Over 50 wooden boxes, many stacked on top of one another, dot the forested landscape around a large house, a small retail store and an adjoining workshop under construction on West Reynolds Avenue.

Docile honey bees lazily buzz around this scene, unbothered by the construction workers as they travel back and forth between various wild plants and trees, pollinating as they go, before returning to their hives in one of the wooden boxes.

It's the site of Woods Bee Co., owned by Alan Woods and his wife Beverly Woods, and it's a business they never thought they would be in.

Jared Wenzelburger / jwenzelburger@chronline.com

Woods Bee Co. owners Beverly and Alan Woods pose for a photo next to a bee box outside their store Tuesday afternoon in Centralia.

Wood began his life in Texas, moved to Washington and retired after a military career. Beverly grew up in Adna and was a preschool teacher before the COVID-19 pandemic. Their first step toward beekeeping started when Alan's daughter bought him a spot in a beekeeping class. Before he knew it he had a hive of his own.

But the business started when the Woods' friend caught a swarm one day and they learned the price they paid for the wooden box that the bees are placed in. Alan and Beverly decided they would start buying boxes in bulk and then sell them to people at a reasonable price.

So Woods Bee Co. began in their humble garage in 2014. And when they needed to expand in April 2019, they moved their business from one garage to another. Well, at least the retail store.

The Woods now have over 50 hives and sell raw honey, cream honey, comb honey, wax, candles and much more. They also sell everything a prospective beekeeper would need, including growing boxes, queenrearing kits, books, bee-friendly plant seeds and beekeeper

'It's not really a living, it's a lifestyle, taking care of the bees," Beverly said.

Alan, who is a certified master beekeeper in both Washington and Montana, also teaches certification classes. Those started with on-site workshop classes every other weekend in 2019, where each student gets to work on their own hive and learn the ins and out of keeping a healthy bee population. The classes are still offered but the Woods have had to switch to weekly Zoom clases online due to the CO-VID-19 pandemic.

"Most people learn by handson instead of by book," Beverly said. "Books and YouTube are great, but hands-on is so much better."

They also do visits to peoples' houses to check out their hives and offer suggestions and tips, including how to help them make sure their hives survive winter. This is a business but that isn't the sole focus for the Woods. They aren't out to get rich from beekeeping.

"We're actually more about the beekeepers and the bees," Alan said. "Most people try to make beekeepers or train you how to beekeep. We believe if we teach you about the bees, what they do, how they live, what they like, then you'll be a better beekeeper because you'll be able to support them better."

Honey bees only have a short lifespan, about 45 days, and Alan has been working on maximizing a bee's potential before they are gone. That includes knowing when to put empty wood frames in the hives near the young bees so they can make wax at the early stages of their lives.

"When you understand their process it helps them because for one, bees work until they die," Alan said. "They want to work. So when you don't do anything to your hive and there's too much honey and nectar and you're not shifting it so the bees can work, they leave."

And the bees have given back to Alan, who is a pastor at Trinity Christian Fellowship in Chehalis, by exchanging bigger-picture life lessons in return for his gentle beekeeping. With honey bees having such a short lifespan, each stage of their life is filled with a different duty, all building toward a future they'll never live in or benefit from. Their selflessness is something Alan has connected with over the years.

"Each hive is a society, a culture," Alan said. "They always work for something they never see. They always work for the next generation of bees. And they pass that culture to the next bees in a short amount of time. It's like your father trying to teach you how to be a man in 45 days. To me, that's fascinating, because if we could live like the bees and we cared about our next generation, rather than worrying about ourselves, I think we'd be like the bees. We'd flourish."

DearAbby

DEAR ABBY: My husband's mother recently told him he no longer matters to her because he is an atheist. His mother is supposedly a Christian, but she rarely acts like one. It has left my husband devastated and feeling more lonely than ever.

I can't find the right words to comfort him when he's going through something I haven't got a clue about. How do I empathize with him to let him know he did nothing wrong and that he never deserved to have those words thrown at him by his own mother?

It infuriates me, but I don't think it would be right for me to step in and talk to her directly. How do you deal with a narcissist who constantly plays the victim even after all the support you've given to her, financially and emotionally? — SUPPORTIVE WIFE IN ALABAMA

DEAR WIFE: I'm glad you asked. Explain to your husband that by emotionally abusing him this way, his mother is attempting to control him. What she said is despicable, and if he is as emotionally dependent on her as you have described, he may need counseling to get past this. The way to deal with her emotional blackmail is to distance yourselves from her financially and emotionally, because she is manipulative and toxic.

DEAR ABBY: Last night I visited my 47-year-old son. After a 23-year marriage, he is going through a nasty divorce. While I was there, he asked my opinion about what he should do regarding a "situation."

A 62-year-old female divorced neighbor, who looks much younger, befriended him, and they've been having sex and spending time together for several months. She hasn't been in any relationships for two years.

He told her he's not interested in a permanent relationship because he's still not in a good emotional place, but he told me the real reason is their age difference. She told him she wants to continue, hoping it will lead to something permanent. He wants to be friends with benefits but doesn't want to hurt her feelings by telling her this.

He's a decent guy and feels he's being deceptive. I suggested he be honest and tell her it's because of the age difference. What do you recommend? — MOM IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR MOM: Does your son think it will hurt the woman's feelings less if he monopolizes her for months — or more — and breaks the news later? For some people, a 15-year age difference is no big deal. But the longer this arrangement continues, the more hurt she will be when she finds out how much it matters to him.

I agree with you. Honesty is the best policy. And you know what? If she's as worldly as I suspect she may be, she may agree to continue the arrangement just the way it is.

DEAR ABBY: I am a quilter. I have created hundreds of quilts as gifts for friends and family over the last 30 years.

Earlier this year, my husband's uncle passed away, and my mother-in-law brought his quilt over and gave it back to me. When my mother passed recently, I was given her quilt back, too. Looking at them makes me sad, but I can't bear to just throw them away.

My question is, what do I do with them? And what can I say to people about not returning these gifts I made without hurting their feelings at the time they've lost their loved ones? — HURT IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR HURT: This is the first I have heard about returning personal gifts to the givers after someone passes away, and frankly, I am surprised. I wonder if the same would be true of gifts of expensive jewelry or clothing?

If it happens again, all you have to say is how sorry you are for the person's loss but that you don't "need" the quilt back and suggest it be donated to a hospital, nursing home, senior center or orphanage. Consider contacting a local church for information on where they might be needed.

As to what to say to these grieving relatives, remember that when a gift is given, it is the recipient's — or the recipient's survivors — to do with as they wish. Try not to take it so personally.

DEAR ABBY: What do you say to a guy who resurfaces 10 months after our first encounter and wants to know if I want to "see" him again? He didn't mention going to dinner or a movie or anything — just seeing each other every 10 days or so. — UNDECIDED IN FLORIDA

DEAR UNDECIDED: I'm not you, but this is what I would say: "What do you have in mind? A hike? A picnic at the beach? A socially-distanced dinner?" And if his answer isn't something more than getting together for sex, I'd pass.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend of four years recently admitted that he cheated on me six months ago. I was blindsided. Until the day he told me, I thought we shared everything. The hollowness and betrayal I feel is sometimes overwhelming.

He explained that at the time, he was dealing with substance issues and depression, which I was also unaware of. Both have worsened in recent months. How could I have been so blind?

To complicate things further, I have a 6-year-old son who has grown to love this man as a father because my ex-husband walked out on us when he was born. He has been an amazing role model for my son, and overall, a wonderful partner — or so I thought.

He says he's heartbroken over the pain he's caused me. He recently started receiving treatment for his depression through medication and therapy, and he has begged me to go to couples therapy to rebuild the trust that's been lost.

I was taught to believe that cheating is the end of a relationship, no ifs, ands or buts. I don't want to end the relationship, but I'm struggling with the decision because of what I was taught, especially when I confide in friends and they tell me to dump him.

I wish I knew what to do. I need an objective opinion. Can a relationship survive such a betrayal? Can we be happy again? — HOL-LOW IN NEW YORK

DEAR HOLLOW: The answers to your questions are yes and yes — especially if both partners are fully committed and prepared to get couples therapy from a licensed professional. If you love this man and want to give this relationship a chance, quit confiding in your friends and start talking with the therapist. Your boyfriend is remorseful, he is also in treatment, and he is trying his best to get better and work things out. Please give him the opportunity to do that because, if you do, your story may have a happy ending.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-yearold single woman living alone during quarantine. I have no family who live in-state.

Admittedly, I've struggled with loneliness during quarantine, and my family knows this. For weeks,

I have been fending off my dad's attempts to fly cross-country and visit. I don't think it's safe and have told him no.

Today, he told me that he is making plane reservations, it doesn't matter what I say or want. I know this comes from a place of love, but he is completely disregarding my feelings, especially since I have been extremely careful in quarantine and he hasn't been. Is there a way I can keep this visit from happening? — HOME ALONE IN RHODE ISLAND there is. Tell your father plainly you are afraid of being exposed to the virus because he hasn't been as careful about exposure as you have been. If he still insists, tell him he must bring with him proof that he has tested negative, and even then you won't see him unless you are both masked, gloved and practicing social distancing. He should also not plan on staying with you.

If that doesn't discourage him, when he arrives, see him outside and remain 6 feet apart in case he has been exposed at the airport or on the plane.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Contact Dear Abby at www.DearAbby. com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

A fresh crop

The scoop on TV's new fall shows

By Kyla Brewer TV Media

That magical time of year is almost here, and TV fans are in for some fresh treats at last. After months of reruns and binge watching, it's finally time for new TV series to pop up in prime time.

While there may not be as many productions as usual for this year's fall TV harvest, there are still some choice offerings. The major networks have secured a mix of dramas, a comedy and even a game show, and cable channels are also ready to duke it out for ratings with their own original programming.

There's no doubt that the CO-VID-19 shutdown has had an impact on television productions, many of which were forced to close up shop in March. However, industry pundits remain optimistic, including the folks at Fox, who are planning to welcome three notable new series to their prime-time lineup this fall.

"Now, more than ever, consistency, results and stability take on an allnew emphasis," Fox executive Marianne Gambelli said. "Fox is primed and ready for the fall with a great deal of stability across our entire programming lineup, featuring premium content that continually resonates with viewers."

In other words, the key to success might just be quality over quantity. Bringing in some top-notch stars could give Fox the edge. Gabrielle Union ("Bring It On," 2000) and Jessica Alba ("Fantastic Four." 2005) bring their talents to the small screen in the network's newly acquired "L.A.'s Finest," scheduled to make its network television debut on Monday, Sept. 21. The police drama from Hollywood bigwig Jerry Bruckheimer is a spinoff of his big-screen Bad Boys franchise. "L.A.'s Finest" follows "Bad Boy" Marcus Burnett's sister, Syd (Union), and her new LAPD partner, Nancy (Alba). It's important to note that the show isn't entirely new, but it's new to Fox. Its first season aired on the cable channel Spectrum.

Fox does have two completely new series this fall — "Filthy Rich" and "Next." Premiering right after "L.A.'s Finest" on Monday, Sept. 21, "Filthy Rich" stars Kim Cattrall ("Sex in the City") as wealthy widow Margaret Monreaux. She's shocked to discover that her late husband, Eugene Mon-reaux (Gerald McRaney, "Simon & Simon"), fathered three illegitimate children. What's worse, he wrote them into his will, threatening her hold on the family fortune.

Fox's thriller "Next" is set to premiere on Tuesday, Oct. 6. It stars John Slatterly ("Mad Men") as Silicon Valley pioneer Paul LeBlanc. When he discovers that an artificial intelligence that he created could be a threat to the human race, he works alongside Homeland Cybersecurity agent Shea Salazar (Fernanda Andrade, "Fallen") to stop it.

CBS has plans for two new series this fall - one comedy and one drama – although neither has a concrete premiere date as of yet. The network's "B Positive" is the only network television comedy scheduled to make its debut this fall. Chuck Lorre ("The Big Bang Theory") and Marco Pennette ("Inconceivable") serve as executive producers on the series about Drew (Thomas Middleditch, "Silicon Valley"), a newly divorced dad who discovers he needs a kidney transplant. Luckily, a woman from his past, Gina (Annaleigh Ashford, "Masters of Sex"), agrees to donate None other than Queen Latifah ("Chicago," 2002) helms a reboot of the classic TV series "The Equalizer" for CBS. She stars as Robyn McCall, a mysterious woman who uses her unique skill set to help those who have no one else to turn to in this reimagining of the show that ran from 1985 to 1989. As in the original series, the Equalizer, as McCall is known, is a vigilante for justice. Chris Noth ("Law & Order") and Lorraine Toussaint ("Orange Is the New Black") also star.

At ABC, David E. Kelley ("Ally Mc-Beal") has cooked up the thriller "Big Sky" based on the book "The Highway" by C.J. Box. Private detectives Cassie Dewell (Kylie Bunbury, "Pitch") and Cody Hoyt (Ryan Phillippe, "Cruel Intentions," 1999) team up with Hoyt's ex-wife, Jenny (Katheryn Winnick, "Vikings"), to investigate the disappearance of two sisters who were kidnapped by a truck driver on a remote highway in Montana.

ABC has the only game show on the network TV docket with "Supermarket Sweep," a rehash of the series that originally aired on American television in the 1960s. Leslie Jones ("Saturday Night Live") hosts the new version, which follows three teams that use their knowledge of merchandise and grocery shopping prowess to win big prizes.

As with the CBS series, neither of ABC's new offerings had confirmed premiere dates as of press time.

Last but not least of the so-called Big Four networks is NBC with a sole new offering for fall. However, given its pedigree, the new series ought to have lots to offer. Fan favorite Christopher Meloni ("Oz") reprises his role as Elliot Stabler from "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" in the spinoff "Law & Order: Organized Crime," which is also awaiting a premiere date. After a decade away, Stabler returns to the NYPD to lead a task force to take down New York's crime syndicates.

Cable channels have some fresh fare for TV viewers as well. HBO will be out of the gate early with the premiere of "We Are Who We Are," on Monday, Sept. 14. The drama from Luca Guadagnino ("Call Me By Your Name," 2017) examines modern teen angst set against the backdrop of an American military base in Italy in 2016. It stars Jack Dylan Grazer ("It," 2017) as Fraser, a shy teenager who moves from New York to the base. Newcomer Jordan Kristine Seamon stars as his new friend, Caitlin.

AMC hopes to continue the success of its The Walking Dead franchise with "The Walking Dead: World Beyond," scheduled to premiere Sunday, Oct. 4. The series had been slated to premiere in April, but AMC changed its plans when COVID-19 forced the industry-wide shutdown, opting instead to save it for its fall schedule. Set 10 years after the advent of the apocalypse, the show follows sisters Iris (Aliyah Royale, "The Red Line") and Hope (Alexa Mansour, "Loco Love," 2017) and two friends who leave a place of safety on a quest.

All told, for fans hungry for fresh content, there's something to suit just about everyone's tastes this fall. Check out TV's freshest fare beginning in September.

"Blindspot" Season 5

On Sunday, Aug. 23, binge the fifth and final season of this actionpacked crime drama when it debuts on Hulu. In Season 1, Jane Doe (Jaimie Alexander, "Thor: The Dark World," 2013) awoke in the middle of Times Square stark naked and covered in tattoos with no idea who she was or how she came to be there. When the FBI realized that her mysterious tattoos are actually various keys and codes, they assigned Agent Kurt Weller (Sullivan Stapleton, "Strike Back") to be Jane's handler. Despite her lack of memory, Jane's past began to shine through as she displayed remarkable skill in linguistics and combat, suggesting a military background. The series has taken many twists and turns, keeping fans on the edge of their seats as Jane worked with Weller and a team of agents to uncover her identity and unravel what seems to be a global conspiracy. In the gripping Season 4 finale, we were introduced to Madeline Burke (Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, "Limitless"), a rogue FBI agent out to bring down the agency. Now, Jane and Weller must protect their team and stop Burke before it's too late as the series comes to a close in this gripping final season.

"The Roads Not Taken" (2020)

Javier Bardem ("No Country for Old Men," 2007) stars as Leo, a man coping with the tragic effects of dementia in this drama coming to Hulu on Monday, Aug. 24. Meanwhile, in his mind. Leo lives out the two possible lives he could have lived if he had made different choices - one in Mexico with his ex-wife Dolores (Salma Hayek, "The Hitman's Bodyguard," 2017), and one as a writer in Greece. Academy Award nominee Laura Linney ("Ozark") also stars in this heartwrenching film.

"Mom" Season 7

When the series began, Christy was struggling with alcoholism and decided to try to get her life back on track by moving in with her estranged mother, Bonnie. Despite the tension in their relationship stemming from past incidents (which range from teen pregnancy and deadbeat dads to abusive relationships), they come together when they begin attending Alcoholics Anonymous, and Christy's teen daughter, Violet (Sadie Calvano, "Why Women Kill"), announces that she's pregnant. Now, several years later, both Bonnie and Christy's lives have become far more stable as Bonnie is now married to Adam (William Fichtner, "The Lone Ranger," 2013) and Christy is headed back to school in order to pursue her dreams of becoming a lawyer. With help from their eccentric friends at AA, Bonnie now works to maintain a healthy relationship with Adam, and Christy struggles with the combined duties of law school and motherhood.

Anyone who has ever been on a diet will understand the excitement of having a "cheat day," and in this comedy, premiering Friday, Aug. 28, on Hulu, the concept of a "cheat day" is taken to a whole new level. Skyler Gisondo ("Santa Clarita Diet"), Eduardo Franco ("Booksmart," 2019) and Dexter Darden ("The Maze Runner," 2014) star as Griffin, Andrew and Hags, three teenage boys living in a world where all alcohol and drugs are illegal. The laws against these substances are strongly enforced, but once a year, anyone over the age of 18 is welcome to partake in an epic day of indulgence and partying known as "Binge Day." Now, the boys have finally come of age and are ready to join in on the crazy shenanigans of Binge Day.

Aisha Tyler is set to host "Prime Rewind: Inside The Boys"

"Prime Rewind: Inside The

If you loved the hit first season of Prime's superhero series "The Boys," you'll love this new aftershow, premiering Friday, Aug. 28, on the streamer. Aisha Tyler ("Criminal Minds") acts as host, discussing all the epic twists and turns of the series with a variety of special quests, including cast and crew members. The premiere takes a look back at the entire first season, dissecting the themes, the plot, the series creators and the origins of the comic, while each subsequent episode focuses specifically on the most recent episode of Season 2, beginning with the premiere on Sept. 4. Not only does "Inside The Boys" serve as a retrospective, but fans are also treated to teasers regarding upcoming episodes. A massive fan of the show herself, Tyler has described "The Boys" as "one of the smartest, most irreverent, unapologetically badass shows streaming," and she is thrilled to bring fans into the heart of the series.

"Get Duked!" (2019)

Eddie Izzard ("Victoria & Abdul," 2017) stars as a twisted, masked man-hunter known as "The Duke" in this hilarious film from Ninian Doff in his directorial debut. Available on Prime starting Friday, Aug. 28, this outrageous, drug-addled goofball comedy follows four teen boys from the city attempting to outwit the Duke as he hunts them through the Scottish Highlands. Duncan (Lewis Gribben, "Deadwater Fell"), a pyromaniacal loudmouth, Dean (Rian Gordon, "Final Score" 2018), a grumbling juvenile delinquent, Ian (Samuel Bottomley, "Ladhood"), the over-prepared nerd, and DJ Beatroot (Viraj Juneja, "Vera"), a wannabe rapper whose hip-hop addiction lends a fantastic soundtrack to the film, are part of a wilderness survival competition that ends up going extremely off the rails when they find out the real reason they've been abandoned in the Highlands. All the while, the usually-bored Highland police stumble along behind the disaster, never quite managing to rescue the

This month, Amazon added this female-led ensemble comedy that's sure to give many women a touch of nostalgia. Adapted from the play by Robert Harling, the story is an ode to the playwright's sister and her battle with Type 1 diabetes. The film boasts a cast comprised of Sally Field ("Dispatches from Elsewhere"), Dolly Parton ("Dolly Parton's Heartstrings"), Shirley MacLaine ("Terms of Endearment," 1983), Daryl Hannah ("Sense8"), Olympia Dukakis ("Moonstruck," 1987) and Julia Roberts ("Pretty Woman," 1990), and the talent of these award-winning women alone should be enough to pull you in. Add in a few handsome men with enough talent to spare in their own right, and it's no wonder that this late-'80s romp manages to pluck heartstrings and tickle funny bones more than 30 years after it's initial release.

Christian Bale stars in "3:30 to Yuma"

Dolly Parton and Olympia Dukakis in "Steel Magnolias"

"3:10 to Yuma" (2007)

If you take Russel Crowe ("Gladiator." 2000), Christian Bale ("American Psycho," 2000), the Wild West and a gang of gunslingers, set it in the desert and put it all on a time-limit, you end up with this box-office-smashing Western remake that many say is even better than the original 1957 film. Bale stars as Dan Evans, a poor, one-legged rancher with a debt to pay, while Crowe leads a gang as the honorbound criminal Ben Wade. When Evans stumbles upon Wade in an illegal, albeit interesting, position, he ends up being recruited to escort the gunslinger to a train station that will take him to prison – the 3:10 p.m. train headed to the town of Yuma. Along the way, the pair bond, battle and learn about each other, resulting in a unique relationship that leaves audiences wondering just what is going to go down once they arrive at their destination. You can watch this action-packed modern Western on Prime now.

Ralph Macchio stars in "Cobra Kai"

By Jessica Gosse TV Media

"Cobra Kai" Seasons 1 and 2

It's been more than 30 years since Ralph Macchio ("The Deuce") and William Zabka ("How I Met Your Mother") faced off in an epic showdown at the All-Valley Karate Championship as Daniel LaRusso and Johnny Lawrence in "The Karate Kid" (1984). Now, both of them return to the dojo in the first two seasons of this series that proves grudges can truly last a lifetime, coming to Netflix on Friday, Aug. 28. No longer teenagers, Daniel and Johnny live drastically different lives - Daniel has found success running a car dealership while Johnny struggles as a handyman. When Johnny gets arrested for assault after saving a teenager named Miguel (Xolo Mariduena, "Parenthood") from being severely beaten by a group of bullies, and is promptly disowned by his family, he begins to spiral and lose sight of his purpose in life. The hits keep on coming as his car is then wrecked in a hit-and-run, which leads to him running into Daniel. The reunion with his old nemesis gives Johnny an idea that could help him reestablish his purpose: reopen the Cobra Kai dojo where he trained as a teen and take Miguel under his wing. Old rivalries are reignited as Miguel begins using his training to fight bullies at school, Johnny's estranged son, Robby (Tanner Buchanan, "Designated Survivor"), begins karate training with Daniel and Daniel's daughter, Samantha (Mary Mouser, "Body of Proof"), finds herself put in the middle as she becomes friends with Miguel.

"Trinkets" Season 2

All teens have their own way of rebelling, whether it's via their clothing, their music or a significant other they just know won't get their parents' approval. In some cases, though, it can be a little more drastic, like say, kleptomania? In this Netflix original series, the second and final season of which premieres Tuesday, Aug. 25, three unlikely teens are brought together over their mutual tendency to employ the five-finger discount. Brianna Hildebrand ("Deadpool 2," 2018) stars as Elodie Davis, who has just moved to Oregon after her widowed father remarried, giving her a new stepmother and stepbrother. When she is caught shoplifting, her father insists that she begin attending Shoplifters Anonymous meetings. There, she meets Moe (Kiana Madeira, "Really Me") and Tabitha (Quintessa Swindell, "Euphoria"), who go to her school. Despite their vast differences in personality Tabitha comes from a wealthy family and is a typical popular girl while Moe is more of an outcast - the three girls form a fast friendship and support each other through the struggles that pushed them to act out in the first place. The Season 1 finale left fans on the edge of their seats as Tabitha reached a new level of rebellion by stealing a car and Elodie ran away from home after her dad threatened to send her to a treatment facility in Seattle. Catch the dramatic final season when it premieres this Tuesday on the streamer.

"Rising Phoenix"

On Wednesday, Aug. 26, in time with what should have been the 2020 Paralympic Games, comes the premiere of this inspiring documentary. In 1948 in England, Sir Ludwig Guttmann organized the games in an effort to give hope and purpose to veterans of World War II who had been injured and left disabled. Over the years, more and more countries began to take part, creating what eventually became known as the Paralympic Movement. "Rising Phoenix" takes an in-depth look at these origins as well, as it looks into the lives of numerous Paralympic athletes, including Bebe Vio, Ellie Cole, Tatyana McFadden and more. Now the third-biggest sporting event worldwide, the Paralympic Games and the movement it created have drastically altered the world's perception of living with a disability and reaching

hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison TV Media

Q: When should we expect Season 3 of Amazon Prime's superb thriller "Jack Ryan" to appear?

A: Will "eventually" do you? How about "sometime"? The pandemic has made predicting these things nearly impossible, but I can say that it will happen.

Amazon cut a deal for Season 3 back in February 2019, before the second season even aired. Then the second season was released in late October and it was a hit – even more successful than the first, in fact – and so Amazon was surely even more excited to be in the "Jack Ryan" business.

And then the pandemic hit. It looks as if the show hadn't even started filming before the subsequent production shutdown. The last big news about the show came in January, when we heard it had changed showrunners again. Former "Star Trek: Discovery" producer Vaun Wilmott has taken over head writing duties from "Prison Break" creator Paul Scheuring, who in turn had stepped in for original "Jack Ryan" showrunner Carlton Cuse.

At the time, Wilmott was said to be "working on the scripts" with star and fellow writer John Krasinski ("The Office"). Fortunately, that's something that can be done at a distance, so in the intervening months, they've probably made a good deal of headway on that and on the rest of pre-production.

Q: We missed the very last episode of "Elementary" because of a football game. Can you please tell us what happened to everyone?

A: [It goes without saying that there are spoilers ahead – but there, I said it anyway. You've been warned.]

In keeping with a show that generally managed to keep a light tone even as it dealt with grisly murders, serial killers, and so on, "Elementary's" characters all live happily ever after. Maybe even the villain.

Not without a couple of scares,

First, Sherlock (Jonny Lee Miller, "Dark Shadows," 2012) was supposed to be dead but wasn't. But he returns to New York three years later when Watson (Lucy Liu, "Why Women Kill") contacts him, saying that she received a package originally addressed to him from the villainous Moriarty (Natalie Dormer, though she never actually appeared in the final season – the character was only ever invoked by name). Watson, by the way, is now a mom, having adopted a young boy.

But after he returns, wily sleuth that he is, Sherlock discovers that Watson is hiding the fact that she has cancer. The show then jumps forward in time again to a funeral, and viewers are supposed to believe it's Watson in the casket. But it's not – the funeral is for Moriarty, though Sherlock doesn't believe she's really dead, either.

And, for the record, neither does showrunner Robert Doherty. "I'm with Sherlock on this one," he said in an interview with TVInsider. com. "I absolutely believe Moriarty is alive and well."

(Sadly, despite having strong ideas about where the characters go after the finale, Doherty was pretty adamant that a revival is, at best, very unlikely.)

In passing through all this, we also learn that Gregson (Aidan Quinn, "Practical Magic," 1998) has retired and that Bell (Jon Michael Hill, "Widows," 2018) took over as captain of the precinct.

A Florida man was arrested last week after he allegedly purchased a Porsche with a fake cheque printed from his home computer. Which is pretty stupid, because he could've just used the money he spent to buy the ink.
