Pe Ell's Jacked Up Coffee Stand Owned by Member of 'Big Coffee Family'

JAVA: Owner Whitney Adolphsen, Whose Parents Both Own Coffee Stands, Was Born to Be Her Own Stand

There will be a feature on a local business in each edition of The Chronicle and at chronline. com moving forward. To be considered, email reporter Eric Trent at etrent@ chronline.com. PE ELL — Whitney Adolphsen has been hanging out in coffee stands since before she could talk or walk. It runs in the family. So it only made sense that one day she'd open her own stand.

She would go to work with her mom as a baby at the now-closed One Moore Cup in Raymond. Now both of Adolphsen's parents own coffee stands, her dad in Castle Rock and her mom in Raymond, for the last 19 years. She started working at her mom's shop, The Daily Perk, officially when she was 16 years old.

"Big coffee family," Adolphsen said. "Both of my sisters worked in it at one point or another, too. I was that kid that grew up in the coffee shop, hanging out with my mom down there. I'm probably the only 30-year-old with 20-plus years experience working in a coffee shop."

Whitney Adolphsen, who has spent nearly her entire life around coffee stands, opened her own stand, Jacked Up, in 2018.

Pe Ell — the halfway point between her parents.

Adolphsen grew up in Old Willapa and went to Willapa Valley and South Bend high schools, but she did have some history with Pe Ell. A star softball player growing up, she became a Trojan for one year during high school because Valley didn't have a softball program at the time.

That made the transition to the community a little easier. The biggest change was going from longtime employee to business owner. She was commuting from Lebam when she first opened her shop and was late one day rushing down state Route 6 toward the stand in Pe Ell, worried about being late to open.

"Then it hit me halfway, 'Well, I'm not going to get in trouble," Adolphsen said. "The worst thing that's going to happen is I'm going to lose a little bit of money. It's OK."

Now she's been able to relish the independence of being a business owner.

"I have a lot more pride in my work now that it's my own," Adolphsen said. "That, and getting to set up shop in a whole new area and getting to meet everybody here. That's been cool, too."

It's that community that stood behind her shop once the COVID-19 pandemic hit in mid-March, shutting down nonessential businesses and delivering blows to the economy. The pandemic temporarily dried up her customers and left her wondering about the fate of her stand.

"Eerie," Adolphsen said. "It was really eerie."

There was a two-week standstill where customers trickled in at a snail's pace. Adolphsen panicked and laid off all her employees for that first week. She, along with every other human on earth, was unsure what to expect. She wanted to gauge the level of customers coming in and make sure she'd be able to pay the bills.

Then, all the sudden, business went back to normal. At the same time, Jacked Up tried to be a beacon of normalcy in its customer's lives as the rest of the world was filled with uncertainty.

"It's been an interesting thing to live through and work through down here," Adolphsen said. "I'm just really grateful we didn't get shut down."

Luckily, Jacked Up was already following most of the health department guidelines beforehand. It did step up its cleaning and started sanitizing the clipboard each time it went through the window.

Now, her employees are working more hours than ever before. The Pe Ell community has shown its support more than ever, Adolphsen said. One organization included Jacked Up in a scavenger hunt, people were buying gift cards, others dropped by just to check on Adolphsen and her employees.

Customers who would normally show up once a month were suddenly coming in a couple times a week. Part of it was also people searching for social interaction. There was a month stretch where it was difficult to close at a regular time because customers were dropping by to chat.

"It's another reason why I'm glad I set up shop in a small town," Adolphsen said. "There was a huge outpouring of support and small-town camaraderie."

Jacked Up, which uses Raven's Brew Coffee from Alaska, is located at 404 N. Main St. in Pe Ell. The local favorite is currently open Monday through Saturday, 6 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday 7 a.m to 4 p.m

Entertainment EXTRA!|July 17 - 23, 2020

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, a friend of mine behaved badly and offended me and another dinner quest. His wife shut him down fairly quickly. The next day, when I tried to explain to him why what he did was inappropriate, he misinterpreted my comments and, because of his low self-esteem, became offended even though he was the offensive person. I immediately apologized but got no response. Anyone who understands basic psychology will recognize this defensive and deflective selfdefense mechanism for what it was

Abby, these are people I love dearly. Now they no longer speak to me, and I'm at a loss about what to do besides continue to pray for them. Advice? — MISSING MY DEAREST FRIENDS

DEAR MISSING: Your former friend appears to be both aggressive and hypersensitive. Continue praying, but be careful what you pray for because this person appears to be very highmaintenance. Surely you can fill the emptiness with friends who are easier to get along with and who are willing to talk out difficult situations like adults. If you do, I guarantee your life will be less stressful.

DEAR ABBY: Our first granddaughter is getting married in six months and has told her parents that no one from either family is invited to the wedding. They want to get married by themselves because they are both shy and don't want to be the center of attention.

At first I was OK with it, but the more I thought about it, the more hurt I felt. The confusing part about this is she wants a pre-wedding party for both families to attend. So I asked her to keep an open mind and think about having the party right after the marriage ceremony. Now she won't talk to me! Was I wrong to suggest an idea? My husband is now saying he doesn't want to attend any party they will have. I can't stop thinking about our daughter and how she feels about not being able to see her daughter get married. I'm afraid I may have made things worse, and I'm very depressed. I just want to fix it so everyone is happy. Help! — DEPRESSED IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR DEPRESSED: So you have appointed yourself the official family fixer? Your "shy" granddaughter and her fiance appear to be confirmed introverts. If they prefer to take their vows privately, it's their privilege, and you shouldn't personalize it. That was your mistake.

While I don't think you have committed a cardinal sin and do think your granddaughter overreacted, you shouldn't feel the need to mend any fences. As to how your daughter will feel about not seeing her daughter get married, that is not your problem. Take a step back and let the bride and groom celebrate their day as they wish.

P.S. I find it odd the bride and groom would want ANY party, feeling the way they do about the ceremony.

DEAR ABBY: Why do people feel compelled to ask if my dog was adopted or rescued? I have wanted a dog for at least five years. Because I was in nursing school, I waited until I graduated, and then my partner and I researched extensively.

While I love the idea of adopting, sheltering or rescuing, we wanted a purebred German shepherd puppy. My son and I both have mental health issues, and our dog has been a huge help and an antidepressant all in one.

It is unfair that people ask these questions, or have the audacity to make faces and comments when I say no. I have neither the desire nor the capacity to mend or train a potentially broken dog. How I got her is no one's business but ours and our vet's.

The best response I have heard when someone asks if a dog is adopted or rescued is, "No, she's biological." I've used it only once, but it got my point across. Please remind your readers that asking these questions is rude. — MYOB IN MAS-SACHUSETTS

DEAR MYOB: I'm willing to remind them, but whether they'll pay attention is anyone's guess. What these people are doing is expressing the idea that animals who are in need of a good home should take priority. That said, there is nothing wrong with having a purebred animal if that is your preference.

P.S. I hear a lot lately about people adopting dogs during this quarantine period because they are desperate for company. I sincerely hope the animals will not be forgotten or discarded once the quarantine is lifted and folks return to their (somewhat) normal lives.

DEAR ABBY: I recently welcomed my third child, a baby boy who was wanted and planned. We are overjoyed. Our two daughters are just under 10 years old. Over the years, my social circle has consisted mostly of the parents of my daughters' friends.

Abby, my news was met with mixed reactions. Some were thrilled for my pregnancy, while others were shocked. One woman even told me, "I'm just not in that phase of life anymore."

After my son was born, I didn't get visits or even a phone call from some of them. I announced his birth on social media and mailed out a beautiful announcement, but he hasn't been acknowledged nor have I been checked on.

I know he won't really be affected by this and I'm trying to focus on the positives. We have a big family on both sides, and many people within our community have warmly welcomed him. But I have been a good friend to these women, supported them in their times of need and even reached out during this pandemic to check on them in an effort to reconnect. I'm so disappointed. What am I supposed to say to these "friends" when I run into them again? — NEW MOM AGAIN

DEAR MOM: When you encounter them, be cordial. Make polite conversation and ask how they and their families are doing. If they inquire, tell them you and your family are well. Then move on, recognizing you are dealing with individuals who are solely centered upon themselves. Do not attempt to revive a relationship with anyone who cares so little about you that they would treat you as they have, but DO recognize how fortunate you are that you know not to invest more of your time or yourself in them.

DEAR ABBY: I divorced my abusive ex-husband and am happily remarried. I have a son and daughter from my first marriage. They saw a lot of physical and emotional abuse when they were young. I stayed in the marriage to keep the family together until I realized my children were being hurt in the process. My son witnessed more of the abuse than my daughter.

My son has constantly brought up the past and has never been able to make a decent living. He's married with three children, and they have lived with his mother-in-law for years. I have apologized many times for what happened in the past and asked for forgiveness. I don't know what else I can do.

I always send birthday and holiday money telling them that I love them, but for some reason they have stopped answering my calls or responding to my texts. I call them three or four times a year. They used to call me when they needed money, but now they don't call at all. Should I stop sending birthday checks? They missed Mother's Day and my heart is broken. I don't know what I've done wrong. — PAYING FOR THE PAST

DEAR PAYING: You will never know what you "did wrong" unless one of your adult offspring decides to tell you. I hope you realize that you are being abused again, this time by two passive-aggressive adults. You are not the reason your son lives with his mother-in-law. As to your daughter, who knows her reason for radio silence?

Please stop flogging yourself. Start living your own life. Bind up that broken heart and focus on happiness with your new husband because, as things stand, you're not going to find much with these two. Send cards if you must, but omit the money. If you do, I'm sorry to say you may hear from them sooner.

Lovers in a dangerous time Period drama 'Beecham House' airs on PBS

By Kyla Brewer TV Media

Opulent period dramas have seen a resurgence in popularity in recent years, with TV series such as "Downton Abbey" and "The Crown" amassing loyal followings. Luckily for fans of the genre, one of the U.K.'s most buzzworthy period dramas has made its way across the pond to rivet American audiences.

Tom Bateman ("Cold Pursuit," 2019) stars as John Beecham, a former British soldier with a mysterious past who moves into a mansion in Delhi in 1795 in "Masterpiece Classic: Beecham House," airing Sunday, July 19, on PBS. He brings with him a biracial baby, causing a stir among the estate's staff.

As the series unfolds, Beecham welcomes his overbearing mother, Henrietta (Lesley Nicol, "Downton Abbey"), rebellious brother, Daniel (Leo Suter, "Victoria"), and others to his new home, all the while falling for English governess Margaret Osbourne (Dakota Blue Richards, "The Golden Compass," 2007). The enigmatic Chandrika (Pallavi Sharda, "Lion," 2016) soon arrives as well and wastes no time exerting her authority in the house. John's staff includes the beautiful Chanchal (Shriya Pilgaonkar, "Fan," 2016), the baby's nursemaid.

Combining mystery and romance with lavish sets and intricate costumes, the six-episode miniseries was originally produced for the U.K.'s ITV. Director Gurinder Chadha ("Bend It Like Beckham," 2002), who co-created "Beecham House" with her husband Paul Mayeda Berges ("Blinded by the Light," 2019) and author Shahrukh Husain ("In Custody"), explained that she came up with the idea for the miniseries while working on the script for the 2017 film "Viceroy's House."

"Downton Abbey' was very popular at the time and I always loved 'Upstairs, Downstairs,' so I thought I'd like to do my own version of one of those shows with a twist," Chadha said in an interview on "Masterpiece's" official website.

While many of Chadha's past films focus on Indians living in England, "Beecham House" turns the tables on her usual MO to explore the life of an Englishman living in India who is determined to make a name for himself as a trader while living a quiet, peaceful life with his family.

"Masterpiece" executive Rebecca Eaton had high praise for the miniseries in a news release announcing that it would be airing on the PBS flagship series.

"I haven't seen a series as visually sumptuous as 'Beecham House' in a long time," she said. "This is a new time and place for our audience ... India in 1795, before the Raj. There is love and passion, too, and a storyline full of deepening mystery."

In the aforementioned interview, Chadha made it clear that she was determined to film at least part of the series in India, explaining that the setting couldn't really be duplicated anywhere else.

"You can't beat India on camera," Chadha explained. "One of the things about India that existed long before the British came along and carried on long after they left, and will carry on, is their architecture, the palaces, the forts. We have used many, many shots of those amazing buildings, and that is India, for me. You cannot shoot that anywhere else."

The setting is one thing. But the cast is equally impressive. Bateman starred in Sky TV's "The Tunnel" in 2013, the same year he began his run as Giuliano Medici in the TV series "Da Vinci's Demons." He gained notoriety for his role as the title character in 2015's "Jekyll & Hyde" TV series. Bateman also starred in the Hollywood films "Snatched" (2017) and "Murder on the Orient Express" (2017) before returning to TV in ITV's "Vanity Fair." Up next, he's set to appear in the Netflix series "Behind Her Eves."

Nicol is, of course, familiar as "Downton Abbey" cook Beryl Patmore. The English actress is a threetime SAG award winner, known for her roles in the BBC's adaptations of "The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe" and "The Silver Chair." American audiences may recognize her for her work on such TV series as "Supernatural," "The Catch" and "The Odd Couple."

After getting his start on stage as a boy, Suter appeared in films such as "Maleficent" (2014) and "Fallen" (2016). He has also been seen in the television series "Ransom" and "Sanditon."

Richards began acting as a child as well and landed the role of Lyra in "The Golden Compass" (2007) at the age of 13. She was cast in the

Tom Bateman and Dakota Blue Richards in "Masterpiece Classic: Beecham House"

British teen drama "Skins," as well as the TV movie "Dustbin Baby" (2008) and the fantasy film "The Secret of Moonacre" (2008).

In addition to the Bollywood films "Besharam" (2013) and "Hawaizaada" (2015), Sharda starred opposite Nicole Kidman in the Hollywood film "Lion" (2016) and appeared in the Australian medical drama "Pulse."

The daughter of two actors, Pilgaonkar began her onscreen career at the age of 5 in the Hindu television series "Tu Tu Main Main." She worked on the French film "Un plus une" (2015) before making her Bollywood debut in "Fan" (2016).

While "Beecham House" was not based on actual events as some have speculated, there is at least one character who was based on a real-life figure, Emperor Shah Alam II (Roshan Seth, "Gandhi," 1982).

Other notable characters include John's friend and business partner, Samuel Parker (Marc Warren, "Band of Brothers"), French mercenary General Castillon (Grégory Fitoussi, "Mr. Selfridge") and Beecham family friend Violet Woodhouse (Bessie Carter, "Howards End").

The miniseries has not exactly garnered widespread critical acclaim and, despite a cliffhanger ending, the program failed to earn a second season in the U.K. But perhaps it will have better luck with American audiences. In this week's episode, it appears that only the Emperor can save John. When he eventually returns home, it's evident that tragedy has struck again in "Beecham House," airing Sunday, July 19, on PBS.

Sophie Nelisse and Heather Graham in "The Rest of Us"

By Jessica Gosse TV Media

"My Scientology Movie" (2015)

Many people mock Scientology, saying it isn't a real religion so much as a cult, given its creation in the 1950s by a science fiction author and its mysterious leader. Documentarian Louis Theroux ("When Louis Met ... Jimmy," 2000) tries to give viewers an inside look into the world of Los Angeles Scientology with this film, which joins the Hulu lineup on Monday, July 13. With a large number of A-list celebrities among its ranks, such as action star Tom Cruise ("Mission: Impossible"), TV star and weight-loss guru Kirstie Alley ("Cheers") and Oscar nominee Juliette Lewis ("Cape Fear," 1991), it's no surprise that Scientology was and is such a prominent topic of discussion. The documentary shines a light on how secretive the institution is as Theroux is denied access to their facility multiple times, and many members refuse to speak while he is filming. Although Theroux's intention was to gain knowledge, the film comes across almost as a mockumentary, as many of his interviews are with eccentric personalities and spiral into chaos.

"The Rest of Us" (2019)

As an ex, you're expected to hate your former partner's new girlfriend or wife, right? That's what society tells us, anyway. In this heartfelt drama, premiering Monday, July 13, on Hulu, the connection between first and second wife is deeply explored as an ex-wife and a mistress are brought together by tragedy. Cami's (Heather Graham, "The Hangover," 2009) husband, Craig, left her years ago for another woman, and she is now raising their teenage daughter, Aster (Sophie Nelisse, "The Book Thief," 2013), on her own. Rachel (Jodi Balfour, "For All Mankind"), on the other hand, is the new wife and is living in the house that was once Cami's while raising Tallulah (Abigail Pniowsky, "Channel Zero"), Craig's new daughter. When Craig has a sudden heart attack, his death shocks both of the families, but Rachel's life is turned upside down as she realizes he hadn't paid the mortgage on their house in months, and now she is going to lose her home. In a bold and surprising move, Cami offers to let Rachel and her daughter move in with her and Aster. Tensions rise as the four women struggle to find a connection beyond their deceased husband/ father, and secrets begin to come out.

"Into the Dark: The Current Occupant"

On Friday, July 17, don't miss the latest installment of this horror anthology series when it premieres on Hulu. Barry Watson ("Samantha Who?") and Sonita Henry ("Krypton") star in this twisted tribute to Independence Day that takes place in a psychiatric hospital. One of the residents of the ward is a young man with no memory, but when he becomes convinced that he is the president of the United States, chaos ensues. Believing himself to be part of an intricate political conspiracy, he plots his escape from the hospital in order to return to power and save his sanity.

"Normal People" Season 1

Daisy Edgar-Jones ("Cold Feet") and newcomer Paul Mescal take the lead as modern couple Marianne Sheridan and Connell Waldron in the first season of this BBC drama available now on Hulu. The series follows the pair as they attend school in Ireland and develop a complex relationship. Marianne isn't the most well-liked among the students as she is gifted, overly outspoken and from a very well-off family. Connell on the other hand, while also academically inclined, is quite popular and his mother works for Marianne's family. While on the surface Marianne seems to have a better life thanks to her families affluence, things aren't what they seem as she struggles with complicated family relationships and being bullied by students who consider her to be odd. Despite the vast differences in their life, Marianne and Connell begin dating but things become complicated as Marianne wants their relationship kept secret and is hurt when Connell doesn't stand up for her while she is being bullied at school.

"Forgetting Sarah Marshall" (2008)

Peter (Jason Segel, "How I Met Your Mother") has been in a happy relationship with the beautiful television star Sarah Marshall (Kristen Bell, "The Good Place") for years. But when Sarah returns home from filming on location and breaks up with him to be with rock star Aldous Snow (Russell Brand, "Get Him to the Greek," 2010), Peter is left devastated in this comedy available now on Hulu. In an effort to get over her, Peter decides to take a much needed vacation in Hawaii. Unfortunately when he goes to check into his hotel, he finds Sarah and Aldous staying at the same resort. Now, as he tries to enjoy Hawaii and avoid his ex-girlfriend, Peter begins spending time with Rachel (Mila Kunis, "Bad Moms," 2016), the cute hotel receptionist. However, the more time Peter spends with Rachel the more jealous Sarah becomes.

"Absentia" Season 3

Stana Katic ("Castle") returns as FBI agent Emily Byrne in Season 3 of this thrilling crime drama premiering Friday, July 17, on Prime. Back in Season 1, we were introduced to Emily as an agent who was declared dead when she went missing while on the case of a notorious serial killer, only to be found in a cabin six years later with no memory of the past few years. Since then, we have seen her try to recover her memory while being implicated in a series of murders, not to mention cope with the fact that her husband and fellow agent, Nick (Patrick Heusinger, "Casual"), has remarried, and her now 9-year-old son, Flynn (Patrick McAuley, "The Conjuring 2," 2016), has little to no memory of her. Season 3 is set to pick up three months after the intense events of the Season 2 finale with Emily reaching the end of her suspension from the FBI. Still trying to balance her personal life with casework, Season 3 takes Emily far from home to deal with a professional fixer for an international organization (Geoff Bell, "RocknRolla," 2008) and an MI6 intelligence agent (Josette Simon, "Pokemon Detective Pikachu," 2019) who used to be an instructor at Quantico.

"The Weekend" (2018)

Multi-award-winning Canadian director and screenwriter Stella Meghie ("Everything, Everything," 2017) shows off her chops in her 2018 TIFF comedy, "The Weekend," starring Sasheer Zamata ("The Last O.G.") in the lead role. Lauded among the best Black films of the decade, "The Weekend" is about a young woman named Zadie (Zamata), a sharp-minded, witty comedienne who finds herself caught between the ex she still has feelings for (Tone Bell, "Little," 2019), his new girlfriend (DeWanda Wise, "She's Gotta Have It"), and a handsome new man (Y'lan Noel, "Insecure") caught up in the middle of it all. The humor is nearly non-stop, down-to-Earth and deeply relatable, as the film explores what it means to be close to someone and the difference between being honest with a friend, versus painfully honest with your best ones. Shining in the role of Zadie's ever-meddling, but well-intending mother Karen, is the prolific animated comedy voice actress Kym Whitley ("Twenties"), who brings yet another layer of heartstring-pulling hilarity to this feel-good (and maybe only a teeny tiny bit bitter) romantic comedy. In case you missed this gem during it's limited theater release, you can catch it on Prime on July 15.

"Alias"

Jennifer Garner is among Hollywood's most versatile leading ladies. While she shines as the troubled-wife type in dramas "Pearl Harbor" (2001) and "Dallas Buyers Club" (2013), she can also bring the laughs in comedies such as "13 Going on 30" (2004) and "Dude, Where's My Car" (2000), easily own the screen as a butt-kicking femme fatale in action flicks like "Elektra" (2005) and "Peppermint" (2018), and even takes her talent to the recording booth to voice act in "Llama Llama" and "Wonder Park" (2019). It only makes sense that the true catalyst of her path towards becoming one of the most recognizable women on film, would be a series where the entire premise is her ability to play multiple characters. "Alias," which you can (and should) binge all five seasons of now on Prime, is a staple of Top TV lists everywhere from the New York Times to Entertainment Television, and has become a sci-fi and pop culture icon, despite having never done well in the ratings while airing on ABC. Garner stars as Sydney Bristow, an English undergrad student with a rather unique part-time job - moonlighting as a secret agent for a CIA black ops division (at least, that's what she thinks). Sydney must hide her identity from the people on both sides of her work as a double agent, which bleeds into her home life as she hides her career from family and friends, including her father (Victor Garber, "DC's Legends of Tomorrow") and her work partner (Michael Vartan, "The Arrangement"). "Alias" won multiple awards, and even earned high praise from the real-life CIA's former Chief of Disguise, Jonna Mendez, who in WIRED's popular YouTube series "Technique Critique," Mendez said that Garner's work in the show "could have been used as a training film." Check out this binge-worthy series available on Prime now.

Victor Garber, Michael Vartan, Jennifer Garner and Lena Olin in "Alias"

Tone Bell and Sasheer Zamata in "The Weekend"

Jessica Chastain and Oscar Isaac star in "A Most Violent Year"

"Cursed"

Experience the legend of King Arthur from a new perspective with this new drama based on the novel by Frank Miller and Tom Wheeler, premiering Friday, July 17, on Netflix. Katherine Langford ("Knives Out," 2019) stars as Nimué, who fans of the Arthurian legend will know as the enchantress who became the famed Lady of the Lake. "Cursed" puts a new spin on Nimué's role in the legend, though, showing her as a young sorceress who must reunite the legendary sword Excalibur with a powerful sorcerer after her village is invaded. Traveling alone to find Merlin (Gustaf Skarsgard, "Vikings"), the great sorcerer she believes is destined to wield the sword and defeat the evil king who has invaded her land, she meets a charming mercenary named Arthur (Devon Turrell, "The Professor," 2018), and the two team up. As their journey goes on, Nimué begins to wonder about the magic and prophecy of the sword, while it's said to belong to the "one true king," maybe it needs to be wielded by a queen.

"A Most Violent Year" (2014)

On Saturday, July 18, don't miss this intense crime drama when it joins the Netflix roster. Oscar Isaac ("Inside Llewyn Davis," 2013) stars as Abel Morales an immigrant living in New York City in 1981. Despite the ever-growing corruption and violence in the city, Abel works to support his wife Anna (Jessica Chastain, "Molly's Game," 2017) and their two daughters by running a highly successful fuel distribution business. While Abel maintains his integrity and does honest dealings his competitors are less honorable, hijacking his trucks and trying to scare him out of business. All the while, the city's district attorney has assigned a man named Mr. Lawrence (David Oyelowo, "Selma," 2014) to investigate and bring down corruption. This puts Abel at risk, as while he runs an honest business his father-in-law who previously owned the business was just as corrupt as his competitors. Now, Abel must fight to save the life he has built for himself and his family.

"Obvious Child" (2014)

Find the humor in life's many ups and downs on Saturday, July 18, when this comedy film joins the Netflix lineup. Aspiring stand-up comedian Donna Stern (Jenny Slate, "Gifted," 2017) has a gift for being unapologetic about who she is and finding the humor in life. But when her boyfriend suddenly breaks up with her to be with one of her friends, she goes into a depressive slump. In her misery, Donna does a terrible act (that is mainly just insults directed at her ex) at her local comedy club. Shortly after her performance she meets Max (Jake Lecy, "High Fidelity"), who (to her joy) didn't see her act and the two quickly hit it off and eventually go back to his place where Donna stays the night only to sneak out the next morning. Flashing forward several weeks, Donna realizes that she is pregnant and decides the best plan is to get an abortion. But when Max finds her again and they begin spending time together she struggles to tell him about the pregnancy and the abortion.

"Laggies" (2014)

Keira Knightley ("Collateral Beauty," 2016) stars as Megan, a young woman in the throws of a quarter life crisis in this comedy coming to Netflix on Saturday, July 18. Despite being 28 years old, having a good education and a long-time boyfriend, Megan seems to be drifting in life as she has no real career path and she lacks maturity. When her boyfriend suddenly proposes to her while at her friends wedding, she begins to panic. Her panic only grows though, when moments later she finds her father having an affair. Unable to process everything that has happened, Megan leaves the wedding and runs into a group of teenage girls who ask her to buy beer for them. Nostalgic for a simpler time in her life, Megan agrees and befriends 16-year-old Annika (Chloe Grace Moretz, "Carrie," 2013) who invites her to join them. The next day, Megan tells her boyfriend that she needs time to think and is going to a week long career seminar, but instead she goes to Annika's house and asks if she can stay with her for a while. Annika tries to sneak her in but they are quickly caught by Annika's father, Craig (Sam Rockwell, "Jojo Rabbit," 2019) who questions their friendship but lets Megan stay. Megan's life only gets more complicated though as she begins to bond with Craig and she sees how her decisions affect Annika and her friends.

hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison TV Media

Q:What is the "slop" that the "Big Brother" contestants have to eat?

A: Punishment and light humiliation have been a staple of reality TV from its earliest days. In a figurative sense, that's what "slop" is. But in the literal sense, it's just oatmeal and nutrient powder.

We know this because CBS actually released the recipe, in case fans wanted to get into the shoes of a struggling "Big Brother" resident.

Slop was introduced midway through the show's history (though only in the Canadian and American versions, which offers all sorts of joke opportunities about food culture). It exists as a punishment, originally for residents who lose a food competition, though it's since become a sort of hovering threat throughout the show.

The official ingredients are: water, steel cut oats, unflavored protein powder, and vitamin and mineral powder.

Two things jump out from that list: First, the total absence of flavor, hence it being a punishment. Second, it's pretty nutritionally complete. That's on purpose, since unlucky contestants have to eat nothing but this for whole days at a stretch.

However, inoffensive though it is, slop has been the subject of some controversy (like so much else on the show). A contestant in Season 9 passed out, on camera, while on the diet because she has hypoglycemia (that is, she suffers from chronic low blood sugar). The incident forced the show to soften the punishment a bit.

Q: I was just rewatching the miniseries "11.22.63," and I'm wondering who the actor is who played the diner owner. I know I've seen him in things. A: It's not quite accurate to call Chris Cooper a character actor. Usually when you're watching something and say, "Hey, it's that guy," you've spotted a character actor – a term reserved for actors who disappear into all sorts of different roles. They don't have a "type," they fill whatever hole needs filling.

Cooper, on the other hand, is definitely an "it's that guy" sort of actor, in that he's had a great and accomplished career as an Oscarwinning supporting star, but he has firmly developed a type. Cooper is your go-to man if you need a grouch.

Maybe it's his growly voice, or his piercing eyes, but he's made a name for himself as a shorttempered, stern authority figure. He'd been kicking around the business for more than a decade, playing lots of different roles, before having his breakout year in 1999. That year would also somewhat define his type, as he got a lot of accolades for playing two hard fathers, in "October Sky" and "American Beauty."

His type has led to him playing all sorts of military men, such as in 2000's "The Patriot" and 2005's "Jarhead," and spy bureaucrats in "The Bourne Identity" (2002) and "Breach" (2005).

This isn't to say Cooper doesn't have range, as some of his biggest roles have gone against this type. Most notably, he got his Oscar for playing an eccentric, countercultural botanist in 2002's "Adaptation."
