Tenino Coffee Bistro Overcomes Big Setbacks for Grand Opening

PUSHING ON: Owner Maria Williams Never Gave Up, Finally Opened May 22

TENINO – To say Maria Williams has had a rough couple months would be an understatement. Williams, the owner of the brand new Tenino Coffee Bistro, has leaped, crawled and deflected every obstacle thrown her way since the novel coronavirus outbreak hit the restaurant industry in mid-March.

Williams was volunteering to run Western Coffee Company and Cafe for its owner when Gov. Jay Inslee announced the statewide closure of dine-in service for place of entertainment on March 15. Williams was in the process of trying to buy Western Coffee at the time, but the deal fell through, so she began working on opening a brand new business in the same location at 291 Sussex Ave. W., in Tenino.

She purchased the lease on the building and used all the money she had saved for her own business to pay off all of Western Coffee's outstanding bills.

Williams, who is also an artist, used her skills to begin teaching online art classes in April to pay for the new business license and all the permits, which ran about $2,200.

"It's been a battle," Williams said. "I think every single wall that could have been put down on me was and I climbed over it."

At the time, there were three other Tenino businesses that had to shut their doors and with owners who weren't sure if they would ever open again. So Williams put on a fundraiser, a last-minute virtual auction, to help her fellow Tenino business owners, which turned out to be a huge success. The fundraiser brought in $5,000, and Williams gave 15 different businesses anywhere from $150 to $300 each.

In all, she gave away $4,500 to businesses and used the other $500 to pay the two previous Western Coffee employees who hadn't had their paycheck that month

"It was a huge hit," Williams said.
"I put it together in seven days, all by myself."

All the while, she was transitioning from instead taking over an establishment to starting a brand new one. With no way to visit the health department in person and the phone lines tied up day after day, Williams had to navigate being a new business owner by communicating with the health department solely through email.

"Having access to anybody to help you was almost impossible," Williams said.

Thankfully, Williams is an artist, and her art was selling. It was just enough to keep her afloat.

While trying to build up capital for when her bistro finally did open, she came up with the idea of presale gift cards. She raised $300 in gift certificates before coming up with a VIP card, where people pay $100 for a card which gives them 30 percent off, once a day, for a year. She sold four of those, which helped.

But she still faced the dilemma of paying the monthly bills for the restaurant space, which included rent, electricity, gas, water, garbage, phone, etc. Luckily, her landlord gave her the month of April rentfree.

"That used up all my savings," Williams said.

She spent weeks applying for federal small business loans and grants before realizing she didn't qualify for any of them. Nothing seemed to go her way.

"I kept trying every avenue I could," Williams said. "I was fighting tooth and nail through this whole thing. It was horrible."

Finally, last week, the health department told her she was previously misinformed and could open her doors immediately. Williams' first opening was Friday and she only had $200 of her own money, so she bought as much food as she could and sold three menu items to try and make as much money as she could to pay for food to sell on Memorial Day.

Once again, trouble struck. With it being a national holiday, the money made from Friday didn't get released by the bank until Tuesday, which meant Williams had to borrow money to buy food for Monday, which was the official grand opening.

With little advertisement, a ton of friends and locals turned out to show their support for Williams on Monday, helping her pull a $600 day; enough to pay for food the entire week. Her sous chef has been volunteering some of his time because she doesn't have the money to pay for labor yet.

Williams, a navy veteran, grew up in the food industry. Her father owned a delicatessen in Seattle when she was younger. She decided to walk away from the restaurant business when her father passed away 13 years ago.

"I said I'd never go back," Williams said

Then this opportunity came, it felt like the right moment, and she couldn't say no.

Now her coffee bistro sells breakfast, lunch and dinner, focusing on European-American-type meals. It is open 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.,

Monday through Friday. Much of it is Italian-influenced and everything is made from scratch and made-to-order.

Some of her most popular items, so far, are the bootleg burrito, which is a choice of meat with potatoes, onions, cheese, bell peppers and zucchini in a wrapped tortilla. Lunches consist of an assortment of bistro sandwiches, dinners are a rotating list of specials. Tuesday's dinner was a threecourse meal that included fried morel mushrooms as the appetizer, a main course featuring roasted pork tenderloin, rice pilaf and garlic parmesan-crusted asparagus, with a dessert. The meal goes for $14.99

"I want people to come here and have it be like going to Europe to sit in a little bistro, but you get hometown prices," Williams said.

Williams is just happy and excited that her business is finally up-and-running, despite all the challenges and hurdles she faced along the way. She looks forward to welcoming customers and seeing her bistro prosper along the way.

"I fought tooth and nail and no matter how many times I thought I couldn't do it or I just wanted to give up and walk away, the amazing people of Tenino had my back," Williams said.

DEAR ABBY: My husband retired four years ago. At first he seemed to enjoy not having to go to work. Then he got bored and needed something to do. For some reason, he bought an old Corvette to restore. I was supportive, until I found out it's an expensive hobby. Finding and buying all the replacement parts costs money.

He has been working on that car for 3 1/2 years now. As soon as he gets it ready to drive, something else breaks. Meanwhile, he has bought four more old Corvettes "to work on." Our backyard looks like a junkyard.

We haven't had a vacation trip since he retired, not even a weekend to the mountains. He argues that we can't afford it, but he spends thousands on those old cars. It has become an obsession for him, and it's "driving" ME crazy. Any suggestions? — CORVETTE WIDOW IN THE SOUTH

DEAR WIDOW: Healthy couples discuss large purchases before making them. What your husband is doing is destructive to your relationship. It almost seems as though he is using his hobby as a way of avoiding spending time with you. My suggestion is that you and your husband find the money to consult a marriage counselor because what's going on is unfair to you. And if you need a vacation, consider taking one by yourself or with a friend.

DEAR ABBY: I will be turning 50 soon. How do I explain to my husband and parents that I just want to spend it alone? Is there something wrong with me for feeling this way? — BIRTHDAY WISH IN IOWA

DEAR BIRTHDAY WISH:

People react to their birthdays, especially milestone birthdays, differently. Some are elated, while others feel depressed. Not everyone wants a lot of "hoopla." If you prefer spending your 50th birthday quietly, your wish should be

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 30-plus years cheated on me several years ago with one of his young private students. In our state, she would have been underage, but she was living in an adjacent state with different laws. I had just finished six months of nursing his mom to heaven. She had Alzheimer's, and he did very little to help.

We had one of the few fights in our marriage about his affair, but nothing was ever resolved. I suspect he's still in contact with her, but I can't prove it. He has never apologized for his behavior. Otherwise, he has been a aood husband. He is sick himself now, and I don't feel right about leaving him. Any thoughts? — NOT RIGHT IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR NOT RIGHT: Under the circumstances, you are a nicer woman than he deserves. If you feel you should stay with him until death — or recovery — I respect you for it. However, if you are one of those caring individuals who expends so much time and energy that doing it could hurt your own health, I think you're entitled to spend as much time as you need taking care of YOURSELF.

DEAR ABBY: A friend blew me off after a 35-year friendship. I've no idea why — just a very hurtful, nasty message. Over the years, we had many ups and downs, but we always made up. Now it has been almost two years since I heard

Last week, for my birthday, she tried to contact me, but I have her blocked. She contacted my sister and said she wants to bury the hatchet. I said, "WHERE? IN THE BACK OF MY HEAD?" I haven't contacted her yet and am not sure I want to. She hurt me badly. I cried for so long. She was my best friend. I knew she wasn't perfect. She is the original Drama Queen, but we were still closer than most

I would at least like to know what made her blow us apart. Should I contact her? My pastor gave a sermon on forgive and forget, but I don't know if I can do either. — FOE OR FRIEND IN ILLINOIS

DEAR FOE OR FRIEND: Contact the woman and get your questions answered. After that, you can decide whether the estrangement is healthier for you than her drama.

As to your pastor's sermon, I believe that while people should forgive, they should never forget.

DEAR ABBY: We're a senior couple who have been together 20 years. My wife and I have a date night twice a week. I feel our physical intimacy melds our spirits and souls together. But lately my wife's new rule is, "Don't bother me while my TV programs are on!" When I told her I feel her programs are more important to her than I am, she got upset. So did I. Nothing's been the same since. What's your take on this? — OLD GULF COAST LOVER

DEAR LOVER: My take is that you should reschedule your date nights to ones that don't conflict with your wife's favorite TV shows, or invest in a digital video recorder so your wife doesn't miss her programs and you don't miss a trick.

DEAR ABBY: After an abusive relationship ended 14 years ago, I stayed single and raised my small son to adulthood. I dated here and there, but never found anyone I had serious feelings for who also felt the same way about me until seven months

My feelings for my boyfriend are strong, and it's mutual. He is giving, kind, caring, hardworking and protective. We are very much in love. He tells me he feels like he can be himself around me, something he has never had before. I've never had anyone care so much about my well-being.

We talk about everything and differ on only one point so far. I'm in education and an LGBTQ ally. He feels strongly that nature dictates that only a man and a woman belong together, and he says he hates gay people. (We both grew up in very small, conservative communities.)

Now that my son is older, I plan to use my experiences to be a stronger voice on education issues regarding tolerance and improving learning outcomes for all by instilling conflict resolution principles in my educational practices. I'm not changing my view on this, but I want to continue for us to love and support each other.

Should I tell my boyfriend I understand where he's coming from based upon where and how we were raised? Do you think down the road our basic principles will drive us apart? We have been talking about buying a house in the country together, although neither of us has intentions of marriage anytime soon. - HESITATING IN ILLINOIS

DEAR HESITATING: You should absolutely talk to your boyfriend about your plan to become an outspoken LGBTQ ally and more active in your profession. When you become more visible, do you plan to separate your career and your personal life? It appears you are willing (and able) to respect him, and understand why he feels the way he does. But is he willing to do the same for you, and will his conservative convictions negatively affect how you plan to live your life?

It is VERY important that this issue be resolved BEFORE investing in real estate with him - aswell as any more precious time. A professional mediator may be able to help with the conversation if you can't do this by yourselves.

Rekindle the romance

'The Bachelor: The Greatest Seasons - Ever' premieres on ABC

By Kyla Brewer TV Media

When tensions are high, there's nothing like indulging in some guilty pleasures, from decadent food to steamy romance novels and cheesy music. Luckily for reality television fans, the TV version of a guilty pleasure is about to hit prime time once again.

Indulge in some Monday night fun as host Chris Harrison reminisces about the hits and misses of one of TV's most popular reality TV franchises in "The Bachelor: The Greatest Seasons - Ever," premiering Monday, June 8, on ABC. He guides viewers through past seasons of "The Bachelor" and "The Bachelorette," reliving memorable moments, both good and bad.

The first trailer for the new ABC program dropped on May 11, and it included some big promises for the show's 10-episode run.

"Revisit the ones you love, the ones you hate and the ones you hate to love," a voice says in the promo. "It's Monday's new one-night stand."

It's enough to make "Bachelor" fans swoon, and they know a thing or two about swooning. Over the years, the franchise has attracted a staunchly loyal fan base dubbed "Bachelor Nation." Surely, many fans have favorite memorable moments, and they'll be on the edge of their seats waiting to find out whether their picks made Harrison's cut

Each week, the host steps back in time to look at one of his favorite seasons. It might be almost like watching an entire "Bachelor" season in one night. The new ABC show shines a spotlight on countless romances and showmances, not to mention plenty of heartache. Thrilling proposals and sweet, tender moments are juxtaposed with disastrous rose ceremonies, serious meltdowns, unexpected surprises and, of course, cringe-worthy breakups.

That's a lot of ground to cover. Flash-in-the-pan reality TV shows wouldn't have such a wealth of material to pull from, but ABC's "The Bachelor" franchise has been going strong for 18 years. It first debuted in 2002, innovating the dating and romance reality TV genre with its unique premise. The show revolves around a single bachelor, and later bachelorette in "The Bachelorette," which premiered in 2003. He or she meets a variety of single women or men, goes on dates with them and decides which ones they'd like to get to know better. Over the course of the series, the field of eligible singles dwindles down to a single candidate, and the bachelor or bachelorette in question may decide to propose marriage. While it may seem farfetched on paper, the franchise has been a proven winner in the ratings game again and again, even in the wake of streaming services offering binge-worthy dramas, comedies and more.

The goal may always be romance, but as the history of the franchise has shown, things don't always go off without a hitch, or with a hitch, as it were. In fact, very few "Bachelor/Bachelorette" couples have stayed together in the long run. From "The Bachelor," only Season 17's Sean Lowe and Catherine Giudici and Season 23's Colton Underwood and Cassie Randolph are still together. "The Bachelorette's" alumni have fared slightly better with successful couples that include Season 1's Trista Rehn and Ryan Sutter, Season 7's Ashley Hebert and J.P. Rosenbaum, Season 9's Desiree Hartsock and Chris Siegfried, Season 12's JoJo Fletcher and Jordan Rodgers, Season 13's Rachel Lindsay and Bryan Abasolo, and Season 14's Becca Kufrin and Garrett Yrigoyen.

As for the rest, they've moved on in different ways, and viewers of "The Bachelor: The Greatest Seasons - Ever" will find out how some of them are doing. In addition to a look at the high points and low points of past seasons of "The Bachelor" and "The Bachelorette," Harrison treats fans to some virtual check-ins with favorite alumni to find out how they're doing after the final rose.

It looks as if such virtual check-ins are about as close as most of Bachelor Nation will get to new content because of the current COVID-19 pandemic. Originally titled "The Bachelor: Most Unforgettable - Ever," the 10-episode series has been on Bachelor Nation's radar since April when Variety broke the news of the show. The decision to bring the special retrospective series to prime time came about because the current season of "The Bachelorette" had to halt shooting earlier this spring due to the pandemic. That may be bad news to millions of fans, but take heart. Variety has reported that the "Bachelorette" team may get back to work this summer in an undetermined location. Reports indicate that all cast and crew for the series would have to be tested before shooting started and then remain guarantined until it is finished.

Plans for "The Bachelorette" are, as of yet, still up in the air, as are plans for the spinoff "Bachelor in Paradise" and ABC's reality TV take on the now postponed 2020 Tokyo Olympics, "The Bachelor Summer Games."

In the meantime, longtime "Bachelor" host Harrison is offering viewers a walk down memory lane. For those who may not be familiar with the popular franchise, the new retrospective series is the perfect opportunity to dive right in. Get a crash course in the ups and downs of "The Bachelor" and "The Bachelorette" and find out what all the fuss is about by tuning into "The Bachelor: The Greatest Seasons - Ever," premiering Monday, June 8, on ABC.

Estelle Getty, Bea Arthur, Rue McClanahan and Betty White star in "The Golden Girls"

By Jessica Gosse

TV Media

"The Golden Girls"

Available now on Hulu, this classic series follows Rose (Betty White, "Hot in Cleveland"), Blanche (Rue McClanahan, "Safe Harbor"), Dorothy (Bea Arthur, "Maude") and her mother, Sophia (Estelle Getty, "Empty Nest"), at a turning point in their lives. Each of them has faced difficult circumstances that lead to them choosing to live together — Rose and Blanche's respective husbands died, Dorothy got a divorce after her husband left her for a younger woman, and Sophia's retirement home burned down. Now, the four friends must rely on each other as they enter into a new phase of their lives. Despite being rather naive, Rose hopes to have a career, Dorothy is bitter from her first marriage but wants a companion, Blanche has become man-crazed and dates constantly and Sophia provides them all with the comical wisdom of her years. While most sitcoms show the friendships of teens and twentysomethings, this series shows the trials of more matured friendships and proves that when all is said and done. your friends will still be by your side. Start binge watching all seven seasons of "The Golden Girls" now on Hulu.

"Maxxx"

O-T Fagbenle ("The Handmaid's Tale") takes the lead as the washed-up former boy band star Maxxx in this British comedy series premiering Tuesday, June 2, on Hulu. When he is dumped by his supermodel girlfriend, Jourdan (Jourdan Dunn, "Zoolander 2," 2016), Maxx decides it's time to make a comeback and sets out to launch a solo music career. With the help of his cousin, Rose (Helen Monks, "Upstart Crow"), and the interesting combination of his former manager, Don (Christopher Meloni, "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit"), and new manager, Tamzin (Pippa Bennett-Warner, "Harlots"), Maxx attempts to prove to the world and himself that he isn't a loser.

"In My Skin"

Originally intended as a short film, this dark comedy series from BBC Wales is one you won't want to miss when it comes to Hulu on Thursday, June 4. Only five episodes long, "In My Skin" looks at the life of 16-year-old Bethan (Gabrielle Creevy, "15 Days") as she copes with the complexities of her life. Bethan struggles with many typical problems that include questioning her sexuality and dealing with school, but the real problems are at home, where she deals with problems that would be a lot for anyone to handle, let alone a 16-year-old girl. Her mother, Katrina (Jo Hartley, "After Life"), suffers from bipolar disorder, and her father, Dilwyn (Rhodri Meilir, "My Family"), is an alcoholic — both are troubles Bethan feels the need to keep hidden from everyone at school. Luckily, Bethan has her two best friends to turn to, and though they come with their own struggles — Travis (James Wilbraham, "Ordinary Lies") is gay and Lydia (Poppy Lee Friar, "Little Einsteins") is extremely rebellious — they are somehow exactly what Bethan needs.

"We Are Freestyle Love Supreme"

In 2015, "Hamilton: An American Musical" made its Broadway debut and instantly became a smash hit. Since then, there has been one person those in the theater community can not stop talking about: composer, playwright, singer, actor and producer Lin-Manuel Miranda. While most focus on Miranda's Broadway career (before creating the sensation that is "Hamilton," he also wrote the music and lyrics for the Broadway hits "In The Heights" and "Bring It On: The Musical"), we see another musical side of him as the co-founder of a hiphop improv group in the documentary "We Are Freestyle Love Supreme," coming to Hulu on Friday, June 5. If you are unfamiliar with the music of "Hamilton," the idea of Miranda rapping may be odd, but if you are familiar (especially with the iconic song "My Shot"), the idea of Miranda being part of an improvisational rap group isn't that shocking. The troupe was created in 2003 by Miranda, Thomas Kail and Anthony Veneziale (both of whom went on to have a hand in the creation of "Hamilton"), and over the years has featured many impressive performers, such as Daveed Diggs ("Black-ish") and Wayne Brady ("Whose Line Is It Anyway?"). This documentary focuses on the origins of the troupe and how it impacted each member's future endeavors all the way up to their reunion performance in New York City in 2019.

"Shirley" (2020)

This intense film begins streaming Friday, June 5. Elisabeth Moss

("The Handmaid's Tale") stars as the eponymous Shirley, a writer of horror fiction, whose work on her newest novel is interrupted by the arrival of young couple Fred (Logan Lerman, 'Hunters") and Rose (Odessa Young, "High Life"). As Fred spars intellectually with Shirley's husband, Stanley (Michael Stuhlbarg, "The Looming" Tower"), Shirley toys with Rose. As she begins to see Rose as a muse, she manipulates the poor young girl in a search for inspiration for her novel. Moss is stunning in this off-kilter film about ambition, sex and control, as are her castmates. Give this creepy film a chance.

Jennifer Morrison stars in "Once Upon a Time"

By Breanna Henry

TV Media

"Once Upon a Time"

Many of us wish that our lives were a fairytale and hope that we'll live happily ever after, but in this series, fairytales are not what you'd expect. Emma Swan (Jennifer Morrison, "House") works as a bounty hunter in Boston, a relatively normal existence, until one day, a young boy named Henry (Jared Gilmore, "Mad Men") shows up on her doorstep asking for her help. He informs her that not only is he the child she gave up for adoption 10 years earlier, but she is the daughter of Snow White and Prince Charming and is destined to "bring back the happy endings." When she brings him back to his home in Storybrooke, Maine, she meets the locals, all of whom Henry insists are famous fairytale characters who have been put under a curse that makes them forget who they are. What Emma doesn't realize is that he's right, and that she is the only one who can break the curse. Among the town's residents are Mary Margaret/Snow White (Ginnifer Goodwin, "Why Women Kill"), Henry's teacher; John Doe/Prince Charming (Josh Dallas, "Manifest"), a coma patient; Mr. Gold/Rumpelstiltskin (Robert Carlyle, "T2 Trainspotting," 2017), a pawn shop owner; and, of course, the town mayor and Henry's adoptive mother, Regina Mills/the Evil Queen (Lana Parrilla, "Spin City"). As the series continues, Emma realizes that the fairytales she knows are just a part of the story, and none of the characters are quite what she expected. All seven seasons of "Once Upon a Time" are available now on Prime.

"The Fall"

When you already know who the killer is, what story is left to be told in a murder mystery? Inspired by infamous testimony and evidence of American serial killer Dennis Rader, aka The BTK Killer, British writer Allan Cubitt ("Prime Suspect") created "The Fall," a British-Northern Irish co-production that skips over the questions of who a serial killer

it. The first episode introduces Paul Spector as he wanders, creepily sniffing, through a woman's home, a home he has clearly not been invited to. The fact that this character is played by Jamie Dornan, the handsome Northern Irish actor who plays a literal sexual fantasy in the "Fifty Shades" series, actually plays into the show's idea of a seemingly normal (or even, perhaps, aboveaverage) person committing heinous acts. Attempting to put the clues of Spector's serial killing spree together is Detective Superintendent Stella Gibson, played by Gillian Anderson, who most will recognize as cult-TV icon Agent is, and gets right to why does he does

Vicky McClure, Martin Compston and Keeley Hawes from "Line of Duty'

Jamie Dornan and Gillian Anderson as seen in "The Fall"

Scully from "The X-Files," There are 17 episodes of this award-winning series, which are all available on Prime, but don't expect the tale of a serial killer and the team that hunts him to end in sunshine or rainbows. Alan Cubitt's "The Fall" is a psychological drama rife with tragedy; you may know who the killer is, but this series offers up no lack of mystery.

"Line of Duty"

If you like British television, police procedurals or both, chances are you've already binged and loved "Line of Duty." If that's the case, you already know it's worth watching again. The series features the AC-12, a (fictional) anticorruption unit that operates similarly to an internal affairs division. At series open, Detective Steve Arnott (Martin Compston, "Mary Queen of Scots" 2018) is transferred to the unit after circumstance proves him the right man for the job. The highly capable undercover agent Kate Fleming (Vicky McClure, "This Is England" 2006) is assigned as Arnott's partner, and the pair begins to unravel and investigate crimes within the police force. Not exactly serialized, but not exactly episodic, "Line of Duty" follows an over-arching storyline, while each season focuses specifically on one particular "bent cop," meaning you can pick up from whichever season premiere seems interesting, before inevitably getting hooked and starting out from the beginning. With the way the series plays out, an evolving cast is not disappointing, but welcome. From Season 1's D.C.I. Tony Gates (Lennie James, "The Walking Dead") and his increasingly troubling cover-ups, to the suspicious sole survivor of Season 2, D.I. Lindsay Denton (Keely Hawes, The Durrells"), and the unforgettable bait-and-switch of Season 3 involving Sergeant Daniel Waldron (Daniel Mays, "Good Omens"), the show never suffers from the problems that many long-running series have, and remains fresh to this day. Be sure to get yourself hooked on the "Line of Duty" by checking it out on Prime.

Jodie Sweetin and Candace Cameron-Bure in "Fuller House"

"Fuller House" Season 5 Part 2

Back in 2016, '90s kids got a wave of nostalgia when Netflix premiered "Fuller House," a spinoff of the early 1990s sitcom "Full House," which saw most of the original cast members reprising their roles. Now, the series is set to come to a close when the final episodes of Season 5 launch on Tuesday, June 2, on Netflix. The series is set 20 years after the finale of "Full House" and follows a now adult D.J. Tanner-Fuller (Candace Cameron-Bure, "Make It or Break It") as she faces the same situation her father faced: she's recently widowed and raising three children. Luckily, like her father before her, she has help: her sister Stephanie (Jodie Sweetin, "Hollywood Darlings") and her lifelong best friend, Kimmy (Andrea Barber, "Days of Our Lives"). Over the last five years, they've been through many ups and downs and have been joined by many friends and family members, like Joey (Dave Coulier, "Out of Control"), Jesse (John Stamos, "ER") and, of course, Danny (Bob Saget, "Entourage," 2015). You can catch up on the first nine episodes of the fifth and final season of this heartwarming spinoff just in time for the debut of the final episodes.

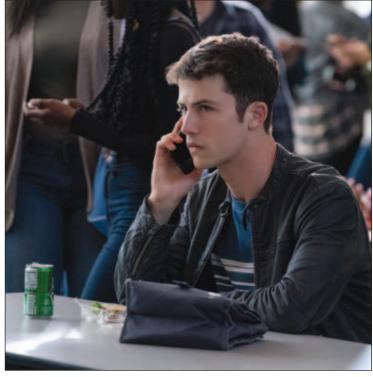

"13 Reasons Why" Season 4 The fourth and final season of this ad-

The fourth and final season of this addictive series premieres Friday, June 5, and if you need to, you can stream the first three seasons while you wait for the new one. Dylan Minnette ("Prisoners," 2013) stars as Clay, who, in the first season, found a box full of cassette tapes on his porch. He soon learned that the tapes were made by his classmate, Hannah (Katherine Langford, "Knives Out," 2019), who committed suicide a few weeks earlier, and each tape was dedicated to one person who directly influenced her decision to end her life. It's a rough emotional journey, and it should be noted that this is not a series for children, as the subject matter is quite dark. Three seasons later, Hannah's death still looms over the students of Liberty High School, and Clay and his friends have descended into a web of lies and cover-ups. As a student threatens to expose the truth about a murder, a plot to cover up a potential school shooting also begins to unravel. Find out if any of the Liberty students can make it through the season without their lives falling apart with the final installment of "13 Reasons Why" premieres Friday.

"That '70s Show"

Join the gang as they hang out in the Formans' basement in Point Place, Wisconsin, in the late 1970s in this sitcom. You can watch all eight seasons now on Netflix. Eric Forman (Topher Grace, "Spider-Man," 2002), Donna Pinciotti (Laura Prepon, "Orange Is the New Black"), Steven Hyde (Danny Masterson, "The Ranch"), Michael Kelso (Ashton Kutcher, "Two and a Half Men"), Jackie Burkhart (Mila Kunis, "Bad Moms," 2016) and Fez (Wilmer Valderrama, "NCIS") navigate the ups and downs of life while getting into all sorts of shenanigans. Enjoy every moment of Eric and Donna navigating their transition from friends to lovers, Jackie's on-again, off-again relationship with Kelso, Hyde's government conspiracy theories and Fez's hilarious misunderstandings of American culture — this series is filled with lots of heart as well as humor, Capitalizing on the tropes of the '70s, the series follows the group of friends as they spend a good portion of their time hanging out in Eric's basement in a cloud of smoke discussing everything from serious topics to the possibility of a car that runs on water. Though it

lasted eight seasons, the series actu- ally begins in 1976 and ends at exactly 11:59 on New Year's Eve 1979.

Q: Is there any reason why "CSI: NY" is not showing any reruns? I see all the other CSIs but not New York.

A: There's no easy answer to this one, and there almost never will be because there are so many different factors for why a show is (or isn't) rerun.

On the seller's side, for example, there's who owns the rights, what they paid to get them, what they charge for licensing fees, and more. On the buyer's (broadcaster) side, there's the same license-fee question, but also who they think their audience is (an inexact science) and what they think they want (an even less exact science).

Multiply those factors by the number of different channels that play reruns and by the ever-increasing number of shows available for syndication, and you get to the point where a show's chances of being run are close to random, mathematically speaking.

Your point about the other spinoffs is interesting, though. If the game is random, why do the other CSIs keep winning?

There are some things going against "CSI: NY," the main one being it was less popular than the original version and "CSI: Miami." (I'm not even going to talk about "CSI: Cyber," which didn't produce enough episodes for regular syndication.)

It also produced fewer episodes — it ran for nine seasons, compared to 10 for "Miami," and a whopping 15 plus a movie for the original show. More episodes is generally better for a show going into repeats because it gets less, well, repetitive.

Q: What's Guy Ritchie doing next? I loved "The Gentlemen" and am glad he's gone back to proper action movies again.

A: If you saw Guy Ritchie's latest movie, 2019's "The Gentlemen," as a return to form, then you'll be happy with what I'm about to tell you.

Ritchie is following up his comic caper film "The Gentlemen" with another crime flick, "Cash Truck," due out next vear. Indeed, this is extra-great news for old school Ritchie fans, as it reunites him with his early-era muse, Jason Statham.

Ritchie came to prominence as a lowbrow film auteur, directing and writing "Lock, Stock and Two Smoking Barrels" (1998) and "Snatch" (2000). Those two twisty, comic caper movies both featured Statham and turned him and Ritchie both into huge Hollywood names.

Unfortunately, Ritchie seems to get bored with the crime genre every so often. He followed "Snatch" with the dismal 2002 romcom "Swept Away" (starring his erstwhile wife, Madonna), then seemed to apologize to his fans with a couple more crime films (2005's "Revolver" and 2008's "RocknRolla").

Having won their sympathy back, he got adventurous again, with mixed results. The "Sherlock Holmes" movies (2009 and 2011) starring Robert Downey Jr. were critical and commercial hits, but he followed them up with "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." (2015) and "King Arthur: Legend of the Sword" (2017), weird pseudo-historical flops that played fast and loose with some very popular source material.
