100 Places to See in Southwest Washington

Visitors to the Pacific Northwest often have two destinations in mind — the coastline of the Pacific Ocean and the white-capped peaks of the Cascade Mountain Range.

Between those two wonderful and mesmerizing locations, though, travelers will find a swath of Southwest Washington teeming with opportunities for adventure.

In this visitors guide, we identify just 100 of the thousands of options available for those visiting our wonderful corner of the world. Starting in the mountains — with the crown jewel of the region, Mount Rainier, and its explosive neighbor, Mount St. Helens — we identify some of the best places to hike, camp, fish and take in the outdoors in ways few other places provide.

From there, we move north to south, starting in Thurston County where one can find wolves, sandstone architecture and our state's Capitol, then moving through Lewis County and into Cowlitz and Clark counties, where communities offer much more than just a gateway to the mountains and beaches of the region.

We hope you'll use this guide as a jumping point to discover all of the businesses, parks and attractions that help make Southwest Washington a unique destination you'll almost certainly want to visit again.

Along with this guide, seek out the online homes of our partners: The Yelm Chamber of Commerce (yelmchamber.com), the Centralia-Chehalis Chamber of Commerce (chamberway.com), the Ridgefield Chamber of Commerce (ridgefieldchamberofcommerce.com) and the Cowlitz Tribe (cowlitz.org) for localized and updated information throughout the year.

Thank you for visiting Southwest Washington. We know you'll enjoy your stay.

Mount St. Helens

Mount St. Helens

Unlike Mount Rainier, its unspoiled neighbor on the Cascade mountain range, Mount St. Helens is still recovering from a devastating eruption 44 years ago.

1. Mount St. Helens National Monument

The Mount St. Helens National Volcanic Monument stands as a living testament to nature's regenerative power. It's easily accessible from Cowlitz, Skamania and Lewis counties for those who want to get a close-up view of the mountain and the surrounding area by car or by foot.

Evidence of the destruction still marks the landscape, with pieces of the mountain known as hummocks deposited throughout the blast zone.

The signs of regeneration are best explored closely.

Red paintbrush peeks through the ground along several hiking trails, and small trees insulated by snow at the time of the blast have begun to mature, especially in the Mount Margaret area. Wildlife has begun to call the area home once again, and it's not out of the realm of possibility to encounter a herd of deer or elk.

Unfortunately, a landslide cut off access to the Johnston Ridge Observatory in 2023. It is expected to be open seasonally again in 2026 or 2027.

The Johnston Ridge Observatory is located on Johnston Ridge in the center of the 1980 blast zone about 5 miles north of the Mount St. Helens summit. The ridge was named in honor of David Johnston, the United States Geological Survey (USGS) volcanologist who was on duty at the USGS Coldwater II observation point during the May 18, 1980, eruption. He was one of 57 people who lost their lives in the eruption. The observatory building houses seismic, deformation and other monitoring equipment that relays data to the USGS Cascades Volcano Observatory for analysis. It's also one of the best places to peer into the volcano and contemplate the explosive damage wrought by the 1980 eruption. It's located at the end of state Route 504, which can be reached from Castle Rock or Toledo off of Interstate 5. Be sure to monitor news on its eventual reopening.

There's still good reason to make the trip on state Route 504, alternatively known as the Spirit Lake Memorial Highway.

The Science and Learning Center, including the Elk Bench Trail, will be open to the public seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., beginning May 24.

The Science and Learning Center at Coldwater is a hands-on education center located 7 miles from the crater of Mount St. Helens off the road to Johnston Ridge. The Science and Learning Center at Coldwater offers spectacular views and immersion into the volcanic landscape and world just outside in the heart of the blast zone. The Science and Learning Center is located at milepost 43 on state Route 504, approximately 10 miles west of Johnston Ridge Observatory. Near the Science and Learning Center is:

Mountain goat along Johnston Ridge at Mount St. Helens

- The Winds of Change Trail with a 1/4-mile paved loop offering views of the Toutle Valley.
- The Elk Bench Trail connects with the Lakes Trail, providing stunning views of Coldwater Lake and frequent elk sightings along the way.
- A campground with stunning views of Mount St. Helens and Coldwater Lake that is available for group rentals.

Learn more: mshinstitute.org.
There's plenty more to see and do in the area around Mount St. Helens.

2. Windy Ridge Interpretive Site

Located just 5 miles from Mount St. Helens, the Windy Ridge Interpretive Site provides a close-up view of the volcano's crater and a breathtaking panorama of a landscape radically changed during the 1980 eruption and landslide. Below you lies Spirit Lake, with its floating log mat of huge trees swept into it during the eruption. Beyond, view a plain of pumice and ash and denuded hills, still fairly barren but greening with vegetation. Climb a 368-step sand ladder for a higher view. Read interpretive signs to learn about the events and people of the eruption. During summer, join an interpretive program presented at the site's amphitheater. The site is accessible and memorable for all.

Windy Ridge Interpretive Site provides access to Truman Trail #207 and Willow Springs Trail #207A.

From Randle on U.S. Highway 12, travel south on state Route 131 until the road forks. Stay to the right on state Route 131, which becomes Forest Road 25. Travel south on Forest Road 25 for 19 miles to Forest Road 99. Turn right on Forest Road 99 and drive 16 miles until it terminates at Windy Ridge. The site can also be reached traveling north from Cougar.

Remember, this site is only open seasonally, most often opening in May or June and closing as snowfall arrives. Road conditions can vary greatly, so be prepared for a potentially bumpy ride.

3. The Ape Cave

If you're looking for some climbing, some slime and some Bigfoot lore, the Ape Cave at the south end of Mount St. Helens may be the sweet spot. The pitch-black cave provides a trek into where lava pulsated some 2,000 years ago.

When you descend into the darkness, take the "upper cave" path for a longer journey (about a mile and a half), which demands a bit of scrambling. And while you should keep your eyes on your footing, make sure to catch a glimpse of the glittery — and oftentimes slimy — ceiling. Lava stalactites punctuate the rocky walls, which transform from broad openings to small, watch-your-head crevices as you walk.

According to the U.S. Forest Service, the Ape Cave is the third longest lava tube in North America at 2.5 miles. It was discovered in 1947 by Lawrence Johnson, a logger, but was only explored a few years later by a troop of Scouts, who lowered themselves into the cave and named it after their sponsor, the St. Helens Apes.

The genesis of the cave itself stems from a kind of eruption that was unusual for the Cascades: a basaltic eruption, which involves fluid lava. It's the only known basaltic eruption of the volcano, and it sent lava pouring down the south side of the mountain.

On your way out, stop at the Trail of Two Forests, where a boardwalk trail meanders through a young forest situated on a mossy lava field.

Be sure to reserve your spot at recreation.gov, and bring your coat and plenty of light sources.

The Ape Cave

The Ape Cave

To get to the Ape Cave from Interstate 5, take Exit 22 and turn left onto Dike Access Road. Continue onto old Pacific Highway and then take a slight left on East Scott Avenue. Take the second exit at the traffic circle onto Lewis River Road where you'll travel for about 30 miles. Continue onto Road 90 before eventually turning onto National Forest Road 83. Take a left at National Forest Road 8303 and follow the signs to the cave.

Curious how the cave got its name? Find the story under "The Classics" at bigfootencounters.com.

Coldwater Lake

4. Coldwater Lake Picnic & Boating Site

Another location still accessible despite the 2023 landslide on the Spirit Lake Memorial Highway, Coldwater Lake Recreation Area is located 45 miles east of Castle Rock in the heart of the blast zone near the Science and Learning Center. Experience the effect the May 18, 1980, eruption had on the Coldwater Valley, including creating a brand new lake. Kayaking is popular here. Combustion engines are prohibited on the lake, but anglers reach trophy trout by electric motors, rowing or kicking. See the restrictions section for more information.

The 0.6 miles accessible Birth of a Lake Interpretive Trail allows visitors to enjoy close up views of Coldwater Lake.

Lava Canyon Trail

Views of a rushing ribbon of pools and waterfalls await you on the Lava Canyon Trail on the south side of Mount St. Helens, not far from the welcoming town of Cougar. Three sections of the trail, one section which is accessible, provide opportunities for all. Due to the closure of the Lava Canyon Suspension Bridge, the 1.4 mile upper loop is not possible. But the first small bridge remains open for crossing the river. You may still walk down both sides of the river to the suspension bridge, you just can't cross it. The lower section past the suspension bridge is open.

The first 1/3 mile is paved and accessible. Stroll down some switchbacks and past lovely views of the Muddy River. Stop to read interpretive signs explaining the canyon's geological past.

After the first 1/3 mile, the pavement ends. To the right, cross a steel bridge, gaze down on the rushing Muddy River and explore the river's east side or continue straight on the main trail for another 0.4 miles to the suspension bridge. Normally, you can cross the suspension bridge to make a 1.4 mile loop, but due to the bridge's closure, this is currently not possible.

On the main trail, beyond the suspension bridge, the terrain becomes more difficult, descending steeply into the canyon. This section is not recommended for people uncomfortable with heights. The trail crosses an exposed cliff face followed by a water crossing with a cable grab-line. A 30-foot metal ladder descends a vertical cliff, providing access to the canyon's deepest recesses and roaring waterfalls. The canyon broadens out as it approaches the Smith Creek Valley. The trail ends at Smith Creek Trail #225.

6. The Town of Cougar

With all the potential adventures around Mount St. Helens, you'll need to fuel up at some point. This quiet-in-the-winter, bustling-in-the-summer mountain town offers the perfect respite. Cougar is an unincorporated community in Cowlitz County. It's located 28 miles northeast of Woodland along state Route 503 and is situated along the northwest bank of Yale Lake, a reservoir on the Lewis River. Surrounding the town you'll find campgrounds, trails and many different options for recreation on — or in — the water. The town also includes a bar and restaurant, a supply store and a fueling station, amid other amenities.

7. Climb to the Summit of Mount St. Helens

Ever thought about climbing to the top of an active volcano? If so, you'll never find a greater opportunity than Mount St. Helens, where you don't have to be an experienced mountaineer to reach the top. The summit is climbed all year, though the most popular times are in the late spring through early fall. Most climbers use the Monitor Ridge Route from Climbers Bivouac. A climbing permit is required and can be obtained at recreation.gov/permits/4675309.

This route gains 4,500 feet in 5 miles to the crater rim at 8,365 feet elevation. Although strenuous, this non-technical climb is suitable for people in good physical condition who are comfortable scrambling on steep, rugged terrain. Most climbers complete the round trip in seven to 12 hours. While climbing to the crater rim is permitted, entry into the crater is strictly prohibited.

You'll want to plan ahead. From April 1 to May 14, there is a daily limit of 350 climbers. The limit is 110 climbers from May 15 to Oct. 31. From Nov.

1 to March 31, there is no limit on climbers.

The closest town is Cougar.

Randle

Randle, located along U.S. Highway 12, is the northern gateway to Mount St. Helens and Mount Adams backcountry. The rural area around Randle is known locally as the "Big Bottom Valley," describing the valley floor of the Cowlitz River, which is big, flat and fertile.

Randle is a mainly residential community in unincorporated Lewis County with a handful of restaurants, a grocery store and campgrounds nearby. It has an active timber mill and is home to the ranger station for the Cowlitz Valley Ranger District of the Gifford Pinchot National Forest. Randle boasts access to the Windy Ridge viewpoint of Mount St. Helens, as well as the Mount Adams backcountry and to a wide variety of outdoor recreation in the forest. The Cowlitz River is a great fishing area

Experience Olympia

Olympia, Washington state's capital, features something for every visitor, whether you are traversing by car or on foot. With miles of walking paths along Capitol Lake, Budd Inlet or the historic downtown district, as well as all of the city's sights and tastes, Olympia has no shortage of beauty in all of its forms. The city is located right on the southern tip of the Puget Sound and offers breathtaking views of the shimmering water. Lovers of walks, jogs or bike rides can stroll the mile-long boardwalk along the waterfront at Percival Landing, a popular destination for picnics and play.

At the heart of the city, Olympia's pedestrian-friendly downtown district is packed with locally owned shops, restaurants, galleries, museums and performing arts venues, as well as the 50-acre Washington Capitol Campus. Visitors can explore Olympia's vast array of dining choices, including tide-to-table seafood restaurants, fresh bakeries, coffee shops and cuisines from around the world. The city also features the Olympia Farmers Market, the second largest farmers market in Washington. It is one of the only vendor-owned and operated markets of its kind in the state.

Visitors can immerse themselves in Olympia's bountiful collection of shopping destinations, namely Capital Mall, which presents more than 100 stores and restaurants. For avid local business supporters, downtown Olympia is loaded with unique shops like Hot Toddy, Captain Little, Psychic Sisters, Compass Rose, Browsers bookstore and many more.

Olympia is home to a vibrant arts scene, with venues such as the Capitol Theater, Washington Center for the Performing Arts and can't-miss murals and poetry decorating the city's downtown buildings.

For those curious about wildlife and science, the Billy Frank Jr. Nisqually National Wildlife Refuge, the Puget Sound Estuarium, the WET Science Center and the Hands On Children's Museum each offer a day of learning. Walk the trails of Capitol Forest, peruse the gardens and beaches of Squaxin Park or kayak the sea at West Bay Marina. The Washington Capitol Campus also has a self-guided walking tour highlighting 21 of the over 100 species of trees on the campus and a trail around Capitol Lake.

Road trip connoisseurs can travel the 60-mile loop tour of the Thurston Bountiful Byway, which covers the rural areas of the county from the Nisqually Valley to the intersection of Mud Bay Road and Delphi Road. The tour includes more than 20 agricultural, ecological and cultural stops.

On a sunny day, you can catch a glimpse of Mount Rainier from just about anywhere in Southwest Washington, but if you get a little closer, Rainier becomes more than a beautiful view. It's a perfect getaway for those wishing to escape for a prolonged day trip or some extended time with nature.

The mountain itself, reaching 14,410 feet, is probably the most recognized landmark in all of Washington state, and it's the background picture on most state license plates for good reason.

The active volcano is surrounded by lush forests, alpine meadows and abundant wildlife.

The mountain presents quite the challenge for climbers and can test even the most hardened hikers, but most people will be best served to simply visit areas such as Paradise, Longmire and Ohanapecoh and marvel at the enormity and beauty of the peak.

Mount Rainier is part of a scenic region of the Cascades that separates the east and west sides of the state, making the mountain more than just a destination in its own right, but an outdoors haven for anyone whose heart calls the hills and peaks of the region home.

Hiking and touring the Mount Rainier region is best reserved for the day, but when it comes time to wind down, Mount Rainier National Park offers plenty of resources for campers, from full-service campsites to backcountry areas.

The Cougar Rock campground in the southwest section of the park is open from late May to late September, offering 173 campsites; Ohanapecoh in the southeast section offers 188 sites; and White River offers 112 sites. All these campgrounds offer water, restrooms and fire grates; RVs and trailers are welcome, but visit nps.gov/mora for maximum length allowances.

Reservations are also required at Cougar Rock and Ohanapecoh.

For those wishing to camp in the wilderness, a permit is required. Pick one up from any of the visitor centers throughout the park.

The 93-mile Wonderland Trail provides opportunities for wilderness camping, offering the opportunity to cache food at several points along the way.

For a list of maps and other resources with which to plan a camping trip, visit nps.gov/mora/planyourvisit/maps.htm.

From Interstate 5, Mount Rainier is best accessed by taking U.S. Highway 12 to Morton then bearing north on state Route 7. Head north into Elbe, then take state Route 706 east all the way to the park entrance. A National Park Pass is required; for more information visit nps.gov/mora. Additional information can be found online at visitrainier.com.

Plan Ahead:

Mount Rainier National Park has experienced an approximate 40% increase in visitation over the last 10 years, leading to overcrowding during the summer and damage to fragile ecosystems. In 2024, Mount Rainier National Park implemented a pilot timed entry reservation system to improve the visitor experience to the park by reducing wait times, congestion and resource impacts on trails caused by overcrowding.

A timed entry reservation is required for two areas of the park: Paradise Corridor coming from the southwest (near Ashford) or southeast (near Packwood), and Sunrise Corridor coming from the northeast (via Enumclaw) from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Each corridor requires a separate vehicle reservation. Timed entry reservations are for a single day, per vehicle, and are required in addition to an entrance fee or park pass.

Learn more online at <https://www.nps.gov/mora/planyourvisit/timed-entry-reservations.htm>.

Here are locations within the park and surrounding it that visitors should be sure not to miss:

inches of snow a year. Winter activities include snowshoeing, cross-country skiing and sledding. The road between Longmire and Paradise is plowed, but closes at night during the winter. Paradise is located 19 miles east of the Nisqually Entrance and 12 miles east of Longmire.

The Henry M. Jackson Memorial Visitor Center at Paradise offers general information, exhibits, the park film, guided ranger programs, a book and gift store and a cafeteria. The visitor center is usually open daily from May to early October. From mid-October through April, it is usually open only on weekends and holidays.

The historic Paradise Inn, a concessioner-operated hotel, offers lodging, a dining room and a gift shop. The Paradise Inn is usually open from mid-May to early-October and is closed in the winter.

The Guide House houses the Paradise Climbing Information Center, where visitors can obtain climbing permits and hiking and backcountry camping information.

The historic Paradise Ranger Station is also located in Paradise. Information services formerly available at the Paradise Ranger Station are now available at the Guide House.

Sunrise

At an elevation of 6,400 feet, Sunrise is the highest point that can be reached by vehicle in Mount Rainier National Park. In summer, mountain meadows abound with wildflowers. On clear summer days, Sunrise provides breathtaking views of Mount Rainier and Emmons Glacier. Sunrise Point offers nearly 360-degree views of the surrounding valleys, Mount Rainier and other volcanoes in the Cascade Range such as Mount Adams. These views and an excellent trail system make Sunrise the second most visited location in the park. Sunrise is located 60 miles northeast of the Nisqually Entrance and 14 miles northwest of the Sunrise/White River turnoff on state Route 410.

The Sunrise Road usually opens in late June or early July and closes in late September to early October.

The Sunrise Visitor Center is open from early July to early September and is closed in winter. Here visitors will find exhibits, guided interpretive programs, book sales and a picnic area.

The Sunrise Day Lodge is open from early July to late September. It offers food service and a gift shop. There is no overnight lodging at the Sunrise Day Lodge.

The White River Campground and picnic area is located 12 miles from the Sunrise Visitor Center.

Carbon River and Mowich Lake

Named for coal deposits found in the area, Carbon River is located in the park's northwest corner. This part of Mount Rainier National Park receives consistently high amounts of rainfall so the climate and plant communities found here resemble that of a temperate rainforest.

The Carbon River Road was washed out by the 2006 flood and is closed to vehicles past the park boundary. Bicycle and pedestrian traffic are permitted on the remainder of the road inside the park, which has been converted into a trail. Carbon is reached via the Carbon River Road, off of state Route 165.

Set in a glacial basin surrounded by fragile wildflower meadows, Mowich Lake is the largest and deepest lake in Mount Rainier National Park. Mowich Lake is open for fishing and non-motorized boating. The area is generally open mid-July to mid-October. Mowich is reached via state Route 165. The road is unpaved after the first 3 miles and may be rough.

The Ipsut Creek Campground is located 5 miles from the Carbon River Entrance. Due to the 2006 flood, the road is closed to vehicles; the campground is open to hikers with a wilderness camping permit.

The Mowich Lake Campground and Tolmie Peak Trailhead/Mowich Lake picnic area are located 6 miles from the Mowich Entrance. Both the Mowich Lake campground and picnic area are open midsummer to early fall.

The Carbon River area includes old-growth forest and inland temperate rainforest. The Carbon Glacier is the lowest elevation glacier in the lower 48 states.

The Mowich Lake area provides a gateway to spectacular subalpine lakes and meadows. Subalpine meadows are very sensitive to disturbance, so please stay on the trails at all times.

Longmire

With the establishment of Mount Rainier National Park in 1899, Longmire became park headquarters. The site had previously served as James Longmire's homestead, lodging and mineral springs resort. Although park headquarters are no longer at Longmire, the original 1916 headquarters building houses a museum that tells the story of the early days of the park. Across the street from the museum, the "newer" Longmire Administration Building, completed in 1930, still holds offices for park staff and is home to the Longmire Wilderness Information Center (current park administration offices are located at Tahoma Woods, outside of the park along state Route 706). All of Longmire is now designated a National Historic District. Longmire is located in the southwest corner of the park and is 6.5 miles east of the Nisqually Entrance.

Longmire is open year-round.

The Longmire Museum, usually open daily all year, offers exhibits, information and books sales.

The Wilderness Information Center, usually open daily from late May to early October and closed in winter, is where visitors can obtain wilderness permits and hiking and backcountry camping information. In winter, visitors can obtain climbing and wilderness permits at the Longmire Museum.

The National Park Inn, a concessioneroperated hotel, restaurant and gift shop is usually open daily all year. The article, The National Park Inn, provides an overview of the history of this iconic inn.

Cougar Rock Campground and picnic area, 2 miles east of Longmire, is usually open from late May to early October.

Nearby attractions:

- Westside Road — Begins 1 mile east of Nisqually Entrance. Road is closed to vehicles beyond the gate at Dry Creek, but accessible for biking and walking.
- Christine Falls — Located 4 miles east of Longmire, a short walk from the pullout offers a classic view of the falls below the rustic stone bridge.
- Glacier Bridge — 5 miles from Longmire heading toward Paradise. The tall bridge has excellent views of the Nisqually Valley, though the Nisqually Glacier, which once reached the location of the bridge, has since retreated up the valley.
- Ricksecker Point Road — This one-way road begins 6 miles east of Longmire and offers fantastic views of Mount Rainier, Nisqually Valley and the Tatoosh Range. It's open in summer only.

Goat Rocks Wilderness

Named for the numerous mountain goat families who call this area their home, the Goat Rocks Wilderness covers 108,023 acres across Lewis and Yakima counties. Backpackers from far and wide venture to this wilderness area in the summertime for its challenging technical hikes, pristine alpine lakes and panoramic views of the Cascade Range.

The Goat Rocks features a 120-mile trail system, much of which stays above the timberline. Hikers will see marmots and pikas sunbathing on the rocks during those few months without snow. Miles of huckleberry bushes dotted by hungry gray jays will guide hikers up twisted paths until they reach sweeping fields of heathers.

The Pacific Crest Trail wanders north-south through the middle of the wilderness for 31.1 miles and connects with 14 other trails along the way.

In order to preserve this idyllic wilderness area, dogs and other pets are not allowed and fires are prohibited above 5,000 foot elevation. Backpackers and hikers should always pack trash out and be sure to leave no trace.

To reach the Goat Rocks Wilderness, travel 2.7 miles west of Packwood on U.S. Highway 12 until turning left on Forest Road 21. Stay on Forest Road 21 for 13 miles, then take a slight left toward Forest Road 2150. Follow 2150 and take the 045 spur to the trailhead.

economic engine, supplemented by government employment (via the National Forest and Park Services) and seasonal tourism.

In operation for more than 40 years, the Packwood Flea Market is traditionally held on Memorial and Labor Day weekends.

Vendors typically begin to set up their booths on the Thursday of the holiday weekends.

The multi-day event attracts hundreds of vendors along with large crowds of shoppers. Visitors can browse an assortment of food, antiques, novelties, handcrafted artisan gifts, upcycled items, art and more. The Packwood Flea Market is considered to be one of the largest flea markets in the western United States.

Packwood

Set at the base of the Tatoosh Range and on the banks of the Cowlitz River, Packwood is surrounded by dramatic natural landscapes, most of which are in public ownership. Packwood, located less than 10 miles from the Ohanapemosh entrance to Mount Rainier National Park, also has a fairly direct connection to the Nisqually entrance via Skate Creek Road during the summer months. The area offers a wide range of lodging near Mount Rainier, Mount St. Helens and the Gifford Pinchot National Forest in the summer. Packwood provides lodging for White Pass Ski Area skiers and snowshoers during the winter. The Cowlitz River comes crashing off a glacier high on the flanks of Mount Rainier and winds through Packwood. Steelhead in the river makes fishing wonderful. Mushrooms and huckleberries abound in the forests. Camping and lodging provide a perfect respite for adventure and leisure travelers.

Proximity to Mount Rainier National Park, White Pass Ski Resort and the Cowlitz River make this area a base camp for recreation. The town of Packwood has historically relied on the forest products industry as an Riffe Lake, historically known as Mossyrock Lake then as Davisson Lake, is a reservoir formed by Mossyrock Dam. It is a popular waterway for smallmouth bass. The lake stretches more than 23 miles along U.S. Highway 12 east of Mossyrock and has a year-round open fishing season.

Riffe Lake

Riffe Lake

Riffe provides good fishing for landlocked coho and Chinook salmon, plus an occasional large brown trout. Rainbow and cutthroat trout are also available. Landlocked salmon rules apply. Other warm water species present include brown bullheads, along with a few bluegill and crappie. There are no kokanee in Riffe Lake.

Mossyrock Park, near the west end on the south side of the dam, has camping facilities that can be reserved by calling 360-983-3900. Mossyrock Park boat launch remains usable during most low-water conditions. Boat launches at the east end (Kosmos and Taidnapam Park) are not usable during low-water periods.

Bank access is available on both sides near the dam and at the Taidnapam Park "fishing bridge" near the upper end of the lake. Call the Tacoma Power toll-free fishing hotline at 888-502-8690 to check reservoir levels.

The towns of Mayfield, Riffe and Kosmos are located under Riffe Lake — a result of building the Mayfield and Mossyrock dams in the 1960s. You can see the remnants of the towns if the water level is low enough.

Mayfield Lake

This reservoir was formed by the construction of Mayfield Dam. It is managed for catchable rainbow trout and warmwater species. Tiger muskies were introduced in 1993 to help control nuisance northern pikeminnow (squawfish) populations.

The lake is located about 3 miles west of Mossyrock. The big attraction is tiger muskie fishing. The state record is currently over 31 pounds; but larger ones are out there.

Ike Kinswa State Park

Ike Kinswa State Park

Ike Kinswa State Park is a great place to make summer memories. This classic state park sits on Mayfield Lake amidst a rolling patchwork of farmland 20 miles east of Interstate 5 and off U.S. Highway 12. Ike Kinswa provides idyllic days of boating, swimming and water sports for the whole family.

Fish for tiger muskie, largemouth bass, kokanee and rainbow trout; launch the family boat for water sports, or bring kayaks and paddleboards for a mellow float. Kids can splash in the swim area until the air turns cool, the daylight fades and the smell of barbecue draws them back to camp.

Campers can choose between quiet, forested tent and RV sites or lakeside cabins and snuggle in for the night after a busy day on the water.

Ike Kinswa State Park is a 421-acre camping park with 46,000 feet of freshwater shoreline on the north side of Mayfield Lake. In addition to its excellent boating, fishing and swimming options, the park offers short hiking trails, birding, wildlife viewing and two horseshoe pits.

Mt. Rainier Scenic Railroad

Mt. Rainier Scenic Railroad returned in 2023, offering a 1-hour and 15-minute, 12-mile round trip excursion through forest landscapes aboard a vintage train. This simple train ride offers an express trip (no layover) from Elbe to Mineral

The historic train set is led by a 100-year-old steam engine, Polson 70, and features an open air car, two historic Pullman passenger coaches and a baggage car — outfitted as a gift shop and concession stand.

In addition to the scenic rides offered regularly, the railroad provides specialty trains for holidays, such as the Polar Express and Easter Bunny Train.

Additionally, RailCycle Mt. Rainier is an exciting new way to explore the foothills of Mt. Rainier. Pedal along a historic logging railroad, enjoying forest and mountain views on the railroad's custom-designed four-seat RailCycles. The RailCycles are easy to pedal, departing from Eatonville on the road to Mt. Rainier National Park. RailCycle riders travel 1.5 miles to a scenic turnaround spot for a 35-minute layover, before the return trip.

RailCycle Mt. Rainier is a family-friendly, pedal-powered rail bike excursion that offers a unique way to experience the Pacific Northwest's rich history of logging and railroading while experiencing stunning views of lush pastures and forestland.

Lewis & Clark State Park

This cool forested space east of Interstate 5 and south of Chehalis offers hiking and horseback riding through a rare stand of old-growth trees on the historic north spur of the Oregon Trail. The park provides an all-American camping experience with fire circles, an amphitheater and horseshoe pits. Your horse can even camp with you at one of the park's equestrian campsites.

Boundless enjoyment awaits children and families on lawns that double as playing fields, on miles of trails amidst lush ferns, gnarled snags, nurse logs and cathedral-like thickets of giant trees.

While buildings and kitchen shelters may be purely functional to the kids, adults and history buffs will appreciate these structures. Lewis and Clark State Park was developed by the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC)

Mossyrock considers itself "the Heart of Lewis County." Located just to the west of Morton, the town is home to the annual Blueberry Festival the first week of August and, more recently, a Freedom Fest that is held in the days leading up to the Fourth of July. Both events are full of revelry and callbacks to the town's unique heritage. "The area is well-known for recreational opportunities and provide a welcoming atmosphere to visitors and residents alike who enjoy outdoors activities," the city states on its website. "The immediate Mossyrock area lies within the Klickitat Creek drainage basin which is known for its highly fertile soils. Agricultural traditions remain alive today with both large-scale and small-scale farming. With several large berry grower and tree farmers the area preserves its rural charm. The influence of the nearby dams of Riffe and Mayfield, both built in the 1960s, remains to this day also since they transformed the wild Cowlitz River into two recreational lakes, Riffe Lake and Lake Mayfield." Camping opportunities abound throughout the surrounding area.

Pacific NW Best Fish Co. Know Better Fish!

When it comes to fresh seafood in Southwest Washington, residents and visitors alike simply can't find anything better than Pacific Northwest Best Fish Co.

The family owned and operated seafood retail store, smokehouse and cafe is located in Ridgefield, about 15 miles north of Portland, Oregon, and a quick stop off of Interstate 5.

"Our close proximity to the mighty Columbia River and the Northwest shores of the Pacific Ocean ensures that we bring the finest, freshest, wild seafood right to our dock," the owners proudly state online. "Every day, Pacific NW Best uses only the finest wild-caught seafood indigenous to our region. We are well rounded with numerous suppliers and fishing vessels to ensure only the highest quality seafood makes it to your dinner table."

Visitors to the region will want to visit the relaxing and idyllic business compound at 24415 NE 10th Ave. in Ridgefield to take in the full experience, but a stop isn't required to get the fresh and delicious offerings of Pacific Northwest Best Fish Co. The business provides online ordering at pacificnwbest.com/ and seafood can be shipped directly to your door through an order placed by calling 360-887-4268 during business hours.

"Our smokehouse products are all natural with no preservatives or artificial colors," Pacific NW Best's states. "Smoking fish is an art to us and we take great pride in the unique delicacies we produce. All our fish are smoked with traditional Northwest alder wood, and when combined with the finest natural ingredients and just the right heat and humidity, we get that distinctive Pacific NW Best Fish taste that's like no other. It's our pride and joy, but it's only one small part of a seafood roster that keeps our customers coming back again and again."

The Pacific Northwest Best Fish Co. cafe specializes in homemade seafood that is ready to eat, perhaps before perusing the uncooked offerings you'll take home for later. The menu includes hand-breaded halibut and chips, grilled Mahi tacos, homemade clam chowder and more.

But Pacific NW Best Fish CO is more than just seafood—it's a community hub including two onsite food carts, offering quick bites and outdoor dining experiences. 3Peaks, an onsite public house and taproom, complements the dining experience with local handcrafted beers on tap. Patrons can savor their brews alongside Pacific NW Best's delicacies.

The cafe offers indoor and outdoor seating, takeout orders and curbside service to accommodate all customers.

"We're proud to count the thousands of local seafood connoisseurs as loyal customers, and we're also excited that gourmet grocery stores rely on us to provide the very best in seafood to them. Pacific NW Best has established a tradition of uncompromising dedication to freshness, quality and customer service."

Pacific Northwest Best Fish Co. is open six days a week, closing only on Monday. Visit pacificnwbest.com to see current menu items and pricing, which are subject to change.

Washington Capitol Campus

The Washington State Capitol Campus in Olympia has many sights and attractions for visitors to enjoy. The 50-acre West Capitol Campus is listed in the National Register of Historic places. People can visit the Legislative Building, the Governor's Mansion and the Temple of Justice. Washington state's Legislative Building was completed in 1928 after six years of construction. It serves as both a working governmental center and a symbol of Washington's free and democratic government. The Legislative Building is the centerpiece of the five historic buildings designed by New York architects Walter Wilder and Harry White. There's also the Washington State Veterans and Law Enforcement memorials. Tree lovers can take a self guided walking tour that highlights 21 of the over 100 species of trees on the Capitol campus. The campus features a trail around Capitol Lake and boasts a number of different parks as well.

It's the only wolf sanctuary in the world accredited by the Global Federation of Animal Sanctuaries, ensuring the sanctuary residents always receive the highest level and quality of care.

Wolf Haven works to uphold its mission by providing sanctuary for animals, offering a variety of educational presentations about wildlife, and promoting wolf restoration in the wild. The nonprofit organization also participates in two federally managed Saving Animals From Extinction (SAFE) programs designed to help increase the populations of American Red wolves and Mexican wolves under human care and reintroduce them into the wild.

In more recent years, Wolf Haven's conservation efforts have extended to the 52 acres of pristine Mima mound prairie, wetlands and woodlands at their 3111 Offut Lake Road SE, Tenino location, where staff and volunteers work with local partners to preserve and restore native plants, butterflies, birds and mammals. Self-guided walks on the prairie are available to the public any time the wolf sanctuary is open for visits.

Tenino

The Thurston County city of Tenino is a little town with a lot of history. It's also known for grabbing a lot of headlines, most recently by recreating the wooden money that first put the town on the map during the Great Depression. The town dusted off the concept during the pandemic, creating local currency to help aid local businesses and residents. It's known as the "Stone City." In 1888, the sandstone industry took hold, and the legacy of that history is on display in the form of buildings throughout the city. The Tenino Stone Carvers carry on that history today, operating out of a shop in the downtown area. The Tenino Depot Museum is a great spot for learning all about the town. You'll also want to visit the Quarry Pool, a recreational hotspot which, as the name indicates, is located in the remnants of a former quarry. Every July, the town holds its Oregon Trail Days festival, celebrating the history of the town with a parade and several days of activities.

"If there's any decent place in this world, I'm going to find it."

These words, uttered almost 170 years ago by a young African American man from Missouri, would influence the history of what is now Western Washington. George Washington, the son of a Black slave and a white woman of English descent, crossed the continent on the Oregon Trail and settled where the Chehalis and Skookumchuck rivers converge. He and his wife, Mary Jane, founded the town that would become Centralia and sustained it through its darkest hours.

Washington's legacy is celebrated in the form of a statue along Pearl Street in Centralia, Lewis County's largest town by population.

Today, Centralia, also known as the Hub City, has grown into an important halfway point between Seattle and Portland and a hotbed of shopping opportunities. Downtown Centralia, located to the east of Interstate 5, is a world unto itself, filled with great food, drinks and entertainment. McMenamins Olympic Club and Hotel offers all three with a theater that shows movies each day, hotel rooms and fine food. New to the scene, the Insert Coin bar and arcade provides fun for adults and youths in the same setting. For live entertainment, The Evergreen Playhouse puts on a full slate of plays all year. Throughout the downtown area, you'll find information and observances of what has come to be known as the Centralia Massacre, a 1919 conflict between the American Legion and Industrial Workers of the World (IWW or "Wobblies") that "resulted in six deaths, others being wounded, multiple prison terms, and an ongoing and especially bitter dispute over the motivations and events that precipitated the event."

One of the biggest draws in the Hub City are the Centralia Outlets. Straddling both sides of Interstate 5, making it an impossible-to-miss attraction from the freeway, the Centralia Outlets is a must-stop for any bargain shoppers looking for name-brand clothing, shoes and other great merchandise at outlet prices.

The Centralia Outlets are composed of more than 30 stores that are uniquely positioned along the I-5 corridor — halfway between Portland and Seattle off of Interstate 5 Exit 82.

2024-2025 • Southwest Washington Visitors Guide

The outlets include Nike, Coach, Eddie Bauer, Polo Ralph Lauren, Pendleton and Under Armour, among many others.

Nearby you'll find Fort Borst Park which, in addition to having an exciting history, is also home to ballparks, trails and access to the Chehalis and Skookumchuck rivers. Fort Borst Lake is a favorite for fishing.

In December, the city holds an increasingly popular Lighted Tractor Parade that attracts thousands of people from throughout the region. Its summer counterpart, Summerfest, is held throughout the city on the Fourth of July.

The Centralia Rollerdrome location — just off North Pearl Street at the intersection of Maple in downtown Centralia — was built in 1904 and was originally called McNitt Hall for its owner Frank McNitt, a prominent Centralia businessman who also owned a successful hardware store. McNitt Hall was used for dances. If there was evidence that proved roller skating was taking place there in 1904, the Rollerdrome would be the oldest continually operating roller rink in the United States. Today, the Rollerdrome continues to operate offering food, beverages, games and, yes, skating.

The county seat of Lewis County requires much more than a day if you're hoping to take it all in. The downtown area to the east of Interstate 5 is a great place to start. Locally-owned businesses offer all the services a traveler will need while the Lewis County Historical Museum provides a look back in time that highlights the history of Native Americans, pioneers, the timber industry and a look at the historic fabric that holds our communities together. The city is loaded with great parks, with the recently renovated Penny Playground perhaps being the crown jewel. In the summer, the Shaw Aquatics Center offers a state of the art water experience complete with water slides, water toys and a beach-entry-style pool. Another great spot is Stan Hedwall Park. This is Chehalis' largest park with roughly 100 acres of wooded land and 100 acres of open meadows and fields, along with ball fields and access to the Newaukum River.

Take a Ride on State Route 6

Whether you're heading for the coast or somewhere in between, the journey on state Route 6 from Interstate 5 to the beach offers loads of opportunities for travelers. Heading west, one of your first stops could be Lintott-Alexander Park. Along with river access and a playground, this park has two covered areas perfect for gatherings of all sizes. As you continue west, be sure to swing by Claquato Church. Built in 1858, from the first lumber processed by L.H. Davis' Mill, the Claquato Church is the oldest standing church in Washington state. To get there from Chehalis, take state Route 6 about 3 miles west of downtown and turn right on Chilvers Road, then take an immediate left onto Stearns Road. Take another left onto Water Street, and the church will be on your left. Rainbow Falls State Park, located along the Chehalis River, is another must-stop destination for travelers. Built by the Civilian Conservation Corps in 1935, Rainbow Falls showcases several structures designed in the rustic style of the National Park Service during the Great Depression, including kitchen shelters and comfort stations still in use today. Camping opportunities amid the old growth forest abound. Learn more at parks.wa.gov/570/Rainbow-Falls.

The town of Pe Ell offers an opportunity to fuel up, shop at local businesses and try out a number of great eateries. The town also hosts an annual Fourth of July celebration. Continuing west, travelers will find an idyllic

Castle Rock

Situated between the Cowlitz River and Interstate 5, Castle Rock is also known as a gateway to Mount St. Helens. It is the northernmost city in Cowlitz County. Spirit Lake Memorial Highway connects the city to the Mount St. Helens National Monument and Spirit Lake recreation areas. The historic downtown features an array of shops, antique stores, restaurants and accommodations. The town's namesake, a 190-foot-high rock, was a landmark for Cowlitz Indians and Hudson's Bay Company traders as early as 1832. Castle Rock features a number of parks, including Memory Lane Volunteer Park and Coldwater Park.

Gifford Pinchot National Forest

Whether you seek solitude, social activity, creative inspiration, wildlife, forest products or scenic beauty, you can find it in the Gifford Pinchot National Forest. In fact, one could create an entire visitors guide of locations to see just inside this sprawling land. With an area of 1.32 million acres, it extends 72 miles along the western slopes of Cascade Range from Mount Rainier National Park to the Columbia River. The forest straddles the crest of the South Cascades of Washington state, spread out over broad, old growth forests, high mountain meadows, several glaciers and numerous volcanic peaks. The forest's highest point is at 12,276 feet at the top of Mount Adams, the second tallest volcano in the state after Rainier.

Hulda Klager Lilac Gardens

The historic Hulda Klager Lilac Gardens feature an arboretum and a 19th century Victorian-era garden in front of a historic Victorian home. Many of the gardens were planted by Hulda Klager or her parents in the late 1880s. Klager immigrated from Germany with her family in 1865 when she was 2 years old and moved to the farmland in Woodland in 1877, where they built a home. In 1905, Klager hybridized lilacs. She created 14 new varieties by 1910, a number that continued to grow. Klager died in 1960 at the age of 96. When the Woodland Federated Garden Club learned the site would be bulldozed and turned into an industrial area, they successfully had it declared a state and national historic site. It is located at 115 South Pekin Road, Woodland.

Woodland

Known as the southern gateway to Mount St. Helens, the City of Woodland was incorporated in 1906. The city is home of the famous Hulda Klager Lilac Gardens and the annual celebration of The Lilac Festival. Woodland is also known for its Planters Days celebration which commences with the coronation of a Planters Day Queen. The celebration, which takes place in June, is the oldest of its type in the Pacific Northwest and reflects Woodland's passion for tradition. Woodland is one of the oldest communities in Washington state and also serves as a gateway to the Lewis River recreational area.

Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area

The Columbia River Gorge is 80 miles long and up to 4,000 feet deep. The river canyon meanders past cliffs, spires and ridges set against nearby peaks of the Pacific Northwest's Cascade Mountain Range. The Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area has a plethora of trails, recreation areas and campgrounds. One of its most popular attractions is Multnomah Falls which brings in more than 2 million visitors a year. Fed by underground springs from Larch Mountain, the flow of the falls is typically highest during the winter and spring seasons. Nearby is the Multnomah Falls Lodge which houses a restaurant, gift shop and visitor center.

Bonneville Lock and Dam

Built and operated by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Bonneville Lock and Dam was the first federal lock and dam on the Columbia and Snake rivers. The project's first powerhouse, spillway and original navigation lock were completed in 1938 to improve navigation on the Columbia River and provide hydropower to the Pacific Northwest. A second powerhouse was completed in 1981, and a larger navigation lock in 1993. The National Historic Landmark is named for Army Captain Benjamin Bonneville, who was an early day visionary that led an exploration to the Oregon Country and charted extensive sections of what

Clark County Junk Removal

Whether it's unwanted construction debris, furniture, appliances, yard waste or any other manner of junk, the question is always what to do with it.

The answer is to call Clark County Junk Removal, a family-owned operation that operates in the greater Clark County area of Southwest Washington that has earned high praise from customers as the best-rated junk removal operation in the region.

Clark County Junk Removal services residential, business and construction clients.

"We're not like those big-name, corporate junk removal companies that treat you like yet another number," the owners proudly state. "Just the opposite, in fact. We work with every customer one-on-one to come up with a convenient, flexible schedule and a low rate that matches any budget. Why? Because, as a family-owned business and longtime member of the local community, we value the important role that property clean-outs and junk removal play in your quality of life. To that end, we ensure a smooth, safe project by doing all of the heavy labor ourselves."

Staff does all the loading, garbage pickup, hauling and cleanup. It offers same or next day service.

And once the junk leaves your property, you can rest easy knowing it will be handled properly.

"We are committed to continuously improving our environmental performance and keeping as much as possible out of landfills," the business states. "We do this by taking the time to separate the recyclables from the everyday trash, bring metals to scrap yards, bring woods and plastics to the correct transfer stations, and donate anything that's still in good standing to a local charity."

Clark County Junk Removal works with a number of community-based charities as well as local branches of national charitable organizations, including the Salvation Army, Goodwill, Hope In Harmony, local schools and churches, and Habitat for Humanity.

Clark County Junk Removal is fully insured and services Amboy, Barberton, Battle Ground, Brush Prairie, Camas, Cherry Grove, Dollars Corner, Duluth, Felida, Fern Prairie, Five Corners, Hazel Dell, Hockinson, La Center, Lake Shore, Lewisville, Meadow Glade, Mill Plain, Minnehaha, Mount Vista, Orchards, Ridgefield, Salmon Creek, Vancouver, Venersborg, Washougal, Woodland and Yacolt.

Getting started is simple:

- Book an appointment online or by phone.
- Receive an up-front and accurate estimate.
- Watch as your junk is quickly removed and processed appropriately.

To see more details on what Clark County Junk Removal can do for you, visit clarkcountyjunkremoval.com/.
