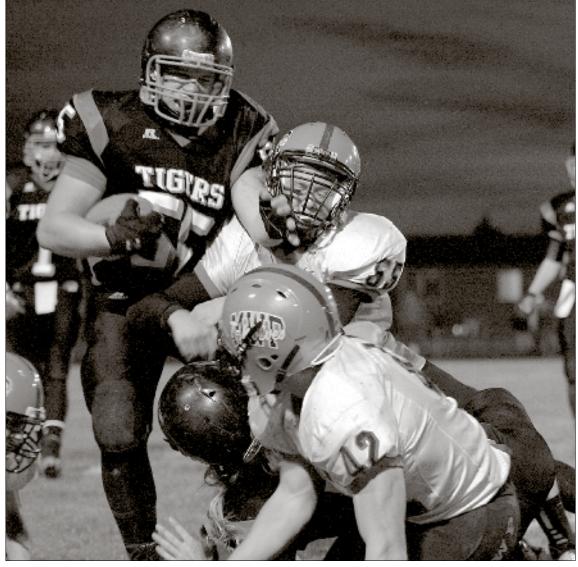

"The smallest guy on our line is 245 pounds," Reynolds said. "It's a big line to work with. It's great, holes just open up."

Napavine got 49 yards from Katyn Newcomb on the ground, while Bertucci finished with 52 yards for Morton-White Pass.

Morton-White Pass (5-0) plays at Toutle Lake next weekend, while Napavine (4-1) goes to Wahkiakum.

"The boys were ready to play tonight," Trojan coach Josh Fluke said. "Valley's got a pretty good team, but we stepped up."

Aidan Arrington tossed a pair of touchdown passes to Kalen Jurek, from 15 and 13 yards, and Dustin Lusk ran for 64 yards with a 22-yard scoring scamper. Austin Arrington added a 6-yard scoring plunge in the fourth quarter.

Nick Bailey led Pe Ell with 96 rushing yards on 20 attempts.

"The offensive line did the best they've ever done," Fluke pointed out.

Tale Pilz returned to the lineup at defensive end and made a big impact, and linebackers Dalton Toepelt and Jurek were both standouts at linebacker, Fluke added.

Pe Ell (1-4, 0-4 Central 2B League) will now return to league play with a game at Mossyrock on Friday.

"I think the kids know what they can do now," Fluke said. "I'm hoping (the momentum) will keep. They know their potential and what they can do for the next games."

Loggers Edged By Mules

ONALASKA — The Loggers had to dig themselves out of a hole early, and once they did that they couldn't quite push past Wahkiakum in a 36-28 Central 2B League football loss here on Friday.

"After that start we have to fight up the backside and our kids mounted a comeback," Onalaska coach Mazen Saade said. "I thought our kids never gave up and we played solid all the way through."

After falling behind 16-0 in the first quarter, the Loggers got a 16-yard touchdown run from running back Keifer Kastl to get on the board.

Wahkiakum would score agin but Onalaska would respond with a 27-yard pass from Travis McMillion to Trevor Lawrence to pull within 22-14 at halftime.

After the break, Onalaska scored on a Kastl 3-yard run, then Lawrence caught a 2-point conversion pass from McMillion to tie things up at 22-22. The Mules responded with a 23yard touchdown run before Mc-Million scored on a 52-yard pass to Evan Wrzesinski.

Wahkiakum got the last score of the game in the third quarter on a 43-yard run and the teams played scoreless in the fourth. Kastl finished with 70 yards on the ground and Mc-Million added 66. The Onalaska quarterback was also 5 of 9 for 136 yards in the air.

The Mules earned 322 yards on the ground.

"We've got to make some adjustments," Saade said. "We've got a tough nonleague game coming up and we've got to get our game plan ready to go."

Onalaska (2-3) travels to Naselle on Friday.

Ducks Trounce Winlock

WINLOCK — Toutle Lake came to Winlock Friday night and trounced the home team in a 44-0 Central 2B League football win.

The Ducks entered the game with just one league win under their belts, but left a blazing impression on the Cardinals.

"It was just kind of a weird game," said Winlock coach Mike Voie. "They scored on their first drive and then ended up doing some onside kicks that we couldn't get to. By the time we looked up again it was 24-0."

Winlock prepared all week to stop the Toutle Lake ground game, which game film said was their bread and butter. What the Cardinals couldn't prepare for was what they didn't know about — namely, Toutle Lake quarterback Travis Butler.

"What we have seen in the past was just pounding up the middle," explained Voie, "but with this kid, they were able to open it up."

Butler, who stands about 6-foot-3, became eligible for action for the first time this week, Voie said.

"That Butler kid was just a total surprise. You ought to see this kid. He's just become eligible and might be one of the best players in the league. (Toutle Lake) is going to be a contender

Butler threw for 57 yards including two touchdowns, and ran for another 42 yards and a touchdown. Luke Brown caught and ran in touchdowns for Toutle Lake, with Jared Corbet and Dalton Phillips each galloping in for a score.

Evan Mitchell led Winlock with 60 yards rushing.

Winlock (0-5) will host Adna (2-3) on Friday for homecoming.

Pirates Bounce Mossyrock, 21-6

ADNA - Despite its undaunting 1-3 record heading into Friday's game with Mossyrock, Adna has every intention of reaching the playoffs for the 12th straight season.

After holding back Mossyrock here to the tune of a 21-6 victory, Adna finds itself in a very familiar position to achieve

'Our schedule's pretty tough. It's just like last year," said Adna coach K.C. Johnson. Last year Adna came out of the gate slow as well, then found its stride in the latter portion of their league schedule, before bowing out in the first round of the State 2B playoffs.

That resiliency was on display versus Mossyrock, as Adna was outgunned on offense by Mossyrock (261 to 229 yards), but still managed to grind out a win. Mossyrock even held a 6-0 for a time after Shaun Stephens capped an 80-yard drive with an 8-yard scoring scamper. "They drove right down the field and punched it in on us," said Johnson. After that, the defense took over. 'We played really good defense. We were bend, don't break, all game," he said.

The defensive game plan for Adna was to minimize the damage inflicted by Mossyrock's do-it-all quarterback Stephens. After the initial scoring drive for Mossyrock, Adna was able to hold its ground.

"The big one for us on the night was we held Stephens to 36 yards on 18 carries," noted John-

Johnson also commented on the surprising lack of turnovers.

"They had one and we had none, which was pretty amazing considering the field conditions — which were not pretty,"

Johnson also praised the play of linemen Tyler Olson and Levi Williams.

After slowing the Viking's early inertia, Adna was able to tie the game up in the second quarter on a 5-yard Mike Thompson touchdown run. Thompson struck again in the third, bursting for an 80-yard kickoff return for a touchdown and running in his own 2-point conversion.

A 56-yard touchdown run by Tyson Gray capped the scoring for Adna.

The Pirates (2-3) play at Winlock (0-5) next week, while Mossyrock (2-3) will host Pe Ell.

Bearcats: W.F. West Hosts Black Hills Friday

Tumwater's next drive, though, chewed up 69 yards — all on the ground — in just over 3 minutes, capped when Cummings broke free for a 23yard scoring dash up the right side to tie things at 7-7.

W.F. West recovered another fumble on the Tumwater 13-yard line, with 9 minutes left in the second quarter, but took a pair of 5-yard steps back on false starts. After a 5-yard Gueller run, and a loss of 6 yards on a sack, Gueller hit Alex Cox up the left side for a 24-yard scoring pass. The lead lasted all of 25

Tumwater took the kickoff on its own 31-yard line, moved 5 yards on a run by Tyrus Snow, and gave it to Cummings for a 63-yard scamper up the right side to re-tie the score.

T-Birds' miscues, though, continued to haunt them. Tumwater forced a punt on fourth-and-17, but muffed the recovery on its own 46yard line. The reprieve boosted the offense's spirits; Toby Johnson hauled a reverse 16 yards; two plays later Gueller found Verderico on a short middle screen for 19 yards; and Gueller then found Cox wide open in the end zone for a 9-yard touchdown pass, and a 21-14 advantage.

The Bearcats nearly stuffed Tumwater at the goal line on the T-Birds' next possession, but a fourth-and-goal from the 4-yard line resulted in a roughing-the-passer penalty and an automatic first down from the 2-yard line. Cummings needed just one more shot, quickly punching it in on the first down. The kick, however, floated too far right, leaving W.F. West clinging to a 21-20 halftime lead.

Tumwater finished with 311 rushing yards, led by 184 from Cummings on 21 carries. Tyrus Snow added 95 yards on 13 carries.

Johnson led W.F. West with 113 receiving yards on six catches, and Gueller went 19 of 37 passing for 224 yards. He also ran for 31 yards and snagged a halfback pass from Alex Cox for 15 yards in the fourth quarter.

Despite the loss, Wollan was impressed with his team's on-field grit.

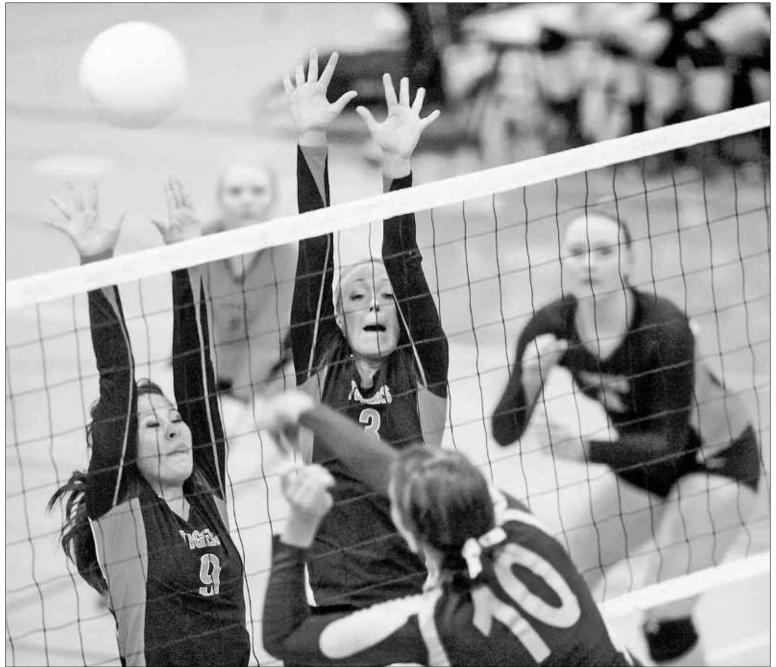

"We just showed some toughness and some backbone," he said. "Hopefully that bodes well for us in the future, because we have some things we still have to learn. We're learning, and that's a good football team we played. W.F. West (4-1) will host

As rivalry games tend to do, things got wild between Centralia and W.F. West Thursday night in an Evergreen 2A Conference volleyball matchup.

After taking the first two sets, 25-12, 25-11, Centralia fell behind early to W.F. West in the third set.

"We thought we had lost the (third) set," explained Centralia coach Neil Sharp. "They thought they had won it 25-23, but it ended up that they had in a wrong server. So, we got the point, and the came back and won (29-27)."

The win improved the Tigers to 2-3 in Evergreen 2A Conference play, clinched by the thirdset rally.

ROCHESTER — The Warriors moved back to .500 on the season with a three-game sweep of SWW 1A League Evergreen Division foe Forks, 25-9, 25-18 and 25-10 here on Thursday night.

Bailey Spangler led the team with seven kills while Ariel Saxon and Sarah Johnson each had six in a balanced attack for Rochester.

"We played great in our first win at home," Rochester coach Wendy Hawes said. "There's been nerves at home before but we stayed consistent and strong and had a lot of fun."

Toledo Swept at Stevenson

STEVENSON — Toledo was unable to muster much mustard against Stevenson Thursday night, dropping three straight sets to the home team, 25-18, 25-18, 25-21 in a SWW 1A League Trico Division loss.

The Indians made the long trek to Stevenson with high hopes after stealing a set on Tuesday versus Trio powerhouse King's Way Christian. A lackluster effort and sloppy play doomed Toledo's hopes of obtaining their second league win, however.

"We can't go and take a game away from King's Way and then take five steps back against a team that we should beat," lamented Toledo coach Whitney Luchau. "It's not the skill, they have the skill. They just have to put the pieces together to be successful."

For Toledo, Jessica Kelly crushed seven kills and had two blocks. Sarah Subjeck lofted 12 assists and had nine digs, and Amanda Boone added 6 kills.

Toledo (1-6 league) will host Seton Catholic on Tuesday.

Grizzlies Take Down Tenino

HOQUIAM — The Grizzlies swept Tenino 25-21, 25-23, 25-23 in SWW 1A League Evergreen Division volleyball action here on Thursday night to keep pace with top dog Montesano in the league standings.

The Beavers got 15 kills and four aces from Erin Engebreth but slow starts in each game hurt their chances.

We were down by 10 points in each game and we tried to back a run back in each of them but was unsuccessful," Tenino coach Emily Peterson said. "We worked well in the later half of each game but we would get unlucky and we couldn't afford to be unlucky when we got in a hole like that."

Morton-White Pass coach Tammy Kelly also doled out praise for Taylor Brooks.

"She did a good job serving again for us tonight," said Kelly, noting that Brooks landed eight aces on 29 service attempts.

"We kind of spread it out more than we usually do. We were trying to get more people involved in our offense and we were able to do that tonight, so that was nice," said Kelly. "It was just good to see more than a couple of girls getting some good MOSSYROCK — Mossyrock dropped its league opener against Wahkiakum 24-26, 25-14, 19-25, 23-25 here on Thursday night despite 18 kills from Calli Hensch.

"If we would have played like we did in set four the whole way we would have won," Mossyrock coach Alex Nelson said. "But it was too little too late and I think we had a few too many service errors in key times." Mossyrock had 10 aces to 12 errors. Kelsie Moorcroft (13 of 14) and Jordynn Myers (15 of 16) were highlights for the Vikings behind the service stripe on the evening. Amber St. Pierre also dished 27 assists.

"We're a good matchup against Wahkiakum every time," Nelson said. "It's either going to be a tough win or loss."

Mossyrock (5-2, 0-1 league) plays at Toutle Lake on Thursday.

By The Chronicle

W.F. West's McKenna Moon scored on an assist from Julia Carter in the 48th minute to lift the Bearcats' past Evergreen 2A Conference and Twin Cities rival Centralia on Thursday night at Tiger Stadium. It was W.F. West's second win of the season, while the Tigers are still looking for a

"We had two really good opportunities (including a missed open shot on goal shot) that we didn't score on," Centralia coach Sue Parke said. "We just didn't finish them."

The Bearcats, meanwhile got great defensive play from Hannah Tak, Kassidy Grandorff, Madelyn Baker and Ashley Hoven, said W.F. West coach Tino Sanchez. He also liked the midfield play of Anna Russell and Moon.

"It was the best game that these girls have played in two years," Parke said. "They are getting better every game and you know it's Chehalis, it's crosstown rivals. A lot of these girls have played together so they want to come out and compete."

Tigers goalkeeper Josylyn Gillaspie finished the game with nine saves. Parke said that defender Hannah Jeffries made a save as well. Arleth Ramirez also had a good game at midfield for Centralia, Parke pointed out.

The whole team played hard, with more intensity tonight," Parke said. "Which is what they need to start doing in every game. They were a bit disappointed. I thought they thought that we could have won this game."

Bearcat Netters Shut Out River Ridge

By The Chronicle

The Bearcat boys came to the courts hungry in an Evergreen 2A Conference tennis match versus River Ridge here Thursday, defeating the visiting Hawks 6-0 in Chehalis.

In singles play Daniel Blomdahl defeated Jason Trinh 5-7, 6-3, 6-1. Andrew Painter bested Christian Calumpit in straight sets and Cameron Richards won by default at No. 3 singles.

Doubles action produced more of the same results. Ethan Tufts and Jeff Tereski took down Ben Oliver and Justin Porter 6-0, 6-1 in the top match. Sean Touhey and Jacob Schneider defeated Kurt Price and Kyle Counard 6-1, 6-2, and Nate Birchard and Brandon Touhey toppled Thuan Le and Kameren Murphy 6-1, 6-2.

W.F. West coach Jack State was impressed with the play at No. 1 singles, where Blomdahl got his win. "Their number one player (Jason Trinh) is a very good player. He hits the ball hard, is pretty athletic, runs well, moves well," said State. "I was very pleased with the way Daniel adjusted to (Trinh's) game, because (Trinh) is a big hitter. If you hit the ball hard to his forehand, then it is coming back twice as hard."

The Bearcats (2-3 league) hosts Aberdeen on Friday, and play at Tumwater on Monday.

Boston Red Sox had scored five runs in the fourth inning, taking advantage of Tampa Bay's bad luck and bad defense to overcome an early deficit and beat the Rays 12-2 on Friday in Game 1 of the AL division series.

Tampa Bay starter Matt By the time it was over, the Moore had still not given up a hit.

But Dustin Pedroia led off the bottom half with a single up the middle, and then David Ortiz hit a high fly ball that center fielder Desmond Jennings and right fielder Wil Myers converged on. The Rays rookie raised his right hand to call off Jennings but let it fall behind him and bounce off the warning track and into the bullpen for a double.

Jacoby Ellsbury reached on a passed ball on strike three which would have been the third out of the inning — and Middlebrooks moved to third, where he scored on Shane Victorino's single to make it 5-2.

None of the misplays was scored an error.

"That Myers play obviously gave us some momentum," Victorino said. "All those kind of things and it became a snowball effect. Plays like that happen. You've got to thrive and you've got to get as many runs as you can when a mistake like that is made."

The Red Sox added three more runs to chase Moore in the fifth inning, when they sent nine batters to the plate — the first time in franchise history they have batted around in consecutive innings in a postseason game. In all, Moore was charged with eight runs — seven earned - on eight hits, two walks a hit batter and a wild pitch, striking out four in 4 ½ innings.

Lester struck out the first four batters he faced, but gave up homers over the Monster to Rodriguez in the second and Zobrist in the fourth. In all, he allowed three hits and three walks while striking out seven before leaving with two on and two out in the eighth.

Seattle Manager Search Won't Get Rolling Yet

SEATTLE (AP) — The process of finding a new manager for the Seattle Mariners probably won't get rolling for another week to 10 days, general manager Jack Zduriencik said Friday.

he third time in his short tenure as the Mari GM Zduri that encik will be searching for a new field manager. Zduriencik said he's still in the process of gathering the names of those who have reached out and shown interest and those whom the Mariners want to speak with, and teams in the playoffs could also affect his timeline.

"Until we get to a point where I feel comfortable with all of the names that we have and maybe some of the clubs are out of the playoffs we might have interest in, I won't even begin the process," Zduriencik said.

Zduriencik didn't expect to be in this position. As of a few weeks ago, Zduriencik had planned on spending the first week after the season down at instructional league in Arizona getting a look at some of Seattle's top young prospects.

Instead he's preparing for a third managerial search since he arrived as Seattle's GM in 2008 and to hire the eighth manager or interim manager for the franchise since 2002. Former manager Eric Wedge announced last matsu, who was fired during the week that he would not return in 2014, citing differences of opinthe Mariners rebuilding process.

Goff to be Back at Controls Against Washington St.

Washington State quarterback Connor Halliday and the Cougs hope to get back to winning this week against Cal.

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Jared Goff admitted his confidence was a bit shaken when the California freshman quarterback was benched in the first quarter of last week's loss to No. 2 Or-

Goff, who began his college career by becoming just the second player in school history to throw for more than 400 yards in back-to-back games, fumbled twice in the rain and completed only 3 of 7 pass attempts before Golden Bears coach Sonny Dykes made the switch to redshirt freshman Zach Kline.

The two quarterbacks split time with Cal's first-team offense in practice this week, but Dykes said Goff will be back in the lineup Saturday when the Bears (1-3, 0-1 Pac-12) host Washington problems defensively have come from a State (3-2, 1-1).

"It took me a day to get my confidence back," Goff said. "Sunday was a little rough for me. But after that I was

Before his stumbles against the Ducks, Goff had been the one bright spot in an otherwise rocky start to Dykes' first season at Cal.

Despite not playing the final three quarters against Oregon, Goff is still seventh in the nation in passing and is third in the Pac-12 in completions per Dykes has not ruled out using both quarterbacks against Washington State but said he is satisfied with the way Goff responded after getting benched.

"He had a good body of work thus far other than the beginning of the Oregon game," Dykes aid. "I just wanted to see how he responded. You never know with an 18-year-old kid how he's going to handle when things don't go his way.' Here are five things to watch when ing 373 yards.

the Bears host the Cougars:

OLD FRIENDS, NEW RIVALRY: Dykes and Washington State coach Mike Leach have a long history together dating back to 1997 when both were assistant coaches at Kentucky. Dykes was also the receivers coach and cooffensive coordinator at Texas Tech from 2000-06 when Leach was the head coach of the Red Raiders. The two remain close friends and Dykes credits Leach with teaching him the nuances of the 'Air Raid' offense Cal currently uses. The most important lesson Leach taught him, however, was about treating players. "Mike doesn't put on airs and I've always respected that," Dykes said. "The biggest thing (was) just teaching me about being authentic. Players can see through bull and there's no bull

THE STREAK: The Bears have won eight straight in the series between the two conference rivals, matching an eight-game streak they had against the Cougars from 1920-29. Cal last lost to Washington State in 2002 — when Goff was 7 years old. Leach, however, got the edge on Cal in 2004 when Texas Tech beat the then-fourth-ranked Bears in the Holiday Bowl.

GOING SACK-LESS: Part of Cal's lack of a pass rush. The Bears had just one sack in the back-to-back blowout losses to Oregon and Ohio State, and have just four total all season. That could change this week against Washington State, even though the Cougars have allowed just nine sacks in five games. Three of Cal's first four opponents have featured running quarterbacks, but Washington State QB Connor Halliday is more of a traditional drop-back passer.

AIR RAID DEFENSE?: As much success as the Cougars have had throwing the ball this season, they've been equally impressive in defending the pass. Twice this season — against Auburn and USC — Washington State has allowed fewer than 100 yards in the air. Overall, the Cougars are giving up just 159 yards passing per game. Cal quarterbacks, on the other hand, are averag-

Stanford, Washington Meet in Pac-12 North Tilt

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Almost every time a Pac-12 challenger has emerged recently to oppose Stanford and Oregon — the winners of the last four conference championships — the Cardinal and Ducks show just how much of a gap there is between them and everybody else.

The latest contender: Washington.

The Huskies have another opportunity to unseat both the next two weeks and vault themselves into the national championship picture for the first time in at least a decade. No. 15 Washington (4-0, 1-0) plays at fifth-ranked Stanford (4-0, 2-0) on Saturday night before hosting No. 2 Oregon next week.

The outcomes might not only determine which way Washington's season goes, they also could decide whether there will be any shuffling in the Pac-12's North Division or just a continuation of the two-team dominance before the Cardinal and Ducks meet at Stanford Stadium on Nov. 7.

"This team's really cool," Washington coach Steve Sarkisian said. "It's not the what-ifs. It's about what is occurring right now."

Sarkisian's squad seemed ready to break the trend when the Huskies handed Stanford its lone conference loss last season, a 17-13 setback in Seattle. Instead, Washington lost to Oregon the following week and finished with a mediocre 7-6 record. Stanford went on to beat the Ducks and win the Pac-12 and the Rose Bowl.

Both teams have made massive strides since they last met.

The Cardinal failed to score an offensive touchdown and often looked lost under quarterback Josh Nunes at Washington last year while they adjusted to life without Andrew Luck. Mobile quarterback Kevin Hogan took over late last season to spark Stanford's surge and is 9-0 as the starter.

The Huskies, who allowed Stanford to run for a school-record 446 yards in a 65-21 whipping of Washington in 2011, are a totally different team now.

Washington now has the fourthbest scoring defense in the nation (10.8 points per game) under second-year coordinator Justin Wilcox. And the offense features four elite playmakers - quarterback Keith Price, tight end Austin Seferian-Jenkins, running back Bishop Sankey and wide receiver Kasen Williams — and an improved line.

But Stanford, which has won 12 straight games and 11 in a row at home, will present a far tougher test than Washington has faced this season and an opportunity to rejoin college football's heavyweights. The Huskies haven't started 5-0 since 1992.

Here are five things to watch when Washington and Stanford meet Saturday night:

THE DEEP BALL: Stanford, about what might occur down the road, known best for its power running game, has forced defenses to back off the line by shifting its passing attack from short and intermediate throws to tight ends to deep balls to wide receivers. Hogan found Devon Cajuste for touchdowns of 57 and 33 yards and hit Michael Rector on a 45-yard TD in a 55-17 win over Washington State last for at least 100 yards in seven of his last nine games and will likely need another strong performance to slow down Stanford's relentless pass rush. Sankey ran for 144 yards against the Cardinal last season.

> WASHINGTON'S WORK-HOUSE: Sankey leads the nation with 151.8 yards rushing per game. He's run

EFFICIENT QBs: Hogan (174.6) and Price (173.6) enter the game with the Pac-12's highest passer ratings. Hogan has completed 63 percent of his passes for 832 yards and 10 touchdowns with three interceptions this season. He also is Stanford's thirdleading rusher with 124 yards. Price has completed 72 percent of his passes for 1,044 yards and nine touchdowns with two interceptions. He also has run for 67 yards and a TD in Washington's up-tempo offense.

The Annual Community Farmers Market Harvest Dinner is mixing things up this year with vendors, farmers, and local chefs coming together to make this year's event even better than the last.

Each chef will be paired with an item from each vendor or farm, to put together a unique menu from appetizers to desserts.

"When a unified body of individuals can provide locally sourced produce, cheese, bread, and everything in-between, that you could need for an event like this, tit is a pretty special, and unique, thing to have that in our community," said Lucy Page, Farmers Market board member.

The Harvest Dinner is a chance for the community to meet other like-minded people in their community and to support each other any way they can, and that is what makes the dinner special, says Page.

"Our farmers market is one-of-a-kind especially for our small community," explained Page. "If you go to markets in a smaller area like ours it seems like there aren't as many options and we have so many different vendors to choose from, and to be able to sit down and talk with the vendors and farmers, and learn something new is what we hope for, and for growth and awareness in our community."

The new Farmers Market manager, Rachael Reiton, says her goal for upcoming seasons is to make the Farmers Market even more family- and visitor-friendly.

"I want the market to be a place where people can come and just hang out, to learn, or to find something people didn't even know they wanted or needed," said Reiton. "It is not just about the community supporting the vendors and farmers, but the vendors and farmers supporting the community, and that is what the Harvest Dinners does, they make dinner for you."

This year the table arrangements are a little different too, says Reiton.

"We had community members set each six-person table with their own plates, silverware and table settings, so each one is unique and ties the community in even more with the Harvest Dinner," Reiton said.

Newaukum Valley Farm owner, Melissa Hyatt, says it is also a chance for people to learn that the market is still going on.

"As the rain hits, I think people think the market is over and stop coming; but we are still there until the last Tuesday of October," Hyatt shared. "The fall season has given us lots of root vegetables, so there are squashes and other winter vegetables available."

The harvest dinner also gives the farmers a chance to explain what they will be doing over the winter season and which farms will have winter shares, or community supported agriculture available after the market is over.

"This season has been very abundant," said Hyatt. "We are storing always lots and lots of produce for our winter shares, and I am sure Helsing Junction, Boistfort Valley Farm, and others are, as well."

Reiton says she plans to find more ways of reaching out to the community so that she can get feedback as to what area residents are looking for in the Farmers Market.

"During this off season I really want to get the word out there about the Market, and do more things that are interactive with the community," explained Reiton. "For example, we are taking art from local artists for next season's farmer's market flyers, and we will be accepting art up into the spring."

This year 22 vendors started off the season, including Black Sheep Creamery, who is one of the vendors that will be supplying their specialty cheeses for the Harvest Dinner. Rieton said they would have had even more vendors if the space was available.

"The city of Chehalis has been very supportive, and we wouldn't change anything about our experience where we are located now, other than the fact that we have run out of space for more vendors," explained

"We really do have the availability to purchase anything we really need locally," said Page. "We really want people to be aware of that and to make those vendors continually available at the market, so we can continue to have them in our community; that is how we will continue to grow."

Six Greatest Acceptance Speech Moments at the Emmys

By Patrick Kevin Day

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — For most award shows, the acceptance speeches are the worst part. Laundry lists of names get checked off, and there are casual nods to fellow nominees and occasionally breathless exclamations. They've become so deadly that awards show producers have instituted even stricter limits on how long these speeches can last.

Still, this hasn't made the speeches more interesting, so instead, the voting members of the TV academy came up with an ingenious new approach. Instead of voting along popular conventional wisdom, make a series of wackadoo voting choices and sit back as flabbergasted performer after flabbergasted performer comes to the stage to accept his or her award.

For the 65th Emmys show, that tactic seems to have gone a long way to redeeming what was otherwise a show of lackluster comedy bits and awkwardly staged "In Memoriam" tributes.

So here, for the perusal of future awards show winners (we're looking at you, Oscar hopefuls) are some of the best acceptance speech moments from the 2013 Emmy awards:

Very short, very sweet: "Nurse Jackie's" Merritt Wever clearly wasn't ready to be the night's first award recipient. Her win for supporting actress in a comedy series came as a shock to the audience, and to her as well. Her speech, in its entirety: "Thank you so much! Um ... I gotta go. Bye." A speech so great, not even Sorkin or Mamet would have thought to try it.

Vatican Considering Santa Cruz Mountains Mystic For Sainthood

Michael Huston, left, Father Gary Thomas and Michael McDevitt hold a photograph of Cora Evans at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Saratoga, California. The three are pushing for Evans to be canonized by the church.

By Mark Emmons

San Jose Mercury News

SAN JOSE, Calif. — An uncommonly devout homemaker who spent the end of her life quietly in the Santa Cruz Mountains community of Boulder Creek, Cora Evans was content not to be the center of attention.

But now, after taking the first step toward sainthood, that's no longer possible.

By declaring Evans a "Servant of God," the Vatican has put a woman who still is largely unknown 56 years after her death on the path to the Catholic Church's most exclusive club.

Canonization, which is steeped in both traditional faith and modern politics, could take decades – if it ever hap-pens. That's because two miracles will have to be credited to Evans' intercession in order to become California's first saint.

"There's no shortage of people who are Servants of God but who don't go on to become saints," said the Rev. Gary Thomas, the pastor at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Saratoga, Calif. "These are difficult deals, and they don't happen quickly. ... But having that status certainly puts her up a

Her cause is being led by Michael McDevitt and Michael Huston, cousins whose families were close to Evans. They find themselves navigating cloistered process that stretches from the Bay Area to Rome.

"We're just two regular guys," said Huston, 65, of Saratoga. Whether she becomes a saint or not, I don't know. But we feel like something special is happening."

At the center is Evans, who despite only a middle-school education wrote extensively of religious visions she experienced while in deep states of prayer. She died in 1957 and is interred with her husband at Santa Clara Mission Cemetery in a crypt high on a wall with a barely visible nameplate. Those who knew her say that's fitting because Evans was so humble in life.

She was raised in the Mormon faith in Utah before becoming disillusioned and later converting to Catholicism and moving to Southern California.

Dorothy Evans remembers her mother as an excellent cook who loved nature and possessed a gift. Throughout her life, she would slip into coma-like conditions where doctors could barely find a pulse. At those moments, she claimed to be with Jesus - whom she called "the master" - and other saints, sometimes visiting heaven and purgatory. Her daughter added that Cora Evans experienced the stigmata – painful marks that resembled the wounds on the crucified body of Christ.

"As a child, I would come home from school and say, 'How was the master today?'" added Dorothy Evans, 83, a retired teacher who lives in Spo-kane, Wash. "I didn't realize that it was unusual."

Cora Evans did become known among a circle of Catholic clergy and lay people, and she faced skeptics.

"I would hear people say when they came to the house, 'Who is this woman? She must be a kook. Nobody sees these kinds of things," Dorothy Evans said. "But isn't that human nature? We want to see it and touch it ourselves in order to believe it."

In 1992, Cora Evans' spiritual adviser, the Rev. Frank Parrish, asked McDevitt, his nephew, to become the custodian of her writings. McDevitt and Huston formed a nonprofit, the Mystical Humanity of Christ, and organized retreats that promote her core message: Christ is in everyone, and people should try to be more like him.

"Over the years, I would read Cora's writings and wonder: Why is Mike McDevitt reading this? The pope should be reading this," said McDevitt, 72, of Half Moon Bay, Calif.

Two years ago, McDevitt and Huston joined Thomas on a pilgrimage to Rome to gain a better understanding of what sainthood entailed. Church officials wanted to know more about Evans and made clear their interest in having additional saints from the United States, which has a dozen.

The church went on a saintnaming binge during the tenure of Pope John Paul II, who served from 1978 to 2005. His reign is sometimes called the 'saint factory" because he elevated 482 saints - compared with 98 by all of his 20th-century predecessors.

"He's the Barry Bonds of saint-making," said Bill Briggs, author of "The Third Miracle." 'It's very hard to become a saint, but John Paul II watered down the process, and he did it for a brilliant reason. Saints are a great marketing tool. Any time there's a new saint, it's great publicity for the church, especially in the new regions."

In March 2012, the Vatican's Congregation for the Causes of Saints announced that it was considering Evans for sainthood - giving her the Servant of God title. Over the next few years, theologians will examine her life. If that research receives the Vatican's approval that she was virtuous, Evans will be considered "Venerable."

However, the final steps are the hardest: two verified miracles, usually in the form of unexplained medical cures, which come after prayers for her intercession. Briggs, whose book chronicles the 2006 canonization of 19th-century American nun St. Mother Theodore

Guerin, calls miracles the "currency of sainthood."

"But something is only very rarely accepted as a miracle," he added. "The church is all about scientific proof. The process is incredibly intensive, forensic and takes a very long time."

It's also expensive. Evans' cause is being funded through donations of about $700,000 that McDevitt and Huston also are using to hold the free retreats to help spread her name and for the upcoming publication of her writings.

There is some evidence, the two men added, that there may have been miracles in her name, but those likely don't meet the level of documentation the Vatican requires. But they hope as she becomes better known, and more people pray for her help, there will be other miraculous occurrences that can be more thoroughly investigated.

The Rev. Joseph Grimaldi, who is the postulator - or chief promoter - for Evans, said the church will be more interested in her life story than the mystical visions. Sainthood, he said, is about creating inspirational role models for others to emu-

"Cora Evans might be a great example of someone who lived an ordinary life, was a good person, and should be imitated by living our lives in a prayerful way," said Grimaldi, 73, who had an investigative role in the canonization of two saints in Hawaii. "But it's not going to be an easy case to make, and Rome even has told us that. She is not Mother Teresa."

Dorothy Evans said her mother considered her work completed when she finished writing shortly before dying of cancer. Now, the daughter won-

"I know Mother would have fun doing something for other people," she said if any purported miracles are proved. "But I bet she's glad that she's in heaven now because I don't think she would like all this attention

Dysart's Decision Includes Smile

Tn 1890, the Centralia Ljudge presented a sunny disposition in court.

'Judge Dysart opened court this morning with a good natured smile which prevailed all through the session," The Centralia Weekly News wrote.

"William Young, you are accused of being drunk in violation of city ordinance No. 4; what have you to say?" remarked his honor.

"Guilty, sir, but please take into consideration the fact that I tried to hide myself in a back yard and keep out of the way. If you will pardon me this time I will leave town."

"Well, get," commanded his "James Matt, you are brought what have you to say?"

"Guilty of the charge honor, in one respect." Matt responded. "I was unwell yesterday and took only three drinks of blackberry brandy and it overcame me. I have a family of ten to support and a job in sight which I will lose if I do not arrive in Tacoma today. Would your honor please to remit my before me on the same charge;

"Get to Tacoma and your job," thundered his honor.

Runaway Girl Sent to Green Hill in 1911

n 1911, a young girl and La man who had run away together were incarcerated.

Yesterday afternoon, Leona Hedrick, the 15-year-old telephone girl of Chehalis whom John S. Gosts, a Greek restaurant keeper, was accused of abducting several months ago, was sentenced to the State Training School in Chehalis by Prosecuting Attorney Bishop," The Centralia Weekly Chronicle reported. "Gosts plead guilty to the charge of abducting before the Superior Court Wednesday and was sentenced to the Monroe Reformatory and the sentence passed on Miss Hedrick yesterday closes a case that has attracted much

In 1935, Clinton Stewart, Chairman of the flood control committee for the Centralia-Chehalis district, held a meeting to discuss projects to

"Plans to set up WPA (Works Progress Administration) projects in Lewis county to save much of its valuable land from ruin by erosion and floods were outlined before a group of Lewis county farmers at the Adna Grange Hall Tuesday evening. The Centralia Daily Chronicle wrote.

"It is hoped to secure WPA funds for immediate use in remedying a situation that threatens hundreds of acres of some of Lewis county's most fertile and valuable river bottom lands.'

Potential projects were located between Adna and Riverside, Chehalis; Cowlitz landing, Toledo; Pacific Highway bridge at Toledo; and Big Bottom district in the Randle area.

Tenino Landmark Removed

n 1936, an aged Tenino ▲barn was being torn down. "The old Gibson livery barn, long a relic of bygone years in Tenino, is to be no more. The large, rusty old structure on Howard Street, is being torn down for its lumber, and the removal will incidentally be an improvement to the appearance of Tenino," The Centralia Daily Chronicle reported.

The livery stable was once an important part of the activities of the town. A third of a century ago dapper drummers used to come into town, hire a horse and rig and set forth for the logging camps. Then, too, the dandies of town used to hitch-up on Sunday and go sparking along the narrow dirt roads with the local beauties. A good horse could go along without very much attention, and it wasn't necessary to bank the curves on the roads.

"Horses provided a considerable industry in these days. Two other stables in addition to the one operated by Bert Gibson, were available, although he had around 30 animals ready for use. Four blacksmith shops kept the local Dobbins equipped with footwear, where now only one remains.

Train Transports 600 Children

'n 1986, during Heritage LDays in the Twin Cities, 600 local school children were shuttled between Centralia and Chehalis on the Mount Rainier Heritage Express steam train.

Children from the local area, including Vader and Napavine elementary schools, rode the train, along with "some who looked a lot older than school kids," said a train engineer.

The event was a fundraiser for restoring Engine No. 15 at Recreation Park in Chehalis.

Woman Receives First Payment for Uncut Trees

n 2001, Florence Crumrine, rural Chehalis, was the first person in the state to be paid for uncut trees, under a new state program. Sherry Fox, president of the Washington Farm Forestry Association, said Crumrine was probably the first in the nation, as there was no other government program paying owners to leave trees standing near waterways — in her case, Coal Creek.

"Crumrine is pleased with the program and is comfortable with the state owning rights to the timber for 50 years," The Chronicle wrote. " ... She doesn't know whether the state's program will help bring back fish — she hasn't seen salmon in the creek for decades — but isn't looking a gift horse in the mouth."

BUFFALO SOLDIERS ARE STATIONED AT FORT LAWTON BEGINNING ON OCTOBER 5, 1909

900 men of the U.S. Army's 25th Infantry Regiment are transferred to Fort Lawton from the Philippines. (Seattle's Fort Lawton is on Magnolia Bluff overlooking Puget Sound in what will become Discovery Park.) The 25th is one of four regiments of African American soldiers in the Army, called Buffalo Soldiers by Plains Indians in the 1870s and 1880s. Two battalions will move on to Fort George Wright near Spokane. The soldiers at Fort Lawton and their families, who arrived the following year, constituted approximately one-third of the African American population of Seattle (about 2400 persons in 1910) during the years it was stationed here. Filipinos who enlisted in the U.S. Army were in the regiment as well.

CHAMPION BALL PLAYERS

Less well known than the 9th and 10th Cavalry Regiments, the 25th Infantry Regiment was distinguished by its baseball team, which won several U.S. Army championships and was rated the best nonprofessional team in the country. In the Army, which was segregated, African Americans could compete against whites only in athletics. The U.S. Army remained segregated until 1948.

ACCOMPLISHED MUSICIANS

The 25th regiment also had an outstanding band. Principal Musician Leslie V. King (1878-1963) graduated at the top of his class from the Washington Conservatory of Music in Seattle in 1910 and he became one of the few African American officers in the Army. (King served in the U.S. Army from 1898 to 1935.)

YAKAMA INDIAN WAR BEGINS ON OCTOBER 5, 1855

Gunfire erupts between Yakama Chief Kamiakin's 300 warriors and Major Granville O. Haller's 84man troop of soldiers. The two groups have been at a standoff across the ford at Toppenish Creek. Haller and his men are forced into retreat, but tensions continue to rise between the Indians and settlers from Southern Oregon up to the Puget Sound region.

WALDO SANITARIUM OPENS IN SEATTLE'S MAPLE LEAF NEIGHBORHOOD ON OCTOBER 5, 1924

Osteopathic physician Dr. William Earl Waldo (1885-1962) opens the Waldo Sanitarium at 8511 15th Avenue NE in Seattle's Maple Leaf neighborhood, immediately outside Seattle's city limits. Designed by Seattle architect Paul Richardson (1888-1939), the building overlooks the Maple Leaf reservoir with territorial views of the Olympic and Cascade Mountains and downtown Seattle.

CLYDE PANGBORN BELLY-LANDS A MONOPLANE IN WENATCHEE TO COMPLETE THE FIRST NONSTOP AIRPLANE FLIGHT BETWEEN JAPAN AND THE UNITED STATES ON OCTOBER 5, 1931

Clyde Pangborn (1894-1958) and Hugh Herndon Jr. land in Wenatchee, completing the first nonstop airplane flight between Japan and the United States. They are flying a Bellanca Skyrocket monoplane. The flight succeeds in part because Pangborn, a stunt aviator and test pilot, dropped the landing gear into the ocean shortly after takeoff in order to lighten the aircraft. In Wenatchee he successfully belly-lands the airplane, according to plan.

MEXICAN NATIONALS ARRIVE IN WASHINGTON STATE UNDER THE BRACERO PROGRAM BEGINNING ON OCTOBER 5, 1942

Beginning on October 5, 1942, and continuing through the 15th, more than 500 Mexican nationals arrive in the Yakima Valley under the Emergency Farm Labor Supply program to alleviate the farmlabor shortage during the war (World War II). The Emergency Farm Labor Supply program, nationally known as the Bracero program, lasted in the Pacific Northwest from 1942-1947 in the Pacific Northwest.

SEATTLE POLICE SHOOT AND KILL WELTON ARMSTEAD ON OCTOBER 5, 1968

A Seattle police officer shoots and kills 17-year-old African American Welton "Butch" Armstead after he threatens the officer with a rifle. Radicals claim that Armstead is a member of the Black Panther Party and protest the killing. The following day, two Seattle police officers are ambushed and wounded in their patrol car.

CONGRESS PASSES SENATOR WARREN MAGNUSON'S AMENDMENT BANNING SUPERTANKERS IN PUGET SOUND ON OCTOBER 5, 1977

Only one day after Senator Warren G. Magnuson (1905-1989) introduces it, Congress passes an amendment that effectively bans oil supertankers from Puget Sound. The stealth move through Congress, assisted by Representatives Norm Dicks (b. 1940), Don Bonker (b. 1937), Joel Pritchard (1925-1997), and Jack Cunningham (b. 1931), abruptly settles an on-going controversy over a proposed oil superport and pipeline at Cherry Point in Whatcom County. Magnuson's amendment circumvents efforts by Governor Dixy Lee Ray (1914-1994) to change state regulations to allow the Cherry Point project.

WRECKAGE OF PLANE CARRYING SEATTLE COUNCILMAN WING LUKE FOUND ON OCTOBER 5, 1968

A helicopter pilot discovers the wreckage of the airplane in which Seattle City Councilman Wing Luke (1925-1965) perished in 1965, along with Seattle philanthropist Sidney Gerber and Gerber's assistant Kate Ladue.

Wing Luke was elected to the Seattle City Council in 1962, and became the first Chinese American from a large mainland city to hold such an office.

Emmys

Bring the characters to the stage: Singers usually perform their nominated song at the Oscars, so why shouldn't actors show off a little of their skill at these award shows? Julia Louis-Dreyfus clearly got the message. She came to the stage to accept the award for lead actress in a comedy series and carried along a little bit of her 'Veep" character, Selina Meyer. Co-star Tony Hale (himself an Emmy winner), became her aide, just like on the show, standing just behind her, carrying her clutch and whispering reminders about her speech into her ear. That's a way to win an award.

Real emotion, as opposed to the other stuff: We've all seen actors and actresses get up there and gush and blubber and we have to wonder if it's all a little bit affected. And then there's Sarah Bromell, widow of the late "Homeland" writer Henry Bromell, who won an award for one of his teleplays. She said, with palpable emotion, Henry with deep appreciation for the Academy. Thank you so much." Simple and powerful.

A guy you want to get a beer with: "Boardwalk Empire's" Bobby Cannavale seemed shocked to beat out Aaron Paul and Mandy Patinkin for the supporting actor in a drama series Emmy. Of Patinkin, he gushed: "Mandy Patinkin is the first person I ever saw on stage, and he's, like, my favorite person." Of series executive producer Martin Scorsese, Cannavale was even more awestruck, telling the audience what they already knew, "You know, he's great!"

Don't swallow the gum: Having some kind of business to do on stage makes you a more interesting performer. Jeff Daniels must know that in his bones, since he refused to swallow his gum after coming to the stage to accept the Emmy for lead actor in a drama series, an award that was favored for Jon Hamm or Bryan Cranston or even Kevin Spacey. Anyone, really, but Daniels. Chomping on the gum like mid-'80s Burt Reynolds, Daniels checked out the hardware and uttered, "Well, crap! I didn't expect this." "I accept this award on behalf of He went on, "The last thing I

Mom Counts Lucky Stars That Long-Distance Romance Fizzled

DEAR ABBY: I'm a single mother. My two sons are practically grown and out of the house. I haven't dated much over the years, but there was one man I did bond with and cared very much for at one point.

He lived across the country, and the longdistance relationship was difficult. I was reluctant to move my kids across the country for someone I barely knew, so the relationship ended. Thank God, I followed my instinct on that one!

By Abigail Van Buren

Feeling sentimental one evening, I went online and searched for his name. Up popped a mug shot of him posted on a Megan's Law website, identifying him as a deviant offender. I couldn't believe my eyes.

Now I can't stop thinking about what might have happened had I not followed my instincts. I'm afraid to date anyone for fear I'll find another creep. Is there a way to "screen" prospective mates without them knowing — like a background check for daters, perhaps? — STILL SHOCKED IN TĒXAS

DEAR STILL SHOCKED: The way to screen someone for a criminal conviction would be to go online and search in the state the person lives in or came from. That, however, is no guarantee you won't meet another creep.

Finding Mr. Right is a process that involves trial and error. In many cases, a lot of error. That's why it is better to meet men through personal introductions, volunteer groups or because you have mutual interests — and even then, take your time getting to know them.

DEAR ABBY: May I tell you about an incident that happened last Halloween? I took my daughters, ages 12 and 6, and a co-worker's 4-year-old son trick-or-treating. My 12-year-old is becoming a young woman and appears older. When we came to one house, the homeowner promptly gave the smaller children candy and had a conversation with them, but completely ignored my older daughter. She was very hurt, and it cast a pall on the evening. I was stunned.

I'm the kind of person who doesn't care how old you are — if you're dressed up for Halloween, you can come knocking and you'll get a treat. I'd rather give someone candy than have him or her feel the way my daughter did.

How should I have handled this? Is there an age limit for trickor-treaters? — FESTIVE MOM IN KANSAS

DEAR FESTIVE MOM: If you refrained from challenging the homeowner, you handled it correctly. Halloween is a holiday during which all of those who participate celebrate their inner child. As my dear mother once said to me, there were times when the doorbell would ring and she wasn't sure whether to offer the trick-or-treater candy or a martini. And I think THAT'S where I'd draw the line.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 10 and I have a sister who copies everything I do. For example, I was known for my good cooking until she made "amazing" banana bread. Now nobody thinks I'm the best cook in the house any-

My sister tags along with whatever I do. I sell dog treats; she sells dog treats. My mom thinks it's cute and says I should be flattered. All I want is to be unique, but it's hard with my sister who steals the show. Please help! -FRUSTRATED IN BEND, ORE.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Talk to your mother again about this. While I agree that your sister's desire to do what you do is cute, it can also create a cutthroat competition between siblings. Your mother could avoid this if she would encourage your sister to develop interests or talents of her own and help you become involved in after-school activities that do not include your sister.
